We Trusted Russia—Now a Crisis in Berlin

An 'Old Pro'

David M. Nichol has lived the Germany story since early in World War II.

He arrived in Berlin during an air raid in 1939 to cover the Nazis for The Chicago Daily News Foreign Service. Hitler censorship forced him out more than a year later and he covered the rest of the war from the Russian side.

Returning to Germany after the war, he has covered its economic miracle, the breakdown of four-power rule, the Berlin blockade and other high points.

Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

BONN, Germany — The "Berlin crisis" which is plaguing the world, is a direct outgrowth of the faith in many quarters in the West that postwar cooperation with the Soviets would be possible and fruitful.

The threatening proportions which this crisis has assumed 14 years later are the measure of the extent to which this faith was unwarranted.

For as long as there are books and people to read them, the historians will argue about how this faulty assessment occurred, about who was responsible, and about why it could not be corrected more adequately without bringing everyone to the brink of a new war.

The slender lifelines of West Berlin, the fuzziness about control of the supply routes by land, water, and air, and the fateful division of Germany itself are the results rather than the cause of a fundamental and unresolved political conflict.

Lenin stated it in its simplest terms much earlier. The control of Europe depends on the control of Germany, he said. The unspoken corollary which has become very clear is that the control of Berlin is the key to the control of Germany.

Very few people, at least in the West, were thinking in such terms in the summer of 1944.

By a tremendous concentration of power and effort a beachhead had been lodged on the Normandy coast of France. After weeks of bitter fighting the Allied armies broke out of this embattled pocket and raced eastward towards the German frontiers.

"Unconditional surrender" was the slogan of the day. Nazism was to be destroyed, and it was too often and too easily confused with the physical fact of the existence of Germany.

In such an emotional atmosphere were the agreements reached that set the pattern for the occupation of Germany, and for much of what has followed.

These agreements were three in number, to which was added a map. They were the work of the European Advisory Commission, a body which grew from the first of the big power conferences, the meeting of the foreign ministers of the U.S., Britain and the Soviet Union in Moscow in October 1943.

At Teheran, towards the close of 1943, Roosevelt, Churchill, and Stalin turned over to this commission the task of drafting a policy for Germany. The U.S. representative was Ambassador John G. Winant, who later committed suicide.

On Nov. 14, 1944, these agreements were completed with the understanding that they would be issued in Berlin after the Nazi surrender.

The first of these wiped out any central German government, and about the wisdom of this there are now the greatest reservations. If the Allies had permitted a single central German government to remain and had made it responsible for administering policy the present division of Germany into two opposed and clashing areas might not have occurred.

The second established each of the four commanders, now including the French, as the supreme authority within his zone of occupation and gave him a veto over any decisions concerning the whole of Germany.

It was this supreme authority which made it possible for the Soviets to create the nucleus of a Communist system in their zone, and it was the veto which wrecked any chances the joint Allied control authority might have had of success.

The third agreement, to which the map was attached, divided Germany into four zones. The British were in the northwest, the French in the southwest, and the U.S. in the center and southeast.

After the final collapse of the Allied control machinery, these three were combined and became in 1949 the present federal German republic, or West Germany.

The Soviets by this third agreement were given the territory between the Elbe and the Oder rivers. The city of

Nasser May Force Red Hand

CAIRO — (UPI) — United Arab Republic President Gamal Abdel Nasser's charges of a Communist plot to create a giant Red state in the Mideast may force the Kremlin's hand in the strategic area, Western diplomats said Saturday.

So far the Russians have not commented on Nasser's bitter accusation that Communists and their "stooges" in Iraq are bent on destroying Arab unity and nationalism and replacing it with communism.

The Russians could react where it would hurt Nasser most—in the pocketbook, the diplomats said. His anti-Communist charges were made at a time when Russian experts were in Cairo to study plans for the first stage of the Aswan High Dam construction on the Nile.

The Russians have promised a 100-million-dollar loan and Soviet equipment and engineers—but they may withdraw the offer, the Western diplomats said.

The Communist bloc also has supplied modern tanks and MIG jets to the U.A.R. armed forces, which could also be choked off on a signal from Moscow.

Nasser's three angry speeches against Communists and Iraq followed Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem's suppression of a Nationalist revolt at Mosul last week and an Iraqi government claim that the U.A.R. provoked and aided it.

Western diplomats said that although the Russians, silent until now despite Iraqi accusations of Nasser's role in the revolt, might have to take sides. The Moscow line so far has been that "colonial imperialists"—the West—were behind the Iraq revolt.

The Russians were not expected to appreciate Nasser's charge the Communists in Iraq were working "according to inspiration from abroad" and were "stooges of the foreigners."

Situation 'Serious,' He Says

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. William Fulbright (D., Ark.), said Saturday it is "premature" to assume there will be no war over Berlin.

"I regret the assumption that many people make that there's going to be no war," the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said.

"I think thats' premature. I say it's a very serious situation."

Fulbright's comments came in the midst of other developments both here and abroad on the Berlin crisis. These included:

COMMUNIST East Germans vigorously denied that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has backed down on his demands for the end of the occupation of West Berlin and its conversion into a "free de-militarized city."

U.S. OFFICIALS said the allies have virtually completed a note to Russia opening the way for a Big Four summer summit conference if a worthwhile foreign ministers' meeting on German problems takes place in mid-May.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S foreign policy advisers have prepared a number of suggestions for his nationwide radio and television address on Berlin Monday night.

WASHINGTON got ready to welcome British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan for his high-level policy discussions with President Eisenhower. He is expected to urge Ike to agree to a summit conference with Khrushchev in mid-summer regardless of results of a foreign ministers' meeting.

Fulbright was interviewed by Sen. George Smathers on a filmed television show for use on Florida stations.

Fulbright termed the Berlin crisis "a serious probing action by the Russians" which might result in the use of "very rough tactics" by the Soviets.

"I think we ought to assume that they may go very far," he said.

"Instead of being too sticky about summit conferences," Fulbright said, "we should tend to accept them—in view of world conditions—as a more common practice, perhaps holding one every six months."

On the question of a foreign minister's conference, as opposed to a heads of state conference, Fulbright said:

"We have to accept the fact that in Russia there isn't any second most important man. It's just the most important man. To them, a foreign minister's conference is rather a waste of time because Khrushchev speaks for all of them."

Hostilities Mounting

Iraqi Planes Attack Village In Syria, Damascus Charges

LONDON — (AP) — The Damascus radio said Iraqi planes attacked a village about six miles inside Syrian territory Saturday.

The broadcast monitored in London said a vehicle was destroyed but made no mention of casualties.

Radio Cairo came on the air at the same time and was believed heard to say that the planes used rockets in the raid.

But London monitors said the Cairo broadcast was indistinct and could not be heard with real accuracy.

Relations between Iraq and Syria have worsened since the Iraqi government put down a rebellion centered at Mosul in the northern provinces early this week.

Syria is linked in the United Arab Republic with Egypt, which has stepped up oral attacks on the Iraqi regime of Premier Abdel Karim Kassem.

On Tuesday U.A.R. sources charged Iraqi planes shot up the Syrian border village of Hamoudiya in the Tel Kotchek area of northeast Syria.

There was speculation the jets may have been hunting rebels in Northern Iraq fleeing toward the Syrian frontier, about 75 miles northwest of Mosul.

The village of Hamoudiya is about three miles inside Syrian territory.

Fender-to-Fender, Miami Drivers Sweat Out a National Ailment
. . . hardening of the traffic arteries: cars, cars everywhere and barely a bus in sight

While We Strangle in Traffic

Transit Systems Are Dying All Over U.S.--Ours Next?

Miami is not alone in its fight to keep from being strangled in its own traffic.

Cities all over the U.S. are struggling with the acute problem of moving people to and from their jobs on traffic-clogged streets.

What's wrong? And what's the solution?

This is the first of five articles on the problem that grows worse daily.

Miami's Nightmare

WHILE POPULATION has jumped 75 per cent in Greater Miami in 10 years, bus rides have fallen off 25 per cent.

NINETY-ONE PER CENT of all travel here is now done by private car. 12,000 go to work every day at Miami International Airport. Only 100 ride a bus.

FIFTY MILLION AMERICANS are on the verge of losing their means for getting to and from work. And most of them not only don't care but are actively engaged in aggravating the situation that is rapidly leading to the death of public transportation in the U.S.

Can Public Transit Be Saved?

While our cities strangle in their own traffic and our downtown areas gasp for air, the one activity that could provide artificial respiration quickly and effectively is dying, too — from total lack of understanding and declining patronage.

This is the tragedy of public transportation: In an era when it is probably needed more than ever before, it is drying up and disappearing in dozens of communities all over the nation.

Customers have been dropping away from public transit at such an alarming rate that there were almost two and a half billion fewer transit riders last year than there were in 1912 — when our population was somewhat over half what it is today.

Why is this happening, and why is it important?

Philadelphia Caught in Mire

THE ANSWER was summed up by a blue-ribbon committee which studied traffic problems in Philadelphia. The committee's report stated, in part:

"The Philadelphia region is becoming mired in a traffic problem so intense that the region's livability and its efficient functioning are seriously impaired. During the last seven years, traffic volume has doubled and automobile registrations have increased 70 per cent, but . . . public transportation systems in the metropolitan area have lost 35 per cent of their passengers.

"Further increase in automobile travel will be difficult and expensive to provide for; therefore, every possible measure must be taken to make public transit riding more attractive . . . and to provide a competitive service that will hold to a minimum the increase in automobile traffic.

"Shortage of street space makes it essential to attract the maximum number of passengers to transit."

These same statements apply, in varying degrees, to virtually every city in the U.S. But the manifestations of the problem have taken many different forms:

Bus Travel Lures Just Don't Exist

(First of Two Articles)

By LEO ADDE
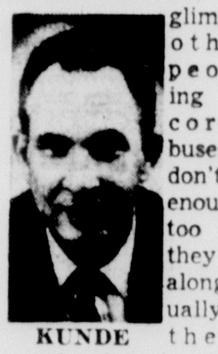
Herald Staff Writer

Almost a million persons travel around Dade every day and try their best never to do it on a bus.

From the windows of their automobiles, they catch glimpses of another 200,000 people waiting on street corners for buses which don't run often enough, charge too much when they do come along, and usually don't take the passenger exactly where he wants to go.



KUNDE

Metro's traffic engineers drew this picture from a six-month survey of Dade's transit "service" and needs. Headed by George Kunde, the engineer found the service woeful, to the surprise of no one, and the needed improvements tremendous.

If the improvements don't come, they predict, transit ridership will continue to drop off, and the shakiest of the seven private bus companies in the area will simply quit.

The result would be still more cars on Metropolitan Miami's already inadequate streets, and an increase in the 75 million dollars a year currently being spent on county roads of all types.

A backdrop for all the engineers' planning and citizens' complaints over transit shortcomings is the simmering negotiation between Metro and bus tycoon William D. Pawley.

Our Records 'Lost,' Firm Tells Probers

Insurance Files Are Sought

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Some records sought by the Senate Rackets Committee were "lost" from the files of a Chicago insurance company between visits by investigators, Chief Counsel Robert F. Kennedy reported Saturday.

He related the incident to newsmen in outlining committee plans to inquire this week into the handling of the insurance business on a number of union pension and welfare funds in Chicago.

He said the committee would trace the channeling of these accounts to the Occidental Insurance Co. of Los Angeles, through the Dearborn Insurance Co. of Chicago.

He said one of the original Dearborn partners has been convicted of income tax evasion and another is under indictment on the same charge. Among those having an interest in the firm, Kennedy said, was former Chicago Alderman Frank Keenan.

Kennedy said the business involved commissions, fees and other payments totaling more than a million dollars since 1950.

He said committee investigators looked at certain records in the Dearborn offices but were told during a later visit that the documents had been lost.

He said the company got most of its business from labor groups, including three Chicago Teamster locals and units of the Restaurant Workers Union.

He identified the Teamster Locals as 77, headed by Joey Glimco; 703, headed by Dominic Selese, and 710, headed by Union Vice President John T. (Sandy) O'Brien.

He recalled previous testimony that Occidental also handles insurance for the Western Conference of Teamsters and once made a $350,000 loan to former Teamster President Dave Beck.

The committee delved extensively into Glimco's activities earlier last week and also touched on Selese. Both invoked the Fifth Amendment to questions about alleged kickbacks, payoffs and misuse of union funds.

Kennedy said the committee would offer more testimony about Glimco this week and take up for the first time in public session some matters involving O'Brien.

Mauri Will Never Do It Again

Girl Sets Mark Atop Flagpole

INDIANAPOLIS — (UPI) — Teenager Mauri Rose Kirby climbed down from a lofty perch atop a flagpole Saturday with a "world's record" for female flagpole sitters and vowed never to do it again.

The 17-year-old girl, named after the famous Indianapolis auto racer, Mauri Rose, sat atop the 71-foot pole for 211 days, equaling the men's record and smashing the previous women's mark of 169 days.

"I'm glad it's over," she said. "I'd never do it again or advise anybody else to do it."

Mauri, who only tried the stunt to "break the record," was greeted by a brass band, a host of civic officials and a throng of teenagers when a derrick lowered her bosun's chair to the ground.

"The first thing I want to do is dance," she said as she tried her legs for the first time in seven months.

"What I've missed most is activity," Mauri said. "I've missed going places and doing things."

Then she staggered and weaved into a drive-in, located underneath the pole, for an examination by a doctor.

The youngster wasn't concerned about the possibility of someone else breaking her mark.

"They can have it," she said. "I've got a lot to catch up on."

Mauri endured 75 mile-an-hour winds, sub-zero temperatures and even a toothache since she was hoisted to the enclosed yard-square perch atop the pole on a warm day last August. Other discomforts included two small fires that broke out when rain short-circuited a small heater she used to keep warm. She extinguished the fires by stamping them out with her feet.

One of her most frightening experiences, Mauri said, occurred when wind gusts reached 75 miles per hour, causing her pole to sway about two feet in each direction.

"That was scary," she said. "The tower had no guy wires and I thought it was going to snap in two."

But Mari admitted she was "tremendously excited" over the reception.

Air Agency Hikes EAL Checkups

By DOM BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

Pilot-engineer bickering has led the Federal Aviation Agency to increase its crew safety checks on Eastern Air Lines flights, it was disclosed Saturday.

Flight engineers claim some 200 incidents of bickering have occurred since the 38-day EAL strike was settled Jan. 1.

An FAA inspector's report of 26 flights, dated Jan. 7 and made public Saturday, said:

"Some (Eastern) flights lacked the crew coordination necessary to maintain a high level of safety."

But a spokesman for the Airline Pilots Association charged that the flight engineers have introduced the safety question "as a ruse" to obtain pay and authority equal to pilots.

And, caught in the middle between the two factions, an Eastern official said:

"We do not believe safety is a factor in this issue."

The Flight Engineers International Association charges that "a small corps of Captain Queegs" is trying to push the engineers out of their jobs by taking over flight engineer's duties.

George Petty, flight engineer president, added, however:

"For the most part the pilots are flying the airplanes the way the company intended them to be flown — safely and efficiently."

Engineers, assigned to all four-engine passenger planes, sit between the captain and co-pilot. Their authority includes pre-flight inspection of aircraft, limited responsibility for power settings of engines and in-flight operational maintenance.

The report by FAA inspector Robert Hutton said:

"During Jan. 2 and 3, inspectors of this office made 26 enroute inspections on aircraft of Eastern Air Lines. Many of these flights were operated in compliance with (company) instructions and conformed with the highest operating standards; however, some flights lacked the crew coordination necessary to maintain a high level of safety."

The report concluded:

"The FAA is accelerating its en route inspection program on Eastern Air Lines, to insure compliance with all appropriate regulations."

Feelings have been tense between the flight engineers and pilots since before the 38-day strike in which pilots said flight engineers should be replaced in jets by a pilot, and in which engineers refused to take pilot training.

The Flight Engineers union says it has on file flight reports with notations by engineers such as:

"As soon as gear came up both pilot and copilot were busy making power settings . . . plane nearly settled back on runway."

Other flight engineer complaints included being told by the captain not to wear earphones, and being ordered out of the cabin at lunch-time.

Dade's Service Found 'Woeful'

over his three lines to Metro in a "paper" sale. Metro would take title to the companies, saving about $1.5 million a year in federal taxes. Pawley would continue to operate his lines until he was paid, out of transit revenues, about $8.5 million.

County Manager O. W. Campbell and a Metro Commission transit committee headed by Ben McGahey favor accepting Pawley's offer. The commission voted 9-2 last week to continue negotiations.

Bus-riding here has slumped 25 per cent in the past 10 years — a period which saw population rise 75 per cent. The new Dade Countians are mostly car-riders who have never been tempted, by the lures of convenience or economy, to set foot inside a bus. The lures don't exist.

In the last few months Metro Miami passed Los Angeles in cars-per-capita figures and now leads the nation. This area how has one car for each 1.75 persons. Ninety-one per cent of all travel done inside Dade County is by automobile. In other big cities fighting traffic strangulation and transit-use decline, the percentage of travel by car is far lower. For instance, 31.9 per cent in St. Louis, 17 per cent in Philadelphia, 30 per cent in Chicago.

Kunde, Dave Reynolds and others on the Metro traffic staff approached the transit problem with a limited goal, one they considered attainable. There's no hope, in a spread-out, car-owning metropolitan area like this, of getting most of the daily travelers back into buses.

If they can find ways to induce 20 per cent of the moving population to use buses (13 per cent more than at present), Dade will have a reasonable car-transit ratio. The bus companies would carry enough riders to stay solvent, and the road-improvement problem will be merely tremendous instead of hopeless.

The usual idea of a transit's main function is carrying workers and shoppers into the downtown business district. But only 24 per cent of the persons who board a bus anywhere in Dade County end up downtown. This is true even though midtown Miami is served by the largest and most efficient Dade busline, Miami Transit Company.

Lack of crosstown routes which never approach midtown is the biggest failing of Metro Miami's splintered, disorganized transit service. Miami International Airport, second only to the downtown business district as a traffic generator, draws 12,000 workers a day. But only 100 travel by bus.

Miami Transit Company employes receive free passes, but still 74 per cent drive their own cars to work.

In other cities, providing exclusive bus lanes on major arteries has speeded service and lured commuters back to transit. That gimmick won't work here, the engineers say. Too many arterial streets here have only two moving lanes.

If, by some magic, half the cars could be removed from Flagler St. during rush hour, and buses had lanes all to themselves, the overall speed of traffic still would be increased only three to five per cent, Reynolds concluded.

Metro Miami, a unique area in so many ways, demands a bold, original assault to its transit problem.

350 Cities Lose Transit Systems; Are We Next?

pany of Portland, Ore., — sole operator of transit service within the city — has withdrawn its last trackless trolleys and made arrangements for the remaining gasoline buses to run only through October, 1959.

—BOSTON, which has had a comprehensive public transportation blueprint known as the "Coolidge Plan" since 1948, has chosen to ignore it; now, because the Boston suburban areas are reluctant to support mass transportation, the entire system is a deficit operation and tottering on the verge of extinction.

—ALMOST 350 CITIES in the U. S.—including 42 in Illinois alone—have lost their city-wide transit systems since V-J Day.

Los Angeles Faces Emergency

THE DISEASE which is killing small-city transit is infecting larger cities, too. For example, the Trenton Transit Company has applied to the New Jersey Public Utilities Commission to abandon all bus service in Trenton and other points in New Jersey as of March 15, 1959. And in the West, Cheyenne, Wyo., and Eugene, Salem and Springfield, Ore., discontinued bus service in November, 1958.

There are now some 6½ million people and more than three million vehicles in the Los Angeles area.

By 1975, there will be more than 10 million people driving some five million cars which will create the most colossal traffic jam in history — unless Los Angeles public transportation, which is something less than rapid at the moment, is provided the wherewithal to meet this emergency.

In Chicago, 100,000 more citizens daily enter the Loop by automobile than did 20 years ago — even though the total entering the Loop each day has declined by 10,000 during the same period.

And so it goes — the same cluttered, gnashing story of traffic congestion and failing public transportation from all over the nation.

More superhighways are not the solution to the problem in our cities. Nowhere was this better illustrated than on the New Jersey Turnpike. In its first year of operation, it developed twice the traffic originally forecast and actually intensified rather than alleviated the traffic jams leading into New York City.

What, then, is the answer?

Transit Rides Show Big Drop

FROM ALL SIDES, a growing chorus is calling on public transportation to provide the solution. But for public transit to be effective, people must ride it. And they aren't.

All these statistics leave potential bus riders very cold. As a result, public transportation companies have been bleeding — profusely and vocally — since the lush days of World War II.

In the past 15 years, the number of individual rides on all transit systems in the U.S. has declined from 23½ to less than 11 billion annually—and this during a period when the urban population from which the transit lines draw was growing by more than 10 million people.

The automobile is the primary cause of all this difficulty. A secondary cause was the lack of imagination among many transit company officials.

A Few Cities Doing Something

BUT NO AMOUNT of imaginative merchandising could alter the fact that since the war ended, the public transportation people have been virtually forced to reverse the most basic law of sound merchandising. As customers fell away and the transit companies had to retrench, instead of offering a better product at a lower price, they had to serve up a progressively slower ride at a higher price.

As might be expected, this didn't win back any customers. The fact that most transit companies were forced into this position by uncooperative public officials, unrealistic taxation, unchecked traffic and lack of understanding from people who should have been supporting them — particularly downtown merchants — made little difference to the the commuters who continued to switch to their cars by the millions.

But today, in its period of greatest crisis, there is appearing a resurgence in public transportation.

Some enlightened public officials and transit industry bigwigs are finally doing some imaginative and constructive thinking — and the results are going to be rewarding for every individual who finds it necessary to move about in a city.

After losing by a whisker several times, Mrs. Bertha Gates, of 9280 SW 80th St., hit last week's $1,000 Sunny Fortune jackpot.

SUNNY

She credited her victory to perseverance and long hours studying the dictionary.

"I had given up all hope after coming so close so many times," commented Mrs. Gates, wife of the building superintendent at Wayside Baptist Church, Kendall.

What does she plan to do with her windfall?

"First, I'm going to tithe my church and then have my daughter's hearing condition fixed," Mrs. Gates reported.

"Of course, I will probably get a new dress," she added.

And if there's any money left she may travel to Tennessee to see her son, Merton Lowell, 24.

In recalling her tussles with Sunny Fortune, she said:

"I've been trying it for more than a year, often burning the midnight oil and studying the dictionary.

"My family used to help but they gave up. Were they surprised when I won!"

She noted her weekly fling with Sunny Fortune "has been good for me—it's made me concentrate and be more alert."

For other readers interested in learning concentration, there's a brand new contest opening today with the jackpot back down to $300. It'll keep on growing at the rate of $100 a week until we get another winner.

National Summary

By early afternoon Saturday temperatures neared the 70 degree mark from the Gulf States northward into portions of the Ohio Valley and parts of Texas warmed to the 80's before noon while a wintry storm accompanied by high winds and heavy snow spread out of the Rockies into the central plains.

A vigorous low pressure disturbance, centered over Kansas, controlled the circulation over most of the country Saturday. Warming breezes carrying moisture northward from the Gulf accounted for patches of rain from Eastern Texas into Georgia, while increasing cloudiness was noted over much of the east.

A warm front from Kansas to the mid-Atlantic coast marked the northern fringe of the warmer air and while a few 40's reached southern New England, much of the region from the Great Lakes into upper New England lingered in the 30's at noon.

Colder weather which hit California and parts of the Mississippi Valley during the night are likely to produce local frost in the foothills of northern California today, but warmer weather is in store for much of the rest of the west.

By afternoon colder weather should reach the central Appalachians while light snow is expected to reach New England by evening.

'U. S. Just Breaks Even'

Panama Blasted For Canal $$ Bid

PANAMA CITY, Panama — (AP) — U. S. Maj. Gen. William E. Potter says the Panama Canal was built "as a service to shipping of the world — not as a moneymaker for Uncle Sam or anyone else."

POTTER

The governor of the Canal Zone, speaking at a meeting of accountants, directed his remarks at Panamanians who are seeking 50 per cent of the waterway's gross revenue.

Potter said out of 83 million dollars grossed by the Panama Canal Co. in 1958 the net was only $2,600,000 after deductions for operating expenses, running the Canal Zone government and paying interest on the U. S. investment.

The margin was so close, he said, that a drop of only one and one-half ships in average daily transits would mean the company failed to break even.

He stressed the aim of the canal company was "not to make a profit but to avoid a loss." Rejecting suggestions for a general increase in tolls, he said they should be hiked only as much as necessary to meet canal expenses.

The governor said the U. S. had spent a billion and a half dollars on the Panama Canal and has got back so far only 966 million. Even if all the canal assets were sold now at book value, he said there would remain unrecovered costs of about 95 million dollars.

Burglars Get Mayor's Badge

LONDON —(AP)— A gang of burglars tied up the custodian of Wadsworth Borough Hall, blew open a safe and escaped with 3,00 pounds ($8,400) and the borough mayor's jeweled insignia of office.

The insignia, consisting of a gold chain and badge encrusted with emeralds, diamonds, rubies and sapphires, was valued at 5,000 pounds ($14,000).

Dedication Set For Marina

Miami's new Dinner Key Marina will be dedicated March 27.

Some $500,000 has been spent to build new docking space since last July. Facilities now include 363 berths, a new trailer-boat launching ramp and a dockmaster's office.

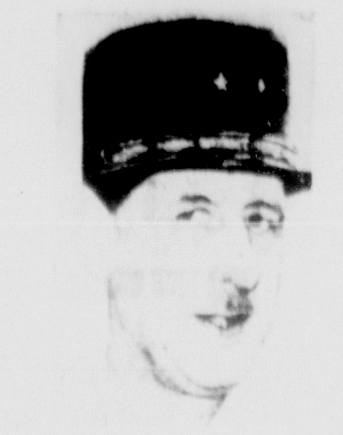
Congress Unit Opposes Giving A-Power Plant for French Sub

By JAMES RESTON
The New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — A troublesome problem has arisen between the U.S. and France over the transfer of an atomic power plant for a French atomic submarine.

It is understood that the Congressional Joint Committee on Atomic Energy has protested against a promise by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to President Charles de Gaulle of France to make available an atomic submarine plant to the French government.



Charles de Gaulle
. . . he's irked

Meanwhile, the joint committee has approved the transfer to Britain of such an atomic submarine plant, now under construction by Westinghouse at Pittsburgh.

This has produced an angry protest by President De Gaulle and diverted the Allies from their efforts to create a united front to the Soviet Union during the Berlin crisis.

Moreover, the reasons for approving the atomic submarine plant for the British and withholding it from the French are adding to the French government's resentment.

No official has given the reason, but it is known that a majority of the members of the Congressional Joint Atomic Energy Committee have expressed doubts about the security of atomic information made available to France.

Some members of the congressional committee stated flatly that they believed any such move would result in a leakage of the atomic power plant plans from French Communists to the Soviet Union.

Friday, the French government confirmed that it had advised the North Atlantic Council that it had decided to withdraw the one-third of its Mediterranean fleet earmarked for the North Atlantic command in time of war.

French officials here said Saturday this decision had nothing to do with the U.S. refusal to go forward with its promise of the atomic submarine power plant, but congressional sources said they had been informed that there was a connection between the two facts.

What troubled officials here even more than the French decision to take its fleet out of NATO command was General de Gaulle's decision to do so in the midst of the Berlin negotiations and on the eve of the celebrations of NATO'S 10th anniversary.

Moreover, the French decision to withdraw forces from the alliance was made public precisely at the moment when President Eisenhower was asking the Congress for $3,900,000,000 to support the principle of mutual aid with Washington's allies.

This crisis with De Gaulle, however, has been coming on for a long time. He has taken the position that the U.S. could not expect to get the full support of France unless it was prepared to give its full support to France on such critical issues as Algeria.

Thus, the atomic submarine issue is only one of many that have been harassing relations between the De Gaulle and Eisenhower governments, but this one is particularly annoying to the French, who have tended to feel excluded from the select list of atomic powers.

Allied Life Lines to Berlin
. . . three main supply routes to garrisons

We Trusted Reds —Now a Crisis

Berlin was some 100 miles within this dividing line. The same agreement parceled the city of Berlin into "sectors" and provided that the city be governed by a four-power kommandatura and that it be garrisoned by each of the victor powers.

Amazingly, it included no provision or guarantee of the supply lines through the Soviet zone.

Some military experts believed it would be poor policy to specify routes to Berlin from West Germany until it was known what railroads, highways, and bridges would be usable. By the time this was known it already was too late. The best that was ever achieved was a document outlining the three air corridors that radiate like spokes from Berlin and saved the city's life during the year-long Soviet blockade.

The war ended May 8 and the three basic documents were announced in Berlin June 5, but the Allies were not permitted by the Soviets to occupy their sectors of Berlin until July 4.

In the early period of the occupation the Soviets were stalling, waiting for the Americans to go home. When this didn't happen, primarily because of Soviet aggressiveness in the rest of Eastern Europe and in Greece, the Soviets imposed the blockade in the spring of 1948.

This was defeated by the Allied airlift, but during its course the Communists set up their own rump government in East Berlin. The division of the city has continued ever since and the Communists claim it now as the "capital" of Eastern Germany.

The agreement in New York in May 1949 which ended the blockade said only in general terms that the restrictions on transport to Berlin would be lifted. This was reaffirmed in a four-power communique at the end of a foreign ministers' conference in Paris in June.

This is the agreement which Nikita S. Khrushchev says now, single-handed, is invalid. There had been ample warning of his design, but it had gone unheeded.

Frustrated at every turn in their attempts to unite Germany, the Allies permitted the establishment of the West German government with its headquarters in Bonn, in 1949. It has prospered remarkably within its own limits, and after the Communist attack in Korea in 1950 had alarmed the World, West Germany gradually was incorporated as a full partner in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization defense system.

In East Germany the wraps were off as well. The German Democratic republic was set up with Soviet blessing, and the process of communization began in earnest. The stage had been set carefully in the preceding four years.

In the interval Western guarantees of West Berlin in which the U.S. was the leader were given in such unequivocal terms that even to permit them to be discussed contains overtones of surrender.

At London in 1954 the U.S., Britain and France declared:

"The security and welfare of Berlin and the maintenance of the position of the three powers there are regarded by the three powers as essential elements of the peace of the free world in the present international situation. Accordingly, they will maintain armed forces within the territory of Berlin as long as their responsibilities require it.

Until 1955 the Soviets continued to pay lip service to the ideas of unification and of free elections although they blocked every practical step. In 1955 they took a skillful reading of the world's political temperature at the summit conference in Geneva and decided they could move on to the next phase.

Since 1955 they have refused even to discuss free elections, or to consider any unification except as a "confederation" of the two Germanys.

This in turn would involve a recognition by the Western powers and by the rest of the Germans of the legitimacy of the Communist regime which holds sway over 17 million people in East Germany, and the cynical surrender of any moral claim that they have a right to live under a government of their own choosing.

This would spell the doom as well of the liberties of the 2.2 million residents of West Berlin, and probably also would wreck the Free World's defenses in Western Europe.

Soviets Rap Cyprus Pact

LONDON — (AP) — Russia Saturday again attacked the British-Greek-Turkish independence agreement on Cyprus and said it will turn the Mediterranean island into a "powder keg."

Izvestia, the Soviet government newspaper, said "every point in the Zurich and London agreements is convincing proof that we are dealing with collusion behind the back of the people of Cyprus, against their national interests, against the interests of peace."

The people of the island had been denied self-determination, Moscow Radio quoted Izvestia.

Miamians Believe War Will Be Avoided

GEORGE WHALEY
. . . 'we're committed'

EARL MITCHELL

ROMELDA WALKER

JAMES R. COOK
. . . 'looks like smoke'

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

The U.S.' decision to hold West Berlin — even if it means war — got a supporting vote today from the often-interviewed "man on the street."

But only one of those quizzed by a Herald reporter-photographer team believed the Berlin crisis actually would develop into a shooting war.

"I imagine something may happen," said H. W. Warren of 2025 NW 185th St. "There'll be plenty of conferences but this could eventually become a full scale war — although I certainly hope not!"

"At any rate," he added, "the United States shouldn't back down."

Others, such as Abe Arnovitch of the Urmey Hotel, look for a "long time standoff." The Russians will back up even more than they have already, he said, "and we'll stay right where we are in West Berlin."

Earl Mitchell, a bowling instructor, believes decisions should "be left to Eisenhower and McElroy (secretary of defense) who know what the real score is there."

F. L. Bowers, a vacationer from Pittsburgh, believes the allies and Russia "will argue it out for some time in foreign minister and summit talks."

"But we should stay right where we are, even at the risk of war, and carry out our commitments," he says.

Miami policeman James R. Cook said the "whole crisis looks like nothing more than smoke, but only the government has enough information to decide what should be done."

"No matter what we do," he said, "we must take into consideration the feelings of the German people, whose country it is, and make our decisions accordingly."

"It won't go as far as a war," was the opinion of Curtis H. Anderson, 6812 Talavera, in Coral Gables. "Russia is in no position to wage an all-out war against us, but if the Reds want to make something out of this, then we should stick by our guns and shoot."

Romelda Walker of Livonia, Mich., is another who doesn't believe war is imminent. "It will be a continuation of what we've been going through," she said, "a cold war that may last another five years on this issue alone."

George Whaley, St. Louis, Mo., looks to the President, "with his sensible ideas" for a solution. "We're committed to stay in Berlin," he says, "and Mr. Eisenhower is well qualified to make the final decision to fight or leave."

"It's just a big, big bluff," in the opinion of Joe Ruzicka, a Baltimore vacationer. "Russia talks a lot, but I don't believe it will do anything to incite us into an all-out war. It wouldn't dare, because if it does we'll beat 'em."

Al Metzner, a reservist, is one who believes—and hopes—"it can be talked out." Russia, he says, "won't push us, but if they do we should stand firm."

Only two of those questioned by The Herald refused to give their ideas on the Berlin situation. A rear admiral and a commander grinned and said, "Just put us down for 'no comment' at the moment."

Great Lover Iced in Court

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Miss Hattie Tubbs told the court that a stolen kiss was distinctly unwelcome.

Miss Tubbs, 23, testified in Police Court she was walking past a cafe when James Booker, 20, a stranger, stepped up and bussed her soundly.

Booker was charged with assault and battery. Asked why he kissed the woman, he said, "I donno."

"How much for the great lover?" asked Prosecutor R. E. Cors.

"Five days," answered Judge R. E. Shannon.

Vatican Newspaper Hits At Red China's Communes

VATICAN CITY — (UPI) — The Vatican City newspaper Osservatore Romano assailed Communist China Saturday as an "immense forced labor camp" where communes are "annihilating human personality."

JOHN

It was the latest, and hottest, of a series of editorial blasts at Communist China, a subject to which Roman Catholic Church leaders including Pope John XXIII have been devoting increasing attention.

Pope John has dedicated several speeches to the fate of Catholics and Christians in Red China and the "nihilist" program of the Red state.

Osservatore Romano discussed the formation of "Chinese communes" which, it said, "have the objective of regimenting tens of millions of persons, men and women, in formations of obligatory labor to increase industrial and agricultural production and 'perfect' education and military defense."

The newspaper said that the "communes" comprise nuclei of 20,000 persons, grouped in various villages with discipline assured by "peoples militia" and with a regimented schedule.

"As men," the newspaper said, "we have the right to protest against a situation that one would not believe credible if it were not confirmed by irrefutable testimony.

"As Christians, we must rebel against the annihilation of the personality of man, who is made to the image of God, and we must denounce the brutal and total negation of the rights of individual religious conscience."

"The social and moral effects of the 'communes' which most directly interest us as Catholics are those regarding religious life. With the new organizations which transform China into an immense forced labor camp, children are cut off from family education."

'He Will Be Welcome'

Fidel's Visit Has Official Blessings

CASTRO

NEW YORK (AP) — The State Department has told the American Society of Newspaper Editors that it "had every right to invite" Dr. Fidel Castro, Cuban prime minister, to the U.S.

George W. Healy Jr., president of the ASNE and editor of The New Orleans Times Picayune, released the text of a wire approving the invitation from R. R. Rubottom Jr., assistant secretary of state for Inter-American Affairs.

Healy released the telegram after Charles J. Lewin, editor of The New Bedford Standard-Times, had protested that the invitation to Castro to attend the ASNE's April convention "is an insult to many member editors."

Rubottom was quoted in Washington dispatches as having told a closed meeting of the Senate subcommittee on Latin American Affairs March 3 that there was official concern about the method of arranging Castro's visit by the ASNE.

He reportedly said the invitation left government officials uncertain as to the role they might be expected to play, since the invitation came from an unofficial source.

On March 4, the day Rubottom's testimony was reported by Senate sources, a government spokesman said Castro would be welcome to the U.S. The statement reportedly was prompted by an adviser reaction to Rubottom's testimony in Cuba.

Healy disclosed that on March 7, Rubottom wired him:

"Press dispatches attributing statements to me did not carry detail nor full implication my remarks before Senate subcommittee on March 4 with respect visit Prime Minister Castro. Our interest is that proper and adequate courtesies be extended this distinguished visitor by State Department.

"Department's views reported in formal press statement March 5, saying in part Prime Minister Castro will assuredly be welcome here. Department has never objected to ASNE inviting Dr. Castro. ASNE had every right invite Dr. Castro as he had every right accept.

"Naturally officials both governments will be consulting on Dr. Castro's visit and as plans develop department will be keeping appropriately in touch with you."

Stewardess Slain Near Tokyo

TOKYO — (UPI) — Police investigated the mysterious death of a Japanese airline stewardess on the theory that she may have been strangled.

The shoeless - coatless body of Tomoko Takekawa, 27, a stewardess for the British Overseas Airways Corp. was found in a lonely section of Tokyo's outskirts. An autopsy showed marks on her neck which police said indicated she probably was strangled.

Lebanese Customs Men, Miamians Swap Experiences

Chasing Smugglers Is Same Job the World Over

By ARTHUR JOHNSEY
Herald Staff Writer

Gun runners and dope smugglers lead lawmen a dizzying chase, whether in sunny Miami or the nervous Middle East.

That was the conclusion reached here Saturday by U.S. and Lebanese customs officials who met to talk over their lives and hard times as border guardians.

They agreed that problems of stamping out illegal traffic between countries are alike the world over.

At the teeming "headquarters" port of the Middle East, — Beirut — narcotics cause the most concern.

Fouad Abi-Saleh, chief inspector of the Beirut port's Free Zone, told U.S. Customs officials here what keeps his agents busy in the teeming Lebanese port and surrounding coastal lands.

He listed gun-running also among his big headaches, in these days of instability of governments in the Middle East.

Altogether he just about described, with a difference of emphasis, the major problems of his Miami counterparts, who have concentrated for several years on guns and narcotics.

The Lebanese inspector told U.S. officials his agents seize many times more narcotics — by weight — than U.S. agents.

That's because he has to look out for hashish destined for Egypt, as well as the opium, heroin and cocain traffic destined mostly for Italy, France and the Western world.

Enforcement against transportation of the bulky hashish plant has made smuggling of the drug so hazardous its "big business" because so much capital is required, he explained.

Valued at $8 a pound in the field, it goes up to $1,000 a pound when sold to users. It is not uncommon for agents to seize shipments weighing several tons.

Gunrunning has been so rampant at times, he acknowledged, authorities were overwhelmed. "And now with Iraq . . . ," he speculated, "we may be busy at home."

Abi-Saleh is visiting the U.S. on a 10-month study provided by Eisenhower Exchange Fellowships, of Philadelphia, a private foundation dedicated to creating a better understanding of the U.S. throughout the world.

Peace Not Wonderful to 165,000

LAHEY

Fourteen years after "peace" returned to Europe, 165,000 displaced persons of World War II are still living in refugee camps.

A number of agencies and individuals are trying to get the refugee problem settled, either by direct action or by stirring the conscience of the free world.

By EDWIN A. LAHEY
Chief Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—There are still about 165,000 unsettled refugees in Europe, 14 years after "peace" returned to that continent.

The spectacle of the world's leaders teetering on the brink of another war must be a grisly sight to these leftover souls.

The Zellerbach Commission, a conscientious group of U.S. citizens, reports that some 500 of these refugees were classified as "difficult to resettle."

The "difficult to resettle" victims of war and repression are over age, have spots on their lungs, are mentally unstable, or otherwise unable to make their own way in the world.

In many instances, a member of a family with a physical or mental defect makes the whole family unacceptable to the immigration countries (including the U.S.) which have helped resettle 1,885,000 refugees since the end of World War II.

A NUMBER of agencies, including the Zellerbach Commission, are trying to get the refugee problem settled, either by direct attack, or by stirring the conscience of the free world to do something about these forlorn souls who wither in camps in Austria, Italy, Greece, Germany, and other refugee centers.

One of the truly noble efforts in this area are the "European villages" of the Dominican priest, Father Georges Henri Pire of Belgium, who has been awarded the Nobel prize for his work on behalf of the "leftover" refugees that nobody wants.

The Zellerbach Commission recently visited one of Father Pire's "European villages" in Bregenz, Austria.

They met two elderly Russian women, Mrs. P. and Mrs. O., whose husbands had been snatched from them by the Soviet secret police in 1938. They never heard from them again. They lost children by starvation, and finally landed in a refugee camp at Lembach in Austria.

These women, together with the surviving daughter of one of them, lived for fourteen years in the corner of a railroad barracks in Lembach, sharing starvation and inadequate sanitary facilities with other Russian and Ukranian refugees.

The two women, in their middle fifties, are now settled in a little white house in Father Pire's project.

"THE SISTERS still cannot talk about the past without crying," the Zellerbach Commission reports. "The wounds remain raw, and it seems difficult to forget the constant terror and the sleepless nights under the Bolshevik regime.

"And after so many years in the barracks at Lembach, it never occurred to them that some day they would be able to live like human beings in a trim little duplex with a parlor and two bedrooms and a kitchen and bath all their own."

The two Russian women told the Zellerbach Commission visitors that they had assumed God and the world had forgotten them.

"But now" one of them said, "we can believe again that God exists."

Children Plan Two Programs

The Miami Beach Recreation Department will present two spring programs by the pre-school age children of Polo and Tatum Waterway Parks.

Polo Park will do "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" Wednesday, and Tatum Waterway Park will present "Rumpelstiltskin" Thursday.

Foreign Aid Needs Selling, Says Congressional Leader

Thomas E. Morgan
. . . to hold hearings

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Rep. Thomas E. Morgan (D., Pa.) said Saturday that President Eisenhower's foreign economic aid program will need a lot of help from the administration if it is to win congressional approval this year.

"It's going to have to have more push, more salesmanship," said Morgan, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, as his group prepared for hearings starting Monday.

Morgan spoke in an interview following a less-than-enthusiastic congressional reception Friday to Eisenhower's plea for $3,930,000,000 to help other free world countries in the year starting July 1. This is 600 million dollars more than Congress voted last year.

Eisenhower asked for $1,600,000,000 to help arm U. S. allies. The rest of the proposed aid package was for economic assistance, although 835 million dollars of it would be closely tied to support of U. S. allies' defense programs.

Morgan expressed hope that Eisenhower's special study commission on arms aid, under Investment Banker William H. Draper, will soon issue a strong report showing the need for military assistance.

The congressman said Draper's group is expected to recommend sending more advanced-type weapons to Europe.

As Morgan saw it, a strong case for the arms aid section of Eisenhower's bill would carry the economic portions along with it. He noted congressmen generally vote for defense measures. And with impoverished allies overseas, he said, "you can't have military aid without economic aid."

Some key Democratic senators have been saying for years that military assistance is over-emphasized at the expense of economic help.

Rep. E. Ross Adair (R., Ind.) a member of Morgan's committee who has opposed the aid program in past years, likewise looked for the results of the Draper investigation. He said the committee ought to have Draper's report before it acts on the Eisenhower bill.

Adair said unemployment and Democratic resentment against Republican charges of big spending would hurt the aid program in Congress this year. But he said what amounts the lawmakers would vote is still highly unpredictable.

Rep. Wayne Hays (D., Ohio) said Eisenhower would be lucky to get three billion dollars. This would be nearly a billion dollars less than the minimum the President says is needed.

Barmaid, 84, Notes Change

BUTLER, N.J. — (AP) — Barmaid Nettie McCormack is 84 years old, owns her own tavern, and specializes in making manhattans. Among her customers have been Babe Ruth and the late "Uncle Don" of radio fame.

Nettie says customers today are more polite. They are also ordering more mixed drinks. Drinkers who order a "shot and a beer" are dwindling in number, she says.

Boy on Outing Killed in Cave

BAY MINETTE, Ala. — (AP) — A camping trip ended in tragedy when a gully caved in on 12-year-old J. B. Blackburn Jr. and killed him.

Efforts to revive the boy, son of the Bay Minette city attorney, were unsuccessful.

The victim and two other boys had dug a cave in the side of the large gully.

'Get Lost,' He Says and Bandit Does

By Herald Wire Services

NEW YORK — Douglas Southwick, a money changer in one of New York's subway stations, does not take fondly to interruption when he is reading.

PEOPLE

He was reading a newspaper in his change booth when a man about 26, sporting a mustache, stopped at the grilled window.

"Gimme the money," the man snarled.

Since the station is near the Bowery, a hangout for bums, Southwick told the man to go away without even looking up.

The holdup man, a persistent fellow, shouted: "This is a stickup. Hand over the dough-re-mi or you gets ventilated."

Southwick glanced up into the muzzle of what appeared to be a .45 automatic, but remained calm, police said.

"Get lost before I take that pea-shooter and stuff it in your ear," Southwick told the man who had interrupted his reading.

The gunman put the gun in his pocket and got lost in the subway crowd before police arrived.

Post Office Gets Break

REP. RANDALL S. HARMON has invited the Post Office Department to dump its bags — free of charge — on the Muncie, Ind., front porch he rents to the government for $1,200 a year.

Harmon, an Indiana Democrat, said earlier he might bill the Post Office for the use of his porch over the last nine years as a sorting point for postmen.

But after meeting with Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield, Harmon announced that mailmen could keep right on using the porch without charge.

Mickey to Get Familiar Role

MICKEY COHEN is going to play a familiar role in the movies. He will portray himself.

Schoncite International Productions of Hollywood announced that Mickey and his girl friend, Liz Renay, have been signed to portray themselves in "The Liz Renay Story," with shooting to start next month.

Miss Renay was indicted on five counts of perjury Thursday in connection with her testimony before a federal grand jury investigating the source of Cohen's income.

Soviet Singer Wins Praise

MEZZO-SOPRANO ZARA DOLOUKHANOVA appeared at Town Hall in New York billed as the first Soviet singer to entertain here since the end of World War II.

Said Howard Taubman of The New York Times: "Miss Doloukhanova's voice is a fine instrument, but not world-shaking in size or quality."

But, said Taubman, "with every song she undertook she made music . . . her control is all but faultless."

Trio Weathers Stormy Weather

THE KINGSTON TRIO, who made the "Tom Dooley" ballad famous on records, filled their singing date in South Bend, Ind., though their plane was forced down in a snow squall 26 miles away.

John Rich, Salt Lake City, pilot of the trio's small plane, said he lost radio contact with the South Bend Airport and landed in a field southeast of the city. Nobody was hurt.

The singers, Dave Guard, Bob Shane and Nick Reynolds, called a taxicab and got to the University of Notre Dame campus for their scheduled appearance.

Counsel For NLRB Resigns

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Jerome D. Fenton resigned as general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board.

He had been reported in recent months embroiled in a feud on personnel policies with the five-man NLRB. There was no mention of this in the White House announcement of his resignation.

Fenton wrote President Eisenhower he desired to return to private life.

In accepting the resignation, Eisenhower thanked Fenton for a "difficult job well done, first in the Department of Defense and later in your present position."

Fenton, a 50-year-old Republican, will stay on until a successor is named and takes over. He has been in the government for five years.

The Tip Off

Beating Action Not Yet Closed

THE CASE of the beating of a Puerto Rican foreman of a farm labor camp by two Homestead policemen may not be as "closed" as the parties involved believe. Look for the grand jury — and possibly the FBI — to step into the case.

TWENTY-THREE BOYS still are being held in jam-packed Dade County Youth Hall awaiting transfer to over-crowded Florida Industrial School at Marianna. Local officials estimate it will be at least two weeks before they can be accepted.

In the State

ISLAMORADA RESIDENTS feel that Monroe Sheriff John Spottswood is concealing the real reason for transfering Joe Pinder, a popular deputy, from there to Key West. They contend it was for "political expediency," adding that it was Deputy Norman Parker, not Pinder, who lived within a half-mile of the Hafway House, exposed by The Herald as a gambling spot.

FLORIDA'S BILLBOARD industry is reported to be assembling a top-level lobby for the upcoming session of the legislature. If the state bans billboards from the new Intrastate Federal Highway System — as several states already have done — it means the state will get about four million dollars more in federal money.

In the Nation

MORE JOBS FOR STUDENTS will be available this summer because of the upturn in business. However, don't expect enough to go around because with increased enrollments in most colleges, there will be more students looking for jobs.

LOOK FOR BUSINESS to start a seasonal slowing down in June, especially if any major steel strikes are called. Aside from the possibility of strikes, the summer vacation season traditionally brings a psychological letdown.

In Latin America

CONTRABAND ACTIVITIES over the Uruguayan-Brazilian borders because of the low quotation for the Uruguayan peso continue to worry authorities. The Brazilian government is particularly irritated by the smuggling of Uruguayan cattle into Brazil because it is affecting its meat industry.

POLITICAL FAVORITE in Argentina continues to be Maj. Gen. Pedro Aramburu, who served as provisional president in 1957 while elections were being planned. His popularity far overshadows that of President Arturo Frondizi.

Camp Crafts To Be Taught

Coral Gables Youth Center is offering a course in camp crafts in cooperation with the Florida section of the American Camping Association. All interested persons over 18 years old are invited.

The course will be given on Mondays from 7 to 9 p.m., April 6 through May 11 in Room 106 at the center, 400 Anastasia Ave. There is a small fee for materials.

Lemus Visits 'Point,' Makes Plea for Cadets

WEST POINT, N. Y. —(AP)— President Jose Maria Lemus of El Salvador visited the U. S. Military Academy Saturday and made the traditional—and popular—request to forgive cadets their sins.

In a speech he told some 2,400 cadets and officials that "only force based on morality can create an atmosphere favorable to progress, liberty and the happy and orderly living together of the human race."

A career army officer with service in the U.S. prior to becoming president in 1956, Lemus said, "I am filled with happiness at the vision of youth that has chosen military instruction as the goal of a deeply-revered vocation. The moral bond which unites military men makes itself felt here."

As a visiting head of state he has authority to request amnesty for cadets with accumulated hours of punishment which they walk off with rifles in their spare time.

O'Kelly Returning To U.S.

Irish President Knows America

DUBLIN — (AP) — The leprechaun of Irish politics takes off today for a tour of the U. S.

O'KELLY

President Sean (pronounced Shawn) O'Kelly — friends call him the leprechaun because of his five-foot, four-inch height — will be the first president of the Irish Republic ever to visit America while in office.

He will be the guest of President Eisenhower in Washington on St. Patrick's Day and may address a joint session of Congress.

Later, on March 20, O'Kelly will get the ticker tape treatment in New York City. Then he'll move on to Providence, R. I., Boston, Chicago and St. Paul, Minn., where he has cousins. He'll wind up the tour March 31.

O'Kelly says that if he could put across one message to Americans, it would be this:

"We wish America to be the most powerful nation under the sun and that its people should have peace, happiness and prosperity for many years."

The visit has a special meaning for O'Kelly. He spent the years from 1924 to 1926 traveling back and forth between Washington and New York doing propaganda work for the Irish Republican Army during the early years of the Irish Free State.

Later he visited the U. S. as an emissary for Prime Minister Eamon de Valera. The last time he was in America was in 1939, when he dedicated the Irish pavilion at the New York World's Fair.

"There hardly could be two nations that are closer friends than Ireland and the U. S.," O'Kelly says. "But if it's possible to bring our people even closer, that would be wonderful."

O'Kelly says that is the purpose of his U. S. trip.

"There are no commercial motives. All I want to do is meet people and do some handshaking."

He admits the tour will provide a welcome break. De Valera, as prime minister, actually runs the government. O'Kelly serves as chief of state, doing more or less formal chores.

Dublin born and reared, O'Kelly at 21 joined the Irish Republican Brotherhood. Two years later, in 1905, he took part in the foundation of the Sinn Fein Independence Party. O'Kelly inevitably clashed with the British during the period Britain ruled Southern Ireland.

"I guess I've spent three years, all in all, behind bars," he says. Actually, he was arrested seven times.

In 1932, O'Kelly became speaker of the Dail, or parliament, and served as one of De Valera's principal ministers. In July 1945, O'Kelly was elected the Irish Republic's third president.

O'Kelly is a warm, talkative person, well liked in Ireland, although friends sometimes kid about his height.

He showed annoyance at the jibes only once, according to an acquaintance. That was during half-time at a Dublin soccor match when the white-haired, 77-year-old president started off from one side of the field to take his place diplomatically on the other. Midway, the presidential color was observed to change as a spectator shouted:

"Would you mind parting the grass so we can see him, please?"

Music Hobby Program Set

Musical hobbyists, both children and adults, will present a program, "The World of Music," as the second event of the Miami Beach Spring Arts Festival at 8 p.m. Monday at the Ocean Front auditorium.

Featured will be Eva Levenson and her Recorder Ensemble, the Miami Beach High School A Capella Choir directed by Mrs. Aileen Di Nini, accordionist Oscar Czertokower, soprano Leona Ackerman, and baritone David Garrity. The public is invited.

A Curse Hangs over His Head

By JOY REESE SHAW
Herald Staff Writer

Great Grandma, Great Grandpa: Mysterious Trouble
. . . And the guy in the middle is Miamian Bob Goldstein

The blood of royalty courses through the veins of Bob Goldstein, 1406 Normandy Drive, Miami Beach.

He is a direct descendant of Czar Nicholi I of Russia.

The blood of hundreds of others course through Goldstein's veins, too.

He's had 1,000 transfusions.

Bob is one of 30 Dade hemophilia victims who must depend on the blood of others for life.

He is one of 20 victims for whom the local hemophilia organization is seeking "adoption" by some local civic club.

At 29, Bob is a personable, well-educated young man. On the surface, he's like dozens of other capable, likable, friendly young married men in Miami—getting a foothold in their respective careers, beginning a family, establishing a home.

Except for hemophilia and old Czar Nicholi.

SOME FOLKS hang evidence of the family tree on their walls—but Bob lives and reckons daily with his..

Oft called the royal disease because so many members of royalty have been afflicted with it, hemophilia is failure of the blood to clot properly. It can be acquired through a mutation, but travels through heredity.

Once established in a family line, it stays there — sometimes to change the course of history.

On the night of July 16, 1918, the deposed Czar of Russia, Nicholas II (grandson of Nicholi I and cousin of Bob's great grandmother), was a prisoner of the Bolshevik revolution in a small villa on the outskirts of Ekaterinburg. With him was the Czarina Alexandra, their young son, the Czarevitch Alexis, and their four daughters.

Shortly after midnight, the royal family were awakened by their guards herded into a small room in the basement. There they were shot and clubbed to death.

Today ends Dade Hemophilia Week — the week in which blood brothers have been sought for 30 victims of the bleeding disease.

Seven youngsters, to whom blood is life, have been adopted. Twenty others, children and adults, need help.

Is your civic club or lodge willing to supply blood for one victim for one year? If so, call Mrs. Carl Strohbach, WIlson 7-3121.

HAD IT NOT BEEN that Alexis was afflicted with a mysterious, incurable malady—hemophilia—the tragic event might not have occurred.

In desperation, the Czarina had turned to Rasputin, an uneducated peasant who claimed to have miraculous healing powers. By pretending to control the disease, Rasputin completely dominated the rulers, exercising a great weakening influence on affairs of state at a critical moment in history. His policies did much to make the Russian revolution possible.

Strangely enough women are not afflicted with the ailment, but are carriers.

Bob's great grandmother, whose great grandmother in turn was a niece of Nicholi I, was a carrier. Toba Schechwitz had 16 children, nine of whom lived to adulthood. Of the six girls who lived, four had hemophiliac sons.

"Grandmother Dora had four boys and two girls—all normal," Bob reported. "Mother is a carrier—but her sister wasn't."

Thrice Bob's family was told to make funeral arrangements—when he was 3 weeks old, 12 years old and 16.

A GRADUATE of University of Cincinnati, Bob is a medical technologist who this week turned insurance salesman. His early dream was to be a doctor "but I couldn't finish med school because of the absences."

Absences make holding a job one of the worst parts—for a man.

"You try to make yourself invaluable—but you know the day will come when the boss has to call you in and tell you gently . . ."

In their spare time, Bob and the attractive nurse (he was her patient once) he married two years ago, make home visits to other victims, teaching them proper care and bandaging. Sometimes Bob addresses doctors, too, on the ailment.

But careful as he is, there's always the constant owing and asking for blood.

"I guess no vampire ever used more," he kidded with serious eyes.

TODAY, THANKS to research, the future holds hope for an effective treatment.

"They're experimenting in England with a bovine extract which is exciting," Bob reported.

You Have Trouble With Bees? Just Give Doc Diller a Buzz

By MARCIE FEINGOLD
Herald Staff Writer

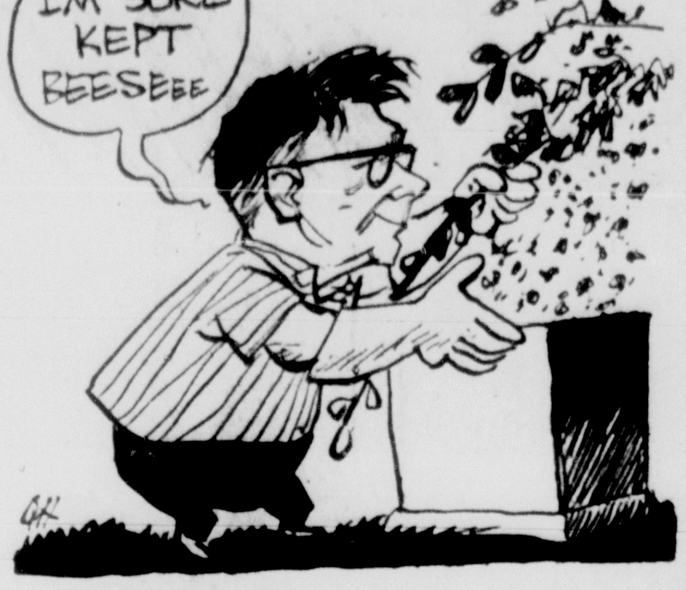
Women are always giving Isaac S. Diller a buzz.

A Miami beekeeper, he answered 12 SOS calls last week from frantic women who were trapped in their homes by bees in the yard.

The 70-year-old retired physician is a collector of bee swarms. He's what you might call a bee lover just like there are dog lovers, cat lovers and bird lovers.

And Doc Diller is a pretty busy man these days. It's bee swarming time.

Doc gets calls from all over town. Police, firemen and the humane society all pass on bee complaints to Diller.



A warm, wet February brought an early swarming this year. Doc has answered 50 calls since February and is likely to answer 200 more by the end of April.

As soon as Diller receives a call he gets out his "fighting" garb — a protective cap, a mesh face covering, arm shields, and a big bee hive.

"There are usually from 10,000 to 20,000 bees in a good sized swarm," says Diller. "They won't bother you unless you bother them. Some are meaner than others. It depends on the mood they're in."

Diller bravely shakes the swarming insects from tree branch to hive. It takes about half an hour to collect the entire swarm.

Nothing bothers the doctor more than seeing bees killed. Says Doc Diller:

"If it were not for their many activities, flowers and a great many plants would not be pollinated and consequently there would be no fruit."

So if a swarm of bees settles on your property, don't swat them with a broom. Give Doc Diller a buzz.

European Victory, If —Taylor

By RUSSELL BAKER
The New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor has advised the Senate that the West is capable of waging and winning prolonged conventional ground warfare in Central Europe so long as Soviet forces are not committed.

TAYLOR

The Army chief of staff raised the possibility that the Berlin crisis might erupt into conventional war short of all-out nuclear engagement if the Soviet Union elected to throw its satellite forces against the West without committing its own power.

In this, Gen. Taylor emphasized a possibility which President Eisenhower seemed to exclude in his news conference statement Wednesday suggesting that any war in Europe would necessarily be a nuclear war. Taylor's point was that it need not be if the Soviet Union chooses to repeat the pattern of the Korean war by committing only its satellite forces against the West.

Taylor's statement was made Wednesday afternoon, before the Senate preparedness subcommittee in secret session and a highly censored transcript was made public Saturday.

If the satellite forces alone were committed, Taylor testified, "we can deal with that situation without resorting to general nuclear warfare."

Asked if the West could "handle" the satellite armies with conventional warfare, he added: "I would say so. I am surprised sometimes when I hear the concern over fighting wars on the ground. Europe has withstood the threat of the Russians for generations, for hundreds of years.

"The Finns singlehanded held off the might of the Russian ground forces for 90 days, unassisted, back in 1939. If we have the courage of the Finns, I think we can do a lot of things from which we often appear to shrink."

If the North Atlantic treaty force "stands firm," he said, "they can defeat" the satellite armies in ground warfare.

This contrasted sharply with the emphasis the President gave the European military situation in his news conference. "We are certainly not going to fight a ground war in Europe," he said. The President's statement, however, seemed to be based on the assumption that any conflict would necessarily involve Soviet forces.

Industry Off In Last Year

NEW YORK — (UPI) — American industry in 1958 earned 12 per cent less than in 1957, according to the First National City Bank of New York. A tabulation of earnings reports issued by 2,219 companies showed they had aggregate net income of $13,928,600,000, against $15,776,219,000 in 1957.

NAGOYA, Japan — (UPI) — Toshichiro Murakami will be one year old today. But he doesn't exist. Legally, that is.

His mother disappeared from the hospital the day after he was born. Authorities cannot register him because the names of the parents are unknown. And he can't be adopted because he has no legal existence.

Kidnaping Laid To Red China

MACAO — (UPI) — Armed Communist Chinese have been secreted aboard junks and sent into Macao harbor to kidnap refugee fishermen and spirit them back to the mainland, it was disclosed.

Cmdr. Coutinho Carrido, harbor master of this Portuguese colony, said junks bearing well-armed representatives of the mainland government had come within a few feet of the docks in Macao harbor. He said he knew of many instances of outright kidnaping of fishermen from under the noses of Macao authorities.

The disclosures followed the intrusion into Macao's territorial waters of Chinese Communist gunboats.

Florida Printers Back Plan

ORLANDO —(AP)— Representatives of Florida printing firms said Saturday they agreed on an attitude toward purchasing of state printing, but refused to say what it is.

Newsmen were barred from the meeting, attended by 30 delegates from printing associations around the state. After the meeting, newsmen were handed an unsigned statement which said a unified program was agreed on.

Delegates refused to elaborate and brushed past newsmen on their way out of the hotel where the meeting was held.

Rep. John Mathews of Jacksonville has been investigating the methods of letting state printing contracts and has said he will draft legislation to tighten control over the business.

An attempt to put state printing under the Central Purchasing Act was defeated in the 1957 Legislature.

Another handout was given newsmen later. It said Orlando will be the site of the annual meeting of the printing industries of Florida, May 16.

3 Miamians Nabbed as Peso Smugglers

By JAMES BUCHANAN
Herald Staff Writer

McLANEY

The arrest of three Miamians and three other Americans trying to smuggle $237,500 worth of pesos into Cuba has put a crimp in the latest international "get-rich-quick" scheme.

Mike McLaney, Miami Beach socialite, golfer and tennis star, was one of the sextet nabbed Friday by Fidel Castro's new government.

The group included two girls and three men, one a former U.S. Army lieutenant colonel, Edward Solomon of 13095 Emerald Dr., North Miami, another, Jesus Antonion Prieto, 1850 So. Miami Ave.

The Cubans believe the six purchased their $1 pesos in the U.S. at prices ranging from 47 to 60 cents each. The idea, according to the Cuban government, is to exchange them for American dollars in Cuba and pocket the difference.

Castro's government prohibits the importation of more than $50 worth of pesos, unless the importer can prove they were acquired in a legitimate business deal.

The Cubans say most of the purchases are being made in this country from followers of ex-President Fulgencio Batista who "are loaded with stolen pesos and unable to exchange them in U.S. banks."

American financial houses stopped "handling" peso-dollar exchanges on Jan. 2, the day after the Batista government was ousted.

McLaney was taken into custody when he arrived in Havana via plane with a man named Israel Weinstein. They had been identified by two girls, also on the plane, as the men for whom the girls were carrying $57,000 in pesos concealed in their lingerie.

Arrested a short time later, as they stepped from another plane, were Solomon, the ex-Army officer, and Antonion Prieto.

Cuban police said Solomon was carrying $150,000 in pesos and Prieto $30,500.

No address was given by the Cubans for the two girls, Elaine Mitchell and Xenia Thornadakis, although both were believed to have come to Miami recently from New York City. Weinstein was said to live in Atlanta, Ga.

McLaney, divorced and remarried a year ago, lives with his present wife aboard a houseboat anchored in Indian Creek near the Fontainebleau Hotel. He is listed in advertisements as the operator of the gambling casino at the Hotel Nacional in Havana.

Their boat carries the same name, "Nacional de Cuba."

McLaney was almost certain to be ousted from his gambling setup by the Castro government in line with its recent "purity proclamations" ousting anyone with a criminal record from connections with the casinos.

Land Transfer Pact a Big Step

Interama Plan Begins to Jell

By JUANITA GREENE
Herald Staff Writer

It now appears Miami may get Interama after all.

At least the plan finally is on solid ground—all 1,700 acres of the swampy Graves tract.

How'd it come about after years of shilly-shallying?

The Miami City Commission has just agreed to hand the land over to the rejuvenated Inter American Center Authority.

Its prime pushers believe this is the greatest thing that's happened to the great Miami dream since it came to Mayor Ev Sewell 25 years ago.

"This is what we have been waiting for," said William D. Pawley, millionaire Miamian whose local holdings include the major bus lines.

"Over the years it has been my feeling," he explained, "that we had to have title to the land. That was our biggest stumbling block."

William D. Pawley
. . . beginning to glow

As new chairman of the authority finance committee, Pawley went to work on the Miami Commission a few months ago. He wanted all the land on the marshy Northeast Dade tract at the head of Biscayne Bay. The city had talked of pledging 500 acres only.

With the inspiration of a man dedicated to an exciting cause and the acumen of a good businessman, Pawley came out of the conferences with the whole plot. Heavy assists came from Commissioner Otis Shiver, who has had the project under his wing.

The city agreed to put the title to the land in escrow for two years. As soon as a resolution is passed making the decision official, Pawley will meet again with bankers.

"They have tentatively agreed," he said, "that 20 to 25 million dollars could be made available."

Before money changes hands, the bankers also want to get a good estimate on what the tract is worth, and to examine a basic plan showing just what Interama would be.

"We've had two plans in the past," Pawley pointed out, "but neither one was good enough."

Architects and engineers who volunteered help on the others will begin planning the new one.

Over the years there have been many interpretations—official and unofficial—of what Interama should be, where it should go, how it would be financed and what it would cost.

Here is the latest, and perhaps the final version:

Initially it would cost about 25 million dollars, to fill in the land and erect exhibition buildings on the Graves tract. The borrowed money would be paid back out of profits. There would be no mortgage on the land—at least not in the first stages.

Interama would be an international center where the U.S. and other countries, particularly those in Latin America, could display the products of their commerce and their culture. The aim would be to stimulate business, friendship and understanding.

Pawley is not the type of civic leader who bubbles over with enthusiasm. Yet he has begun to glow now when he talks of the long-sought project.

He is confident the joke soon will be on the jokesters. Like the one who said he wanted to find a good medium to keep in touch with him after he died.

"I'm curious to know if anything ever comes of Interama," said the wise guy. "And I'm sure it won't happen in my lifetime."

Wife Gabs In Bed, He Gets Divorce

LONDON —(AP)— Frederick Hearn got a divorce because he wasn't getting enough sleep.

It seems his German-born wife Hildegard liked to talk in bed.

Night after night, sometimes for weeks on end, Hildegard kept Fred awake nights by talking, a divorce court judge said.

Sometimes Fred would fall asleep, but Hildegard only thought he was kidding to annoy her.

Sometimes he snored.

In the end, said the judge, Hildegard got so annoyed she struck him, clawed him, tore his hair out—and once pushed him out of bed.

The court granted Fred a decree on ground of cruelty, ruling Hildegard had deprived him of "the peace of mind which would enable him to sleep soundly."

Nikita Will Go To Scandinavia

STOCKHOLM — (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev will visit Sweden, Norway and Denmark next August, it was announced by the foreign offices of the three governments.

The invitation of the three Scandinavian countries to the Russian leader was "accepted with gratitude," the announcements said. Exact dates of the visit and the programs remain to be worked out.

Khurshchev's acceptance of the invitations was handed to the ambassadors of the three countries in Moscow.

Thief Picks Wrong Guy

PARSONS, Kan. —(AP)— Rex Lawhorn, Labette County prosecutor, has under consideration the case of a 14-year-old boy charged with stealing a pair of shoes from a Parsons bowling alley.

The lad was picked up a few minutes after a bowler went to his locker and discovered his street shoes were missing.

The bowler was Prosecutor Lawhorn.

The Life of a Migrant: Toil, Squalor and Vice

He Went Inside

What's inside the barbed wire compounds that house South Dade's thousands of migrant laborers?

For years authorities have worked to clean up their sometimes squalid living quarters, to see that their children are educated, that their health is safeguarded.

The migrant's life itself—what is it really like? What are their hopes for the future as their backs bend to the endless rows of crops?

ROSILLO

Albert Rosillo, a young Cuban-born Miami lawyer, lived and worked as one of them to find the answer.

This is the first of two articles prepared by him with the help of Herald Staff Writer James Buchanan.

By ALBERT ROSILLO

The life of a migrant: danger . . . discomfort . . . unspoken dispair.

I know. I lived it.

For my first 10-hour day picking tomatoes, I netted 75 cents.

If the labor camp had paid me—which they wouldn't because I quit—I ran the risk of being beaten over the head and robbed by other laborers.

My fellow workers need money. They use a little for food, but more for bay rum, girls and gambling.

A $4 Mattress

ALL THREE went together at Princeton's B&L labor camp known as "Mexico City," where they practice segregation—not of the races but of nationalities.

I slept without a blanket on a threadbare blanket (for which I was charged $4) and shivered at the nightlong sound of gnawing rats.

I passed up the bay rum, the gambling and the girls. Many of the others did not.

But I couldn't pass up the 23-cent meals prepared for me by the mother of a migrant family. How long a person can work 10 hours a day on nothing but rice and beans and an occasional slice of meat I don't know.

Picking Work

APPARENTLY FOREVER, judging from the age of some of my fellow pickers. It's the same, they said, wherever they travel, from season to season, crop to crop.

"Mexico City," a barbed wire compound of several hundred $1-a-week crib-like rooms, is only half full.

But "picking is picking up." The camps are hiring again, and that's how I got my job. By walking down a dusty road west of Perrine, making my way past a gate guard who packs a gun on weekends, and being interviewed.

"Six dollars a day, for every day you work," I was told. "And you work from seven until six with a half hour lunch."

I was given a number — 6224—and told if I lasted a week they'd give me a work badge.

More Hopeful

BECAUSE I'D come into the camp around noon there was no work for me the first day. Nor was there work for a hundred others I saw sitting on their heels around the camp.

"Picking hasn't been going so good," I was told. "It was bad for weeks and now it's getting better. There'll be work tomorrow," I was told.

My assigned bed was one of six crammed into a 10 foot by six foot wooden hovel in line with hundreds of others.

Two light bulbs hung from the roof, one over each set of three double-decked bunks. Besides the bunks there was a small table, but not a single chair.

And no plumbing.

Sagging Screen

I TOOK one look at the sagging wire screen that served as a set of springs and decided I needed a mattress and blankets.

Back at the company offices I was "sold" a mattress. I had my choice—a thin, well-used threadbare piece of slightly stuffed cloth for $4, or a thin, new piece of slightly stuffed cloth for $6.

I chose the used mattress and a clerk made a notation that the $4 was to be taken from my first week's pay.

Blankets are on sale in the company store at prices equal to those in Miami's less expensive dry goods shops. But it's a cash deal.

What You Learn

I HAD NO cash, so I spent the night sleeping in my clothes, warmed only by my own exertion in swinging at mosquitoes that swarmed through the cracks around the roped-shut door.

Only one man shared the six-person half of the barracks to which I was assigned. But five men on the other side of the partition kept up a near-continuous conversation until after 11 p.m. and their talk and their light helped make sleep impossible.

I learned many things that first night in "Mexico City."

Never go to the toilet after dark; stay out of the dice and card games; tie your door shut when you "retire," and don't expect to sleep late in the morning.

Actually, "Mexico City's" night life is limited.

Those who have been particularly frugal with the bottle of bay rum they purchased the preceding pay-day Saturday may have a little left. It's a horrible tasting concoction generally used as a hair dressing, but which contains enough alcohol to make a tired farm laborer happy.

You Can Gamble

OR, YOU CAN get into dice or card games, a "cut" of which goes to an overseer at the camp.

There are girls, or women, available at the going price of $3. They are wives of laborers and ply their trade in the tiny barrack rooms while the husband either sleeps in the top bunk or is out drumming up more business.

The toilet area is taboo after dark. And that means from almost the moment you return to camp from the fields.

It is there that penniless laborers lie in wait with a piece of pipe for the man who may still have some of last week's pay left, or who won a dollar in the biggest crap game of the night.

More than one migrant is in the hospital at this moment because he was carrying money—or someone thought he was.

TOMORROW: — What it's like to work in the field; the segregation of laborers; what they talk about, what they feel and what they want.

Panels Called on 'Mixing'

Action Aimed At Legislature

By PHIL MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

Two Dade organizations Saturday called public meetings in an effort to head off any move by the 1959 State Legislature to close schools rather than submit to integration.

Dade legislators will appear at both meetings.

The first, sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association of North Miami Elementary School, 665 NW 145th St., will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the school auditorium

Lawyer Marco Loffredo, a member of the group, will moderate a panel on which Dade Rep. George Hollahan, Pupil Assignment Law Administrator Robert Stevens, and University of Miami Prof. Charles Philhour will appear.

"This is an emergency thing," said Loffredo. "The Legislature now believes that Dade County would rather have closed schools than even a modified integration program. They're wrong."

"We've got to alert the people so they can alert the Legislature."

The presidents of 400 Dade County organizations, including church groups, civic clubs, the PTAs, will be invited to the other meeting, called by the Dade Citizens Committee for Better Schools.

It will be held in the Dupont Plaza Hotel at 8 p.m. March 25.

Speakers will include Mrs. L. J. McCaffrey, chairman of the Florida Childrens Commission; Mrs. Carlton W. Johnson, Tampa, state PTA president; Dade Rep. Cliff Herrell; H. Y. Kinard, chairman of the Florida Region, National Conference of Christians and Jews. Television newsman Ralph Renick will be moderator.

Admission to the Dupont Plaza meeting will be by ticket only according to Mrs. Sue Stevens of the Citizens Committee.

Organizations which want to be represented but don't receive tickets in the mail can get them by calling her at MO 6-648, she said.

Man Held In Slaying

Hatchet murder suspect Francis William Schissler was brought back to Miami Saturday and charged with the slaying of 46-year-old Anthony Weber aboard a small cabin cruiser they shared on the Miami River last Oct. 1.

Deputy Constable Ken Wilson picked up Schissler in Victoria, Tex., where FBI agents arrested the former Baltimore resident last week.

Schissler, identified by the FBI as an Air Force deserter, was turned over to Miami homicide detectives for questioning.

Police here touched off a nationwide alert for the slender suspect after they found Weber's battered body on the cruiser a block away from Miami police headquarters.

'Triple Feature'

Miami Beach Post 85 will observe a triple celebration Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the American Legion Hall, 1828.

It will honor the 40th birthday of the American Legion, the 31st birthday of Post 85, and the past commanders of the post.

Jobless List Shows Slight Hike

By DOM BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

Dade County's yoyo-style employment, down in the summer and up in the season, has soared to a record 304,600 workers, the Florida State Employment Service reported Saturday.

With the crop-rich Redlands producing and the snazzier Gold Coast inns displaying 80 to 100 per cent occupancy, employment last month climbed 2,600 over the previous month.

Compared with the toe-numbing cold a year ago, February, 1959, gleamed with a 14,950 increase.

On the other side of the ledger, unemployment rose slightly. The jobless roll showed 23,700, an increase of 700.

"The bulk of the unemployment was caused by the seasonal high influx of out-of-state job seekers," the state agency said.

But the outlook, said state statisticians, is bright. They now figure Dade has safely recovered from its weather-recession woes of 1958.

Reflecting the same picture was a drop in unemployment insurance payments here.

Payments slumped from $560,820 in January to $407,845 in February, for a drop of $152,975.

This decrease in unemployment payments held true throughout the state.

Chairman James T. Vocelle, of the State Industrial Commission, reported that of 31 state employment offices, only three increased their benefits.

Statewide, there was a 24 per cent reduction in the number of new claims for unemployment compensation filed in February, compared to January.

Other South Florida decreases were:

Hollywood, down $14,026 to $55,542; Fort Lauderdale, down $12,382 to $55,956; West Palm Beach, down $11,140 to $52,861, and Key West, down $3 to $4,524.

Dade compares favorably with the rest of the nation with only 5.5 per cent of the workers idle. Nationally, the figure is six per cent.

Cancer Auxiliary Attacked

The Miami Cancer Institute may go to court to stop its Woman's Corps from operating separately under the leadership of what it said are a few women who "must rule or ruin."

Those women are "personally motivated," Leonard G. Egert, president of the institute, said Saturday in a letter to the reorganized auxiliary group which now calls itself the Woman's Cancer Corps.

The Woman's Corps, which provides financial support for the cancer-detecting organization, voted 81-9 to pull out of the institute earlier in the week.

The women complained that when they operated under the institute's charter as its auxiliary, they had no authority to determine how the money was spent.

They voted to continue supporting the institute, but to seek their own charter.

"We are prepared to fight for the preservation of this good right arm of the institute in the courts of law as well as at the bar of public opinion," Egert said.

"It is impossible to dissolve the Woman's Corps without the approval of the institute," he added.

Directors also voted to take legal action to stop the "splinter group" from using any name "which would be confusing or in violation of any rights acquired by the institute in the use of the name, 'Woman's Corps of the Cancer Institute at Miami.'"

Oxygen Too Late-- 'Trap' Claims Tot

By TOM LOWNES
Herald Staff Writer

"All he needs is a little oxygen."

An ambulance dispatcher spoke after emergency rescue equipment sped to a South Dade canal where little Mark McLendon, 2, toppled into the water Saturday.

But, although the ambulance arrived only minutes after Mark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. McLendon, 5389 SW 92nd Ave., was pulled from the canal across from his home—it was too late.

Mark McLendon

The blond, blue-eyed boy was dead.

"I tried to give him artificial respiration until the oxygen arrived," said Duncan Spurgeon, a neighbor. "But the little guy just couldn't breathe anymore."

Mark was the second child to die in three years in the abandoned canal — called "The Death Trap," by neighbors.

Drowned in the same canal Jan. 2, 1957, was Carl C. Martin, seven, son of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Martin, 5466 SW 89th Pl., neighbors of the McLendons.

Metro police said young Mark apparently wandered away while playing with his brother, Albert Jr., in their fenced-in backyard play pen shortly before noon.

Mrs. McLendon was visiting her nieghbor, Mrs. Ned Meredith, 5365 SW 92nd Ave.

"Mommy . . . Mommy," the older brother ran screaming to his mother. "Mark . . . Mark."

But friends who rushed to the scene were too late.

Said Mrs. Meredith: "I've called the county engineer's office time and time again. But they tell me there is nothing that can be done about it."

She said children attending nearby Blue Lakes Elementary School pass the canal daily.

"If they don't fence it in all around," Mrs. Meredith said, "mark my words: There will be other drownings."

The drowning was the 11th in Dade this year, according to Herald files — four in rock pits, two in swimming pools, the rest in rivers, canals and the ocean.

Services for the boy will be at 10 a.m., Tuesday, at Bess Memorial mortuary. Besides his parents and brother, the child is survived by his grandmothers, Mrs. J. A. McLendon and Mrs. Bertha Bryant, both of Miami.

Woman Dies

A South Dade woman and her pet parakeet died early Saturday in a fire that gutted her frame home at 500 SW Third Ave., Florida City.

Mrs. Lymona Roberts Shaw, about 50, was found lying near her front door — her head swathed in drapery cloth. She had apparently tried to filter the smoke, firemen said. The bird lay nearby.

Firemen said the blaze probably was caused by a lighted cigaret. Damage was estimated at about $3,000.

Little Orby Keeps Going Up . . . Up

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

"Who dat crawling up the wall?"

"Little Orby. Who else doing any wall climbing these days?"

All of a sudden Little Orby has taken off in a big way up and down walls, ceilings, and across dining room tables — where he leaves little round foot tracks in the applesauce.

Little Orby has been on the market for months — but it wasn't until recently that this fish-faced, plastic gimmick became the hottest thing on the Miami fad front since the hula hoop.

Little Orby is a round, plastic toy that has a built-in ability to crawl on almost anything you put him — including grandma's face.

(And grandma is getting discouraged about the whole craze.)

The responsibility for introducing Little Orby to Miami and elsewhere is Tigrett Industries of Jackson, Tenn. They put the gadgets on the market last year — and they were a big flop.

"You couldn't give 'em away," said the head of toy purchasing at the headquarters of a big drug store chain. "Now we have about 2,300 dozen in one warehouse and have placed an order for at least 500 dozen more."

Little Orby resembles an ultra-streamlined fish. He (or maybe 'she'?) has five little suction cups in his (or maybe her) innards which go clickety-clack when Junior sets Orby loose up the wall or across mommy's freshly baked pie — or across daddy.

This ambulatory quality of Little Orby's is what makes him so unpopular with parents and so very popular with the kids.

Little Orby is no respecter of television viewers, or music listeners-to, or bridge players —he just keeps climbin' and going clickety-clack, and leaving circular tracks on the walls.

Little Orby costs 99 cents and, as one distressed parent moaned: "It's worth twice the price not to buy it. Orby walked into my soup last night when I wasn't looking."

A Bird? A Plane? Nope, Little Orby

Worried by Younger Rivals, Women Asking for Surgery

Plastic surgery, the science by which a person's features can be altered, is more than a cosmetic art, says one of the world's great surgeons.

In this article he tells how his work can bring a new life and outlook to many with marred features. He also explodes some myths.

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

Dr. Neal Owen
. . . 'sympathetic aid'

An increasing number of elderly women are turning to plastic surgery these days as a means of meeting the competition of younger, attractive girls in the business world.

"If you can take off a few years through a face lift it's worth it," is a sentiment commonly voiced to Dr. Neal Owens, one of the nation's outstanding plastic surgeons.

Dr. Owens was in Miami Beach where he addressed members of the Southeastern Surgical Congress at the Deauville Hotel.

He is professor of plastic surgery at Tulane University.

While the doctor is sympathetic to women who seek plastic surgery as a means of holding on to their jobs, or in competition for advancement, he's more than a little irked with the popular conception that plastic surgery has a major purpose of reengineering faces for reasons of vanity.

And he emphasized to his colleagues that they should extend "more corrective and sympathetic aid to those people who need plastic surgery as a means of becoming useful members of society.

"The prime undertaking of plastic surgery—and let's call it 'reconstructive' not 'cosmetic' surgery—is to:

"(1) Attempt to restore function.

"(2) Rehabilitate the patient to a state of acceptable appearance so a once unsightly individual can take his place in business and society."

Restorative surgery can save thousands of people from becoming psychotic cases, from developing deep-seated emotional problems, he emphasized.

Citing instances of youngsters who had become withdrawn and on the verge of becoming "psychic cripples" because of extended ears, or other facial deformities, Dr. Owen reported that corrective surgery worked wonders in such cases.

He told of adults, some of advanced age, who were given a fresh approach to living through corrective plastic surgery.

And he had a few words for lay people who believe plastic surgery costs a fortune.

"If you have a child, a relative or a friend who needs this type of surgery, you will find that almost all plastic surgeons who are certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery are aware of their responsibilities.

"They will tailor their bills to meet the capabilities of the patient. And if it's a charity case, there are a number of clinics and individual surgeons who will do the work when it's proven a valid case of reconstructive surgery.

"This kind of necessary surgery should not be forestalled because someone has the idea it costs a fortune. The TV melodrama concept of a parent robbing a bank to provide funds for operation of a defaced child just is without basis. Clinics are available where this can be done at little cost."

He had a parting word to say about plastic surgeons.

"If you need one, be sure you choose a surgeon who is certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery. Don't be reluctant to ask to see the certification.

"A certified plastic surgeon must spend seven years of specialized work and study after medical school.

"I hold no brief for those who enter the field as plastic surgeons with a minimum of experience—some with virtually no specialized training."

Indiana Town Puts Quarantine on Itself

FOUNTAIN CITY, Ind.—(AP)—A tiny Indiana community observed a self-imposed quarantine over the weekend in an effort to stamp out twin scourges of flu and scarlet fever.

Even a basketball function, almost a "must" event in basketball-mad Hoosierland, was postponed.

Parties, meetings and church services were given up by the community of less than 1,000 during the three-day voluntary restriction that began Friday at the urging of Dr. D. R. Hutchison.

The doctor called for the quarantine when about one out of every five school children in the town were stricken with one of the two ailments and local schools shut down. Most of the youngsters, however, were suffering from influenza.

"I asked them to go on about their business doing essentials," Hutchison said, "but to limit meetings and other get-togethers and to keep their children at home.

"They were very quick to accept this," Hutchison said.

The community's response to the plea was an apparent measure of the faith and trust which it placed in Hutchison.

Marine Study Given $12,000

The National Science Foundation has awarded a $12,000 grant to the Marine Laboratory of the University of Miami for basic research on radium distribution in the waters of the Florida Straits, the Bahamas and the Caribbean area.

This work is to ascertain how fast radium escapes from the sediments on the bottom. Research will be conducted under the direction of Dr. Fritz Koczy, associate professor of oceanography.

Three to Attend Child Unit Meet

Chairman Mrs. L. J. McCaffrey, Mrs. Sydney Weintraub, and Dr. Stephen Wright, all of Miami, will attend a meeting of the Florida Children's Commission Monday and Tuesday in Jacksonville.

Top item on the agenda will be a discussion of recommendations to be made to the coming session of the Legislature.

What's Happening in Your Schools

Pork Barrel: A Boon to Schools

By PHIL MEYER
Herald Education Writer

MEYER

The U.S. government pork barrel — that symbolic container of the nation's wealth into which local communities are always dipping — has become a reality for Dade County schools.

School Lunch Accountant Vincent Constantino reported the receipt this month of $55,000 worth of federal aid for the school lunch program.

The amount came not in cash, but — you guessed it — in the form of 1,500 cases of quick-frozen, ground pork which the government bought, then decided it didn't need.

Though students can expect to eat a lot of pork the rest of the year, they shouldn't get tired of it, said Mrs. Dorothy Silivalja, school lunch supervisor.

The government, she said, thoughtfully provided a lot of pork recipes with the meat. Some sample items: pork loaf, pork pie, barbecued pork, pork pizza, pork patties, spaghetti and pork balls, and even pork chop suey.

"Also, we may serve just plain sausage," she added.

This and other windfalls from the U.S. have made the difference between breaking even and going in the red for the school lunch program, said Constantino.

"It's the main reason we've been able to hold down the prices of the lunch this far," he said.

Lunches cost 25 cents in elementary schools, 35 in high schools. However, they are free to kids who can't afford even that price, and an average of 1,772 free lunches are served every day, Constantino said. The cost runs about $8,500 a month, which is only a small percentage of the half-million-dollar monthly budget.

Parents qualify for the free lunches by submitting applications, giving their financial status in detail, to the school principal.

"No child goes hungry," said Mrs. Silivalja. "Not even if Pop spends the lunch money at a tavern. A hungry child can't learn."

Children getting free food avoid embarrassment by being served in the same line with the other kids, she said. The cashier knows who they are and simply waves them on through the line.

Some schools make cards available to children who pay in advance and these are also issued to the charity recipients. Then there's no way the other kids can tell who pays and who doesn't, she said.

A Budget-Juggling Job

James McDonald: Textbook Watchdog

By PHIL MEYER
Herald Education Writer

Keeping track of the free textbook program in Dade County is a penny-pinching, budget-juggling job.

So naturally, the School Board has hired a man with a good Scot name — James McDonald — to run the tight-fisted operation.

McDonald handles the 1¼ million state-owned books now being used by Dade pupils. Though that's a lot of books—if laid end to end they would stretch from south of South Miami to north of North Miami Beach — it's a problem to make them go around.

The books are bought from state allotments which last year netted Dade about $400,000. But since the allotments are always based on enrollment of the previous year, fast-growing Dade always seems to be a little behind.

Will we ever run out of money?

"It hasn't happened yet, but it could," said McDonald.

Each school figures its own book needs each summer according to its share of the money available. If it finds it can't get along on that share, it can go into the red and the difference is made up from other schools, McDonald said.

The trick is to figure in June how many of which books should be ordered for delivery in September. "We can't afford any wrong guesses," he said.

To make the book budget stretch, Dade pupils use the texts until they fall apart. This takes four to five years on the average.

Books that get lost or wear out too soon due to abuse must be paid for by students. A total of $24,000 was paid for lost or damaged books last year, McDonald said.

Biggest payment came from Miami Beach High. It was $2,200.

"Either those kids are conscientious about turning in the money, or they tear up an awful lot of books over there," said McDonald.

He is looking hopefully for the results of an experimental plan being tried at South Miami Junior High. There, students keep their books at home, and at school they use duplicate copies which remain in the classroom.

"Most of the wear and tear comes when the books are carried back and forth," he said. "The South Miami plan seemed to work pretty well the first year. The books came back in much better condition than usual at the end of the term."

Though Dade schools are getting by now, McDonald is worried about the state budget commission's proposal for a six million dollar book appropriation for the next two years. The State Department of Education had recommended 8.5 million dollars.

"I don't see how six million dollars can be spread around the state without things being worse than they are now," he said.

His Luck Is Better

DETROIT — (AP) — Kermit Schell's luck has taken a turn for the better.

Schell, a factory worker, lost his car when it was demolished in an accident several months ago. His wife, Ruth, was hospitalized for a major operation two months ago.

Two weeks ago the 50-year-old Schell was hospitalized for treatment of an ulcer.

Friday Schell was awarded the $2,500 first prize in the employe suggestion program at the auto plant where he works. He suggested a new plan for painting auto fenders.

Thief? Not Me! Says Vet, 85

PRAIRIE DU CHIEN, Wis. — (AP) — An 85-year-old retired woodsman who wants to "die peaceably," is trying to have erased from his military service record a blot that dates back more than 50 years.

George Harrington has asked local veterans' service officers to help him prove innocence of a charge that he stole a pair of shoes valued at 50 cents while serving with the Army in California at the turn of the century.

Harrington says he did not steal the shoes but could not prove it at the time of his arrest. He was dishonorably discharged after serving two years in military prison for theft. He now lives at a nursing home here.

Kids Are the Same in Russia, Young Miami Traveler Learns

By JOY REESE SHAW
Herald Staff Writer

Brody Price Prepares His New Snack

. . . caviar and crackers replace peanut butter and jelly

Kids are pretty much the same wherever you find them—in Moscow or in Miami.

That's the considered opinion of 13-year-old Broderick Price, 4775 SW 82nd St., who just got back from checking this out.

Brody is the youngster who played the juvenile lead, co-starring with Frank Lovejoy, in the recent Coconut Grove Playhouse production of "Hole in the Head."

The seventh grade Ponce de Leon Junior High student took the money he earned from his acting role to hitchhike a ride with Pop to USSR and learn his geography first hand.

George Price is a Pan American pilot who had long planned a trip into Russia—and took Brody along.

"We figured it would be good to see for ourselves what it's all about."

Among other things, the Prices visited a Russian school where Brody wound up making a speech. They invited him to.

It was non-political.

"I told them about how wonderful and warm it is in Miami—and how you can work and play outside if you want to — and about American schools and subjects."

His report on the kids: Friendly and curious.

They made him an honorary member of the Red Pioneers—a sort of Russian boy scout organization. He exhibited a pin proudly.

Brody found:

The weather cold with snow banks everywhere. "It wasn't up to freezing the whole time we were there—but it's funny. I didn't feel the cold much."

No trouble getting through customs.

"They didn't even open our suitcases."

The hotels — comfortable.

"Good beds and hot water—but not exactly Miami Beach."

The food good.

"I loved Bleanie—that's pancakes with sour cream."

A strong nationlism.

"You feel Stalin and Lenin."

The Russians very artistic.

"I went to a puppet show that was just the most terrific thing I've ever seen. I understood it even if it was in Russian."

That housing is the key problem.

"No common person has a real home of his own — but they showed us many building projects."

Brodie wants to grow up to become an aeronautical engineer. At 13 he's "retired" from the stage after two roles at the Playhouse.

"It's great—but takes too much time for a scholoboy. I figure I can try my hand at theater later, when I'm older."

He hopes, however that he played a small part in better international relationships — in a real life role.

"At least we let them see what an American father and son looked like — I don't know if they got a good impression or not, but we hope so," he grinned.

Brody's conclusion: Communism's OK for the Russians, Democracy is OK for the Americans.

"We're a very open-minded family," he announced.

40 Per Cent Flunk 'Test'

HONOLULU — (AP) — Men who volunteer for Antarctic duty want to grow beards, be heroes — and be able to say they haven't seen a woman for a year.

So when two airline stewardesses landed at McMurdo Sound and judged a beard-growing contest, said Rear Adm. George J. Dufek, only 40 per cent of the men turned out to see them.

Dufek commanded U.S. support forces for Operation Deep Freeze in the Antarctic. He leaves today for Washington and retirement from the Navy. No woman has yet reached the South Pole.

On Kwajalein Isle in Pacific

ICBM Defense Base Planned

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — The U.S. will soon build a base on Kwajalein Island in the Central Pacific for testing defenses against intercontinental ballistic missiles, it was revealed Saturday.

The base will be near the Atomic Energy Commission's testing ground in Bikini and Eniwetok. The Nike-Zeus and possibly other types of anti-missiles weapons are expected to be tested.

Plans for the installation have been developed under a security label. The Army and Navy made available only the barest details in answer to questions.

There was no comment whatever on reports Kwajalein will be part of the Pacific missile range which has headquarters near Los Angeles.

"Planned facilities for the range are classified," the Navy said.

There was room for speculation, however, that in the future anti-ICBMs might be fired from Kwajalein in test attempts to intercept Atlas or Titan ballistic missiles launched from the U.S. West coast.

Kwajalein is about 4,500 miles from Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif.

The Navy gave a glimpse of the Kwajalein plan when asked why it was closing its station there but planning to contract with civilians for continued operation of the airbase.

The civilians, the Navy said, will be needed not only for running a Military Air Transport Base but for "certain activities related to research and testing of anti-ballistic missiles."

The Army, which is developing the Nike-Zeus, filled in more details.

It said construction work will start July 1. That is the first day of the new fiscal year and presumably the first day the necessary money will be available.

The Army said there would be 1,000 persons working on the project, 40 military, the remainder civilians.

UM Party Got the Birds in Africa

By PHIL MEYER
Herald Staff Writer

For four months a University of Miami instructor lived in the wilds of Africa under the protection of machine-gun armed guards, while curious natives stared at him from the bushes.

And now Dr. Oscar Owre, a UM zoologist, is waiting nervously for the prizes of his hunt to show up.

"We got 1,400 birds," he said after his arrival last week. "But they're still somewhere between here and Nairobi."

The UM bird hunters used shotguns loaded with fine dust shot — "it hardly leaves a hole"—to nab most of their birds. Nets and traps were used to snare a few of the low-flying breeds.

"We'll have the world's most complete collection of birds from the Lake Rudolph area," said Owre, who spent most of the trip traveling along the shore of the isolated 180-mile-long lake.

"Other expeditions have gone in there, looked around and come right back out again. We stayed."

An airstrip built just for them by an African travel agency made the extended stay possible, he said. "We were able to live very nicely. But we'd never have made it if we had to carry all our own supplies."

The UM party, included Dennis R. Paulson, graduate assistant, industrialist Robert E. Maytag, who financed the trip, and Capt. John Harms, who was in charge of 32-foot Nova Scotian lobster boat which was hauled overland to the lake for use as a floating lab.

They penetrated to some of Africa's wildest country, Owre said, including sections of north Kenya which are normally closed to the white man.

"The British government provided troops for our protection during that part of the trip," he said.

"A couple dozen of them carried machine guns and all sorts of formidable weapons. Lots of natives peeked at us through the bushes, but with all the soldiers around nobody wanted to start anything."

They made friends with some of the natives, including the primitive El Molo, who live entirely on fish.

"They were just about the most primitive group I think you could find. They live in low straw huts plastered with dung. We taught them to fish with a line, though they prefer spears and nets."

In addition to birds, the UM expedition collected fish, which went to the British Museum. Hydrographic data on Lake Rudolph also was gathered.

Though Owre got back last week, it will be a while before his 1,400 birds, preserved as skeletons and skins, show up.

"They'll go from Nairobi to Mombassa by rail and from there to Jacksonville by a slow freighter," he said. "I don't know when I'll see them again."

11th Year of Band-Camp

UM Offers Fun and Music

Teenage musicians will be offered five weeks of musical training and vacation fun at the University of Miami Summer Band Camp this summer for the 11th year.

A band laboratory and workshop, with courses in applied music, also will be offered for bandmasters.

The camp, which opens June 14 and continues until July 18, is built around a training program that provides instruction on all instruments and participation in all phases of band work.

Besides the band instruction, which includes baton twirling and dancing for high school majorettes, the schedule provides a full program of sports, recreational, social and religious activities. Highlight of each week is the Sunday public concert presented by the band students.

Campers either may live on the UM campus or participate as day campers while living at home.

Fred McCall, director of UM bands, is chief administrator. Instructors include Otto Kraushaar, Laurence Tremblay, William Russell, Barth Bennit, Charles Knight, John Coleman, William Clark, William Bennett, Melvin Baker, Janis Wadsworth, Ernest Cowley and Paul Cremaschi.

One-Man Dice Shooter Freed

MEMPHIS — (AP) — One by one, five of the six men accused of shooting dice proclaimed their innocence before City Judge Beverly Boushe.

When it came George Drake's turn he hesitated and mumbled: "Well, I guess I'm the only one who was shooting."

Said the judge: "Drake, you can go. I'm fining everybody else $11 for witnessing the first one-man dice game in history."

76 Trombones? Yep, and 98 Candidates

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Presidential hopefuls of both parties, congressmen with relatives on their payrolls, and bearded Fidel Castro were joshed Saturday night at the 47th annual dinner of newspaperdom's famed Gridiron Club.

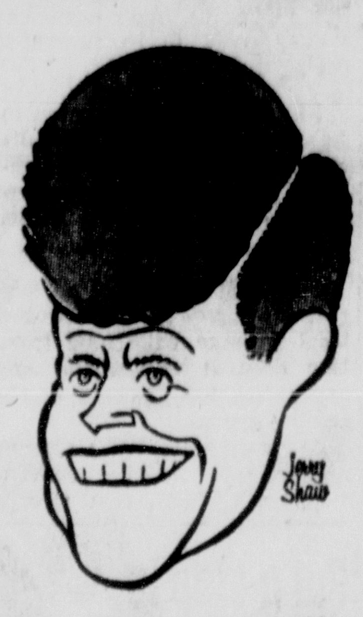
President Eisenhower, Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan, ex-White House Adviser Sherman Adams, and the Defense Department's brass and braid also came in for their share of needling at the gala affair which featured skits and songs with members of the club impersonating the high and mighty.

Many of the satirized targets were among the 500 distinguished dinner guests which included Supreme Court and cabinet members, top diplomats, government officials, congressmen and other prominent figures from various walks of life.

The President himself was not present, however, having declined an invitation as he had for several years past.

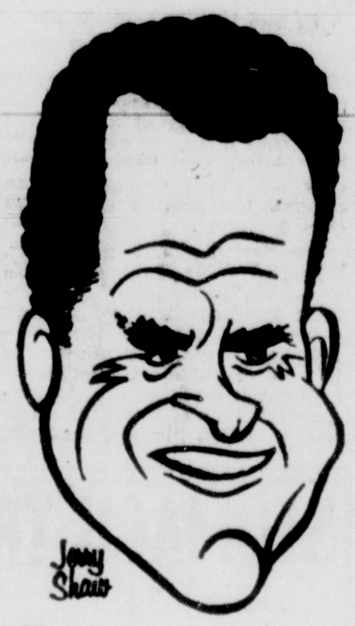
The dinner was held at the Hotel Statler Hilton. Accompaniment for the song parodies was provided by the U.S. Marine Band orchestra under the leadership of Lt. Col. Albert F. Schoepper, who is also the Gridiron Club's music director.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Sens. John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.), Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), Stuart Symington (D., Mo.) and two-time Democratic Presidential Candidate Adlai E. Stevenson came in for tongue-in-the-cheek treatment because of their unavowed presidential aspirations.



Sen. John Kennedy

. . . papa's lyrics



Richard M. Nixon

. . . the blues

To the rollicking tune of "76 Trombones," the club chorus burst forth:

"Ninety-eight lined up for the White House race
With the flush of a candidate on each face
Nominees by the rows and rows of political virtuosos,
Running madly for first place."
"There'll be 98 contenders
by convention time,
Thundering, thundering, louder than before,
Candidates of every size,
Are trying hard to hypnotize
The voters who decide the final score."

The Democratic contenders were spoofed in a scene set in Johnson's "Big Chance Casino" purportely in Las Vegas where odds were listed against the various candidates.

In the Republican phase, a bedraggled set of survivors of the 1958 election were shown trying to erect a "Bridge on the River Quail" stretching from Gettysburg, Pa., to former Treasury Secretary Humphrey's Thomasville, Ga., plantation.

Here is how the barbs were planted:

Kennedy (with his wealthy father portrayed as singing to "All of Us.")

"All of us
Why not take all of us
Fabulous
You can't live without us."

Johnson:

"I'm the top
I'm the U.S. Senate
I'm the top
Take a vote—I'll win it"

Symington:

"I hear voices and there's no one there.
I see visions made of just thin air
Only Harry Truman seems to care—
I wonder why
Could it be I?"

Stevenson:

"Just one more chance
When Ike is not my competition
When Dick or Rock's the opposition
Just one more chance."

Nixon:

"Now, now I'm opposed
Now, now when the fight begins
I dream of the might-havebeens
This nearly was mine."

Rockefeller:

"I'll pitch my tent
Where Richard Nixon thought he should of went
Love that rock a fella
A really true blue chip."

The impersonator of Castro turned up singing "How are you fixed for blades?"

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. —(AP)— Sam Scott, 42, of nearby Robstown, was completely buried for 10 minutes when a cesspool he was digging caved in on him.

His newphew, Wayne Muckelroy, 20, of Robstown frantically clawed loose sand from Scott's head until it was cleared. Oxygen was fed him through a tube and mask until the sand could be dug away from his chest.

Airmen Show Love for Town

SALINA, Kan. — (AP) — Schilling Air Force Base took official notice of the unusually harmonious relationship between the base and city of Salina.

Look How Much YOU Owe, Pal

If Dade County residents suddenly had to pay off their share of city, county and state debts it would cost each of us $308.70, the U.S. Department of Commerce reported Saturday.

That payoff is the per capita figure for Florida's 1.269 billion dollars in public debt, the department said.

The Florida total was highest in the southeast and 16th in the nation comparing with $606.61 for every resident of New York State (highest) and $80.31 in South Dakota (lowest).

Odum to Explain Bill

Option Plan Briefing on Tap

TALLAHASSEE —(UPI)— The Bailey-Ervin parent-option tuition plan of avoiding forced integration will be outlined to school officials at the annual Florida Education Association convention in Tampa this week.

Assistant Attorney General Ralph Odum, top expert on segregation law, will explain the bill at a meeting of school board officials Thursday morning, preceding opening of the FEA's three-day session that afternoon.

The bill, which Attorney General Richard Ervin and State School Superintendent Thomas D. Bailey will recommend to the Legislature, permits parents to withdraw their children from integrated schools and get a state subsidy or about $240 a year to educate them privately.

The School Board members and State Association of County School Superintendents will start their annual meetings Wednesday. The superintendents will discuss problems of over-crowding on buses.

Principal business before the FEA, the voice of teachers in Florida, is election of a new president and adoption of a legislative program.

Mrs. Evelyn Sewell, Jacksonville school teacher, is the only announced nominee so far to succeed outgoing president Phillip Constans of Gainesville. But numerous other nominees are expected to be presented during the convention.

The legislative program to be offered the convention calls mainly for measures to improve the ability of the counties to get additional funds for operation of their schools.

The program offers no suggestions of where the increased local revenue will come from. Nor does it recommend any pay raises for teachers in the coming session.

Approximately 7,000 persons are expected at the convention, with U. S. Sen George Smathers, Bailey and Dr. Norman Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review of Literature the main speakers.

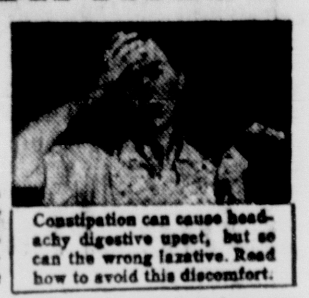
Gov. LeRoy Collins will introduce Smathers for a Friday night address. Bailey will speak Friday night and Cousins Thursday night.

Club Speaker

Charles Eagle Plume will speak at the Flamingo Dinner club Friday about "Anthropology and Ancient American Customs." The meeting will be in the Miami Woman's club building at 7:30 p.m.

Put a stop to "CONSTIPATION MISERY"!

No need to suffer headachy after-laxative distress and digestive upset



Constipation can cause headachy digestive upset, but so can the wrong laxative. Read how to avoid this discomfort.

Many people have found it is quite unnecessary to endure cramps and other miserable results of taking a laxative. They find it easy to avoid that "washed-out" feeling next day. At the same time they get much prompter, more dependable results than with other laxatives.

The formula they use is Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, a pure vegetable "prescription" that contains the ingredient "of greatest value" for relieving the over-tenseness of the intestines present in most constipation. Another ingredient it contains acts to promote the flow of intestinal lubricant to soften the dry, hardened wastes. There is no griping, no discomfort. No upset stomach because it does not act in the stomach but in the bowel lower down.

Is there any wonder these tablets were 58% more effective than 6 other laxatives in hospital test?

Don't let constipation worry you when you can get gentle, effective Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at any drug store in town. Get the large size for economy.

Songwriting Firemen Haven't Stopped Work

One Hit's Not a Living, Say Wives of Tunesters

What's it like when the first song you ever wrote makes a hit?

In the case of firemen Jim Conway and Joe Farrell, it's spurring them on to new successes But their wives say they've been goofing off on their part-time jobs.

By MARCIE FEINGOLD
Herald Staff Writer

"Tomboy" tunesters Jim Conway and Joe Farrell can't get a note in edgewise these days. Their wives are doing all the singing.

Ever since the songwriting firemen had their first taste of sweet success — when Perry Como bought their saucy ballad for his TV show — they've been goofing off. At least that's what the wives say.

Until they sold "Tomboy," Joe worked part time as a rug cleaner and exterminator and Jim ran a photo business on days off from the fire station.

But now that the songwriting bug has bitten, both boys spend all their spare time down at the fire station with a dilapidated old piano banging out music.

"Joe better go out and get a job," jokes Kathaleen Farrell. "It takes more than a fireman's salary to feed our six youngsters."

Kathaleen says "Tomboy" was not written for her even though she used to play basketball when she was younger.

"Why he hasn't written a thing for me!" she exclaims. "Not even when we were just dating."

But Rose Conway coyly admits Hubby Jim has penned a lot of little poems for her in the last few months—even though he hasn't written her a song.

The songwriting duo turns out a finished tune in a couple of hours. Conway does the lyric while Farrell writes the music. Since they marketed "Tomboy," they have completed 16 new songs.

Conway and Farrell have returned from New York, where they made the rounds of music publishing houses. They took their 16 songs with them and left two with Como and two with Pat Boone for "consideration."

"They haven't sent them back yet," says Jim. "At least that's a good sign."

Their list, "Tomboy," has sold 300,000 records. But the royalties won't start flowing in until August.

The songwriters net a penny on every record sold, so they've made $3,000 so for. In addition, they have a contract which gives them three cents for every piece of sheet music sold and 50 per cent of all other income received from the tune.

Right now the enterprising composers are trying to get Mayor Robert King High's new recording company, Vak, to buy some of their tunes.

Train in Town

These buildings in downtown Olympia, Wash., didn't have to go meet the train—it met them. The freight cannonballed into the Union Depot, top, the China Cafe, bottom, and three adjacent buildings. One man was killed and several others injured. The pictures were taken Saturday, after workers with machine spent all night trying to clean up the debris.

Bridge Expert Ruled Out of Tournament

STONE

SEATTLE —(AP)— Bridge Expert Tobias Stone of New York City was barred from play by the American Contract Bridge League at the start of its spring national tournament here Saturday.

Stone, member of the U.S. team defeated by Italy in the world bridge championships last year, was accused by league directors of conduct unbecoming a member.

Lee Hazen, league counsel, said the action barred Stone from competing in league-sanctioned tournaments pending a hearing at the next directors' meeting in Chicago.

Stone, who had planned to compete in several events in the spring tournament, declined comment.

Stone and league directors have engaged in a dispute since the U.S. team lost to Italy in Lake Como, Italy, in 1958. The board then accused him of discourtesy toward the Italians and barred him from international competition for one year from Aug. 2, 1958.

Last November Stone filed a $250,000 suit for defamation against the directors in New York's Supreme Court.

In its new action, the board accused Stone of making false statements concerning the directors.

Stone had been expected to play in the Vanderbilt team championship, in which a victory would qualify him to play in a world bridge Olympiad in Rome in 1960.

Competition in the spring national was to begin with play in the men's and women's pairs. Tournament play will end March 22, except for the Vanderbilt Cup competition, which will run a day or two longer.

Ballet Russe's Program Sparkles

By DORIS RENO
Herald Music Editor

A Ballet Review

The Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo presented a fresh, delectable program, all splendidly danced, as its opener in a three-day stand in this area this weekend.

This company, which has visited Miami more frequently than any other, appears to be in a major renaissance, for its principal dancers and corps de ballet are all in wonderful form this season — dancing with a new exuberance, and presenting well-trimmed-up ballets that go like a breeze.

The enthusiastic house — sold out to the last seat — got two new ballets last night — the wonderfully attractive "Slavonic Dances," which is being taken on tour for the first time, and "Ballet Imperial," an absolutely charming Balanchine ballet which has been revived this season after many years out of the repertoire.

The "Ballet Imperial," whch is perfectly set to the music of Tchaikovsky's Second Piano Concerto, featured the company's prima ballerina, Nina Novak, in a role that seems made for her superior technical excellence and fine classical style. She was partnered by Alan Howard.

Both Miss Novak and Howard were in sparkling form, and did all kinds of technical tours de forces that brought the work to full pulsing life. Other solo dancers, all of whom distinguished themselves in this ballet, were Irina Borowska, Eugene Collins and Kenneth Gillespie.

The solo piano was expertly handled by the company's long-time pianist, Rachel Chapman.

The "Slavonic Dances," choreographed by Edmund Novak, consists of an exciting suite of widely varied numbers with contemporary choreography of a very fresh, vivid kind.

Novak was one of the principal dancers in the flashing Saber Dance, and partnered Irina Kovalska in the charmingly folkish Lowicki Dances.

An excellent new soloist in the company, Eleanor d'Antuono, was poetically youthful in her solo dance, "The Girl and the Birds," and the Country Railroad scene was done with an effectively stylized humor. The whole thing wound up with a set of rousing Russian Dances.

The customes for this — as for everything — were new and spanking-fresh, and the whole thing went with a bounce and a bang.

Miss Borowska shone in her role of the Swan Queen in "Swan Lake," for she was both warm and technically fine. George Zoritch, the company's premier danseur, danced beautifully as the Prince, and Roy Harsh was a well-cast Friend.

Eugene Slavin did some beautiful leaps and turns in the "Pas de Trois Classique," another Balanchine work, in which he was partnered by Gertrude Tyven and Paula Tennyson. All of the dancers have gone several steps up the ladder, technically and stylistically, since we saw them last.

The program at 8:30 p.m. tonight in Miami Beach will be the last open to the public. Ballets scheduled are "Les Sylphides," "Variations Classiques," Le Beau Danube," and the Grand Pas de Deux from "Don Quixote" which will be Miss Novak and Mr. Zoritch's solo vehicle.

The program Monday night in Dade County auditorium will be for members of Civic Music Association only.

Workers Don Chains In Protest

BLOOMFIELD, N.J. —(AP)— Evelen workers remained chained to a pillar in the General Electric plant Saturday, protesting the company's plan for what they termed an April Fool's Day shutdown.

GE intends to move most of the plant's operations to the south after April 1.

Nearly a score of the workers linked themselves together with a chain and rolled out a banner from fourth floor windows, proclaiming "we want the right to work."

They said they would remain chained in the building until ejected forcibly. A group of them left during the night, however. The reason for the departure was not explained.

Those who stayed in the plant played cards and took turns sleeping on a pile of felt in a corner.

The thin chain was wrapped around their wrists or bodies. It had no locks.

Air-Dropped Pump Keeps Boat Afloat

By GREG TAYLOR
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — A pump, dropped by parachute from an airplane 300 feet up, landed neatly on the outrigger of a 52-foot yacht, 17 miles off Fort Lauderdale Saturday. The pump enabled the crew to keep the boat afloat until the Coast Guard took the craft in tow.

Lt. Cmdr. Russell Lentner of the Coast Guard base at Dinner Key piloted the plane which dropped the pump and a gasoline motor to the cabin cruiser, Mister Jim.

Capt. Edward Twist, 52, and his son, Donald, 24, were the only persons aboard the yacht, which developed trouble on its way to Bimini. They live at 4580 SW 34th Ter., Fort Lauderdale.

"The chute hit right on the outrigger," said Donald Twist. "It was the best shot I've ever seen."

The Twists sent a distress signal at 8:30 a.m. The line which discharges water from the engine's cooling system broke. The engine room was about three quarters full of water before the pump was dropped.

"We spotted them about 9:18 a.m.," Cmdr. Lentner said. "I saw the two of them up top with life jackets on. They had a raft over the side."

A 'Hopeless' Fight, But Jerry Won

Jerry Chapin and Pal Timothy
. . . his wheelchair is his stage

By MARCIE FEINGOLD
Herald Staff Writer

The doctors told him he would never be able to get out of bed—that he would never again have the use of his hands or arms. But Jerry Chapin was determined not to accept their verdict as final.

Delighted laughter when Chapin performed a puppet show the other day was evidence that he has won his battle.

But what really thrilled Chapin is that his audience didn't suspect that the stage they were looking at was a wheelchair and that behind the curtain was a man strapped to the chair to keep him from falling out.

"It was the first time I have been able to perform without the public knowing I'm handicapped," said Chapin. "When they applauded I knew they were really enjoying the show, not just sorry for me. It was a great personal triumph."

When Jerry performs a framework is placed around the wheel chair, completely hiding him from view.

In his hands, four foot "Timothy," dressed in a bright polka-dotted clown suit, comes alive on the wheelchair stage.

Chapin was stricken with polio in 1946, a few months after he was discharged from the Navy.

In 10 days the six-foot, six-inch 180-pound frame wasted away to 85 pounds. Three times he pushed back death.

In 1950 he entered the University of Miami. By this time, he had mastered wheelchair living. But he was restricted to classes in ground level rooms.

One of these classes just happened to be a course in puppetry. So, by chance, Jerry began his professional career.

Combining his puppetry, advertising and drama courses for an advertising project, he constructed a puppet, dramatized a play and staged an advertising puppet show for an exterminating company.

For several years, Chapin concentrated on making puppets and gained a national reputation. But, he could not manipulate his puppets because he could not lift his arms.

Then came Lee, a professional puppeteer. Chapin went to see one of her shows, they met, and a year later were married.

Lee knew a type of puppet that Jerry could manipulate.

With the "marote" puppet, Chapin's arms and hands become the puppet's arms and hands. Some actions are remote-controlled. A tape recorder and amplifier are used for music and trick effects.

How's the Season? Ask Those Who Make Living at It

From South Beach to Surfside, from cabbie to waitress to bellhop — tourist mecca Miami Beach was "smiling again Saturday

For most of those in the service fields — whose income depends largely on generous-tipping tourists — it's been a pretty fair season.

Not as good a one as three years ago but a far cry from the frigid 1958 winter.

WAITRESS Neva Yeo, Cock Robin Restaurant:

"O.K. I did all right last year, too. It's been a good season so far. I'm hopeful for the same this month. You hear a lot of complaints and bellyaches, and I suppose many of those are justified. But as for myself: I haven't been crying —not too loudly, anyway.

"One thing, though: We've got a different class of tourist down now. That's very noticeable in the tips they leave. If you know what I mean."

BELL CAPTAIN Edwin Maguire, Algiers Hotel:

"Up—but just barely up over last season. But I can't really kick. There has been more traffic (tourists) this year, but your real spenders are missing. Don't get me wrong: the tips are there—but they're not the tips we used to get.

"We are definitely noticing a different class of tourist coming in. Used to be, nobody counted his change when you broke a buck (dollar bill) for him. Now everybody does."

CRUISE CAPTAIN Kelley McElyea, Sightseeing Boats:

"Business? Good. Tips? No comment, other than to say they have been better. The traffic (tourist flow) is here—but the money isn't. I mean, they're (visitors) spending, but they're watching what they're spending on.

"Tipping and spending on cruises are down from other seasons—but certainly up from last year. There's also a big increase in tourists this year over last season."

DOORMAN Don Waite, Royal York Hotel:

"Better than last year—but far below standard. The big tips are gone. The big spenders are no more. There are too many hotels, too many doormen. To tell you the truth, we've reached the saturation point on the Beach, so far as those in our field making any real money."

MERCHANT Libby Margol, 705 Washington Ave.:

"Not as high as it should be, but business has been good. No comparison at all with last year's slow season. For us, the season started to move around Christmas. It's been steady ever since.

"Nothing spectacular in sales—but nothing to cry about, either."

CABBIE Eli J. Lieberman:

"Up—but just a little. I don't like to paint a dark picture, but a check on most of the boys in this (taxi) business will show that they are really grinding to make a living. It's been rough—but it was rougher last year.

"Believe it or not—the hotels are killing us. They have their own courtesy cars now. Nightclub package tours are putting more and more people on private buses to haul them around. Still, March may be O.K., yet."

NEWSSTAND VENDOR Don Darvis, 73rd St. and Collins Ave.:

"O.K. About the same as last year. Not losing. Gaining a little. Different crowd, though. Very noticeable. Penny-watchers. Your real tourist is gone—from this part of the Beach, anyway.

"It's been steady so far. Looking for March to be good, too. The weather definitely made it for us this year. Without it—I'd probably be peddling shoelaces today."

METER-CHECKER Mrs. Pat Powers, City of Miami Beach street parking department:

"Handing out more tickets this year—if that's any indication of a good season or not. Good for me; bad for those who get the tickets. Traffic has been heavy right up to last week.

"No slow down in violators, though—just as tricky as last year. They've been keeping me busy. I guess you might say I'm having a 'good' season—but don't quote me."

VD Gains Reported In Dade

Veneral disease is on the rise in Dade County — and in the face of reports from other areas that penicillin, the top drug used in fighting it, may be losing some of its effectiveness.

Health authorities here do not consider the present rate of climb too alarming. It is still not out of line with the increase of population.

But they warn that the campaign against VD must be stepped up. Local authorities have been meeting to this end with a visitnng official from the Atlanta, Ga., office of the United States Public Health service.

Purpose is to develop a new system so that field workers can take blood samples from large groups suspected of having been exposed to syphillis, without first sending them in to the public health laboratories. Too frequently they fail to make that promised trip to the laboratory.

Gonorrhea, the disease which some experts now believe is developing bacterium resistant to penicillin, increased here in 1958, after having declined steadily since 1952. There were 1,498 cases here last year.

Syphillis also continued to show more cases, 58 as against 30 for the previous year.

The figures are from Dr. Lee Elgin, director of venereal control for the Dade County Health Department. Both he and Dr. T. E. Cato, health commissioner, said the penicillin treatment is still effective here.

Beef Rushed To Sudan

NAIROBI, Kenya — (AP) — Operation "Corned Beef" has been launched by the Kenya Meat Commission to help hundreds of Sudanese struck down by an epidemic of protein deficiency.

The epidemic, which is heaviest in the Upper Nile region of Sudan, has already put more than 500 people in the hospital.

M. P. Guido, of the U.S. consulate in Khartoum, flew to Nairobi on behalf of the U.S. operative mission to Sudan to buy vitamin supplies. He bought 34 tons of corned beef.

'Lovable' Man Called A Thief

CHICAGO — (UPI) — A bank cashier and a steel company executive were named in an FBI complaint Saturday on charges of misapplication of funds from the suburban Bank of Lyons, where investigation showed a shortage of more than $400,000.

The cashier, Rudolph Belasick, 34, was described by his boss as "the most lovable character you'd ever want to see."

Named with him, and charged specifically only with the misapplication of a $13,000 check issued by Belasick Oct. 21, was Alvin A. Schultz, 42, president of the Knox Steel and Wire Co.

The two were ordered brought before U. S. Commissioner C. S. Bentley Pike.

The complaint, drawn by a special agent for the FBI, said the check was "one of many" made payable to Schultz at his request.

In all, the complaint continued, more than $400,000 in such checks was issued to Schultz by Belasick over a 2½-year period.

And Give Advice

2 Metro Officials To Address Meeting

Metro's two top-ranking officials will tell the Urban County Congress in Washington Monday how Dade County is faring with its pioneering attempt at county-city federation.

Metro Commission Chairman Walter Weiss and County Manager O. W. Campbell will be lead-off speakers at the congress, first ever sponsored by the National Association of County Officials.

"We will tell the convention briefly how Metro got started, and offer some advice to other areas which may be considering the same step," Weiss said.

"One thing I would advise is for any future Metros around the country to have it clear from the start what its taxing powers are," Weiss added. "Our own powers to levy taxes other than ad valorem is still in doubt, and this situation is hampering Dade County's Metro."

The bulk of Weiss' and Campbell's time on the rostrum will be spent in answering questions from the anticipated 1,000 delegates to the convention.

Three Anti-Integration Bills May Get Legislature Backing

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — The Florida Legislature, faced with prospects of first integration in the public schools next fall, appears set to strengthen state laws against race mixing in its 1959 session, opening April 7.

An Associated Press poll combined with indivudal interviews with key legislators, indicates the Legislature likely will pass these type bills:

1. A PARENT OPTION tuition plan, which would authorize a parent to withdraw his child from an integrated school and send him to a non-church private school, with aid of a state subsidy.

2. A "LAST RESORT" or "local option" bill which would authorize voters of any county to close public schools, by a referendum, to avoid integration.

3. STRENGTHENED pupil assignment law, which will provide added criteria, drawn from Alabama's pupil placement act, upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Mechanics of the bills are still being worked out, and financing is still a major problem, but sentiment appears to have jelled in the direction of giving Florida a stronger hand to deal with the race problem.

Another related proposal with strong support, particularly in the Senate, is an independent school plan which would create a board to set academic standards for private schools. The plan also calls for spending of state funds on scholarships for pupils to attend private schools.

An AP poll of legislators in December showed strong sentiment for stronger laws in the racial field, but many were on the fence at that time.

Since then there have been two important factors which helped sentiment to jell. One was the collapse of Virginia's massive resistance program. The other was the recent action of the Dade County School Board in voting to admit four Negro children to a white elementary school in Miami.

House Speaker Designate Thomas D. Beasley said the Dade action, coming so soon before the session was "badly timed" and stirred legislators into proposing stronger legislation than would have been advanced otherwise.

Other legislators took the opposite viewpoint, that the Dade action strengthened Florida's pupil assignment law, and made other legislation unnecessary.

The segregation battle is due to erupt almost as soon as the Legislature gets under way. Some leaders say the battle should be over in the first two weeks. They said that if the fight is prolonged it could degenerate into a bitter, personal level and put a cloud over the whole 60-day session.

Storer Buys 8th Station

Miami broadcaster George B. Storer acquired his eighth radio station Saturday, but was faced with selling at least one of his other seven to meet federal regulations. The new station is KPOP, of Los Angeles. Purchase price was reported to be $900,000.

The sale was approved by the Federal Communications Commission pending disposal of another station. The FCC has ruled no broadcaster can own and operate more than seven stations.

Besides five television stations, and the Miami Marlins baseball club, Storer also owns radio stations WAGA, Atlanta; WIBG, Philadelphia; WJBK, Detroit; WJW, Cleveland; WSPD, Toledo; WWVA, Wheeling, W. Va.; and WGBS, Miami.

Storer is attending the annual National Association of Broadcasters convention in Chicago.

Across

1—A novelist usually has a better chance of success if he makes his story a LIVELY one (Likely). —If it's LIVELY, the story will be of interest in itself. If it's but LIKELY, it may be about something which, though LIKELY, is quite dull.

4—Cynical indeed is the man who says that every husband has at least one FOE! (Woe). — FOE is the stronger term, and fits better with cynical indeed. A man who says that every husband has at least one WOE (a wife) might be called cynical, but not very cynical or cynical indeed.

5—A girl with social ambitions is apt to regard her parents' advice as mere attempts to BAR her progress (Mar). — They're merely advising her, not taking definite action. BAR is better; it means merely to obstruct. MAR goes much further; it means to spoil.

7—People who are very much ALIVE often get on well together (Alike). —Not ALIKE; too much depends on the characteristics they share. The natures of people who are very much ALIVE, vital, are more likely to be in harmony.

10—As a rule, the naughtier a child the more likely it is to be SORE topic of conversation between its parents (Sole.) — SOLE goes too far; the sole topic is the only topic, to the exclusion of all others. SORE, painful, doesn't cover such a wide field.

11—To get their way, even fond wives sometimes GALL their husbands (Gull). — To get their way fond wives more frequently than sometimes GULL, or beguile their husbanos They might do so by flattery! GALL is stronger, meaning to vex, annoy, harass; and that they sometimes do so is not going too far.

13—As a rule, an observant young man can soon tell when a girl friend of his has CLASS (Claws). If she's fond of him she might well try to conceal that she figuratively has CLAWS, that she can be a cat. Not so CLASS, quality or excellence, which is as a rule quickly recognized.

14—Alas! many men succeed in life through being WILY (Oily). — Some men might succeed in life through being OILY, greasy of manner, but not many. Many men succeed through being WILY, crafty, cun[illegible]

Down

1—We're seldom surprised when a person who is LED doesn't have much will-power (Lad). — Not LAD; lads can be very self-opinionated and stubborn. A person who is LED is one who takes the line of least resistance.

2—Mean of a cynical turn of mind are seldom the type that women can LEAD on (Lean). — LEAN is weak, because such men might well have a sense of duty. LEAD fits well.

3—You can often tell that a man is tactful by the way he PREVENTS an argument. (Presents.) — PRESENTS is less apt because many arguments do not call for tactful presentation. It's normally more obvious that he's tactful by the way he PREVENTS an argument.

6—It's usually a shock when we find after a friend's death that he didn't OWE nearly so much as he pretended (Own). — With OWN it would be a surprise rather than a shock; most of us try to keep up appearances. It's more likely to be a shock with OWE; he might have borrowed money to pay mythical debts.

8—It's sometimes necessary for a man to quarrel with a woman to know her WILL (Well) — He might well come to an understanding of her, without quarreling; it is more reasonable to say that they'd have to qurrrel before he knew her WILL, her true wishes or desires. Sometimes we disclose in anger things we would not otherwise express.

9—Riches often enable a man to have MIGHT on his side! (Right). —Even flippantly, the statement is not true with riches. His being rich scarcely changes wrong into right. MIGHT is better.

10—A boss might well be called sympathetic who makes detailed inquiries after learning that an employe has suffered a bad SPELL (Spill) — SPILL is weak. He might be anxious only to know whether the employe can return to work. With SPELL, the employe might not have to stay from his work; in any case, it's in the past.

12—Few of us, if any, can say we've never wasted DAY (pay) — The person is by no means so extremely rare who can say he's never wasted his PAY; consider those who have just started to work for their living. With DAY, a person's whole life has to be considered, and it's most unlikely that any of us can say we've never wasted a DAY.

WASHINGTON — Moscow's view of the Bolivian crisis, which was sparked by alleged remarks of a single U.S. diplomatic official: "The U.S. embassy thinks the only solution is to liquidate Bolivia as an independent republic and distribute its territory among neighboring countries." 50 Pct. of South's Whites Want Dixiecrat to Run

Integration Issue May Split Democratic Party in 1960

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

The Gallup Poll

PRINCETON, N. J. — In 1948, the civil rights issue split the Democratic National Convention. In 1960, integration may possibly do the same.

Sentiment among white Democrats in the South for a third party candidate is substantial at this time if Northern Democrats insist upon a strong pro-integrationist as the party's 1960 presidential candidate.

This important political fact emerges from a study conducted by the Gallup Poll of the possibilities of a Third Party movement developing again in the South as it did in 1948.

The study shows that, although Southern white Democrats are divided today on the issue of whether or not they would favor a States' Rights movement if the 1960 Democratic nominee is a Northerner who strongly favors school integration, more say they are for it than say they are against it—by a margin of 50 per cent to 29 per cent.

About one Democrat in five, 21 per cent, is undecided as of now.

THE obvious political dilemma facing the delegates to the 1960 democratic national convention in Los Angeles will be to select a candidate who will be acceptable to both the Northern liberal wing of the party as well as to the Southern conservative wing.

To determine just how strongly Southern white Democrats feel about a States' Rights party in the event the convention delegates choose a pro-integrationist in 1960, Gallup Poll reporters asked:

"Suppose that next year the Democratic Party nominates for the Presidency a Northern Democrat who strongly favors integration in the schools. In this case, would you be for or against organizing a separate States' Rights party and naming a candidate who opposes integration in the schools?"

The vote today of white Democrats in the South:

THIRD PARTY?

	Pct.
For	50
Against	29
Undecided	21

Analysis of the findings shows that sentiment in favor of organizing a third party movement in the South if the convention chooses a pro-integrationist nominee is more substantial among older than with younger Southern white Democrats.

In the 1948 presidential election, four Southern states — Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina— deserted the Democratic column to vote for the Dixiecrat candidate, J. Strom Thurmond.

Thurmond polled 17 per cent of the popular vote in the South as the Dixiecrat presidential candidate.

IN 1952, General Eisenhower polled 49 per cent of the major-party vote in the South and captured five states—Virginia, Florida, Texas, Tennessee and Oklahoma.

In 1956, President Eisenhower received 51 per cent of the major-party vote in the South and in addition to the five states he carried in 1952 he also carried Kentucky and Louisiana.

In that election, an independent States' Rights party movement, with the party running under different names in the various states and with different presidential candidates in at least two states, made little headway.

Out of a total of 10,534,000 votes cast in the South, minor party candidates, including States' Rights candidates, polled 291,400—or 2.8 per cent of the popular vote.

Progress? That's a Dirty Word to This Floridian

By STEVE TRUMBULL
Herald Staff Writer

There's an oldster living in Coconut Grove who will get positively no awards from the Florida State Chamber of Commerce.

He takes a very dim view of the things the go-getters call "progress." He figuratively spits when he says the word, and he gives it the sound a more profane man would give to a dirty word.

He is 73-year-old C. W. Price Sr., of 2756 Day Ave. He was in the spotlight recently when he joined in a suit to keep the City of Miami from locating its proposed new port on Dodge Island — in Biscayne Bay.

"I've seen virtually everything else that was beautiful in Florida ruined," he says grimly in explaining that lawsuit. "Now they're trying to ruin what is left of Biscayne Bay."

As Price unfolds the colorful chapters of a life that started in a log hut on Tampa Bay in 1885, the reason for his hatred of some of these called "progress" becomes more understandable.

Few Floridians have had a ringside seat at so many slaughters of the state's natural resources.

He was a sawmill hand near Tallahassee when the large scale assault started on the state's pine woods — an assault that slowed only after stumps and second growth scrub had replaced virtually all of the magnificent pine stands all the way to Arcadia.

He was the carpenter for a line of stern-wheel steamers out of Apalachicola when the drive started on the big cypress — and the last of the really big cypress now is being cut in the Everglades.

He was a member of the crew — probably the last surviving one — of the City of Hawkinsville, the last sternwheeler to play the Suwanee River. As such he saw the cutting of the cedar that stopped only when no more cedar remained.

He saw the start of the phosphate mining industry, with mule-drawn scoops that merely scratched the earth. He saw that grow into the huge mechanized project that now has scarred and defaced beyond repair hundreds of thousands of acres in the Bartow-Mulberry-Lakeland area.

Not knowing the strength of the phosphate lobby in the Florida Legislature, he cannot understand why this state has no law to make strip miners level off their abandoned workings — as other states do.

Some years ago Price made a pilgrimage back to Old Town on the Suwanee. There, below the railroad bridge, he located the "bones" of the long-wrecked and abandoned City of Hawkinsville. With a hacksaw, he laboriously cut off an iron shackle and eye he welded on the craft so many years ago.

It is just a rusted and unlovely piece of old iron to most people. To Price it is a thing of beauty, and one of his most prized possessions.

"It was just like visiting the grave of an old friend," he says of that pilgrimage.

"I know things must change," he added, "but this state of ours was once so beautiful. I look back on those early days and I almost forget the very hard times we had. People who talk about that depression of the mid-20s don't know what the word means.

"But I'd still gladly go back and live those times again, to see those hundreds of miles of untouched pines and cypress, see turkeys and deer walking through the big woods, and to see that upper Peace River country without the blight left there by the phosphate mining.

Price came here in 1912, having been preceded by his brother, W. T. Price, founder of the construction company bearing that name and later chairman of the board of the Coconut Grove Bank.

He built the two-story home in which he now lives, and a couple of rental units on the same land, completely without help.

He's still a vigorous fellow for his years. On the occasion of our call he was on the business end of a shovel, pitching crushed rock into a depression in his driveway.

It was a warm day, and he'd moved a sizable amount of rock, but he hadn't even worked up a sweat.

Dade Gains Claimed by Teamsters

Teamsters Union officials reported Saturday they had signed an estimated 1,000 county and municipal employes in Dade County—despite mounting opposition from many public officials.

In an effort to counter some of the opposition, Henry Feinstein, New York City Teamsters officer, has scheduled a tour of South Florida cities to confer with county and municipal officials.

He said he will visit Miami Beach, Hialeah, Hollywood, Palm Beach, and West Palm Beach.

Also on tap, he added, is a mass meeting to be held in Miami late this week.

Shorthand Class Open

Lindsey Hopkins Vocational School Saturday announced two new classes, beginning shorthand and beginning conversational Spanish.

Starting Monday the shorthand class will begin at the Education Center, 1410 NE Second Ave., and will meet every Monday and Wednesday from 7 to 10 p.m.

Conversational Spanish, especially designed for people in the field of retailing or department store work, begins March 26 and continues on each Thursday evening, 7 to 10 o'clock, for 22 lessons. This class will be held at North Miami Senior High School center, 1800 NE 137th St.

St. Pete Chief 'Shocked'

Cop Fired, 7 Others Caught in Scandal

ST. PETERSBURG — (AP) — Police Chief E. Wilson Purdy fired one patrolman Saturday and said dismissal charges would be preferred against seven others now under suspension.

Purdy suspended nine members of the force several days ago "for conduct unbecoming an officer." He said the action grew out of visits with a 33-year-old woman by officers while on duty.

The chief said Patrolman Eugene Fancher resigned. He said he fired Probationary Patrolman Fred V. Turpen, who does not come under civil service regulations.

Purdy said he plans to prefer charges against Sgt. M. J. Morrisey and Patrolmen R. B. Brown, Paul E. McLoughlin, George E. Dursett, James H. Justice, Fred H. Michell and LeRoy Lindsey.

Several, if not all of those suspended, were expected to resign, rather than face a civil service board hearing.

The police chief said the "investigation is continuing." He said he was unable to say yet whether criminal charges would be preferred against the woman involved.

Purdy, who took office in October, previously fired three probationary patrolmen on similar charges.

The police chief termed it "a tremendous shock" to have to conduct an inter-department investigation.

He said, "Perhaps something in the past has made these men think they could get away with irregularities."

Boozy Bovines Lead to Still

LANDRUM, S. C. — (UPI) — Police investigating reports of cows "staggering" about a pasture, discovered a 240-gallon illicit liquor still in the basement of a farm home and arrested Arthur Pritchard.

The intoxicated cows had been drinking from a pond used for dumping the "backings" of the still.

Co-Chairmen Of Hospital Drive Named

J. N. McArthur, dairy executive, and C. Roy Angell, pastor of Central Baptist Church, Saturday were named co-chairmen of the Baptist Hospital of Miami building fund campaign.

Dr. John H. Haldeman, chairman of the board of trustees, said the co-chairmen will carry the responsibility of raising one million dollars for the hospital. Open to all faiths, the hospital will be erected on a 55-acre site on N. Kendall Dr.

Baptist Hospital will be completed and ready to receive patients in December, 1960. Construction started Feb. 24.

The service will be in the new Miami Beach Exhibition hall. A special kitchen will be brought in to serve the traditional dinner of the Passover celebration.

It will be Peerce's debut in a complete religious service aside from his long career as an opera singer.

THE LIBERTY STORY

THE construction of today's Liberty built homes starts with the finest steel frames available. Eleven gauge steel with patented tubular construction. Over the frame goes the famous Liberty heated floor. It is built like an insulated basement with forced air heat ducts built into the floor. The attic roof is built like the name implies with layers of insulating material, as well as ample air space for house type weather protection. This design also provides for natural draft free circulation of fresh air to keep inner walls moisture and condensation free. As a result Liberty space is refreshingly cooler in the rays of Florida's hottest sunshine. Interiors are ¼" birch, walnut and oak. Exteriors are aluminum. Liberty Coach Co. is one of the oldest and largest in the industry today. Tom Hamilton is one of their oldest and largest dealers. Your Liberty is guaranteed for as long as you own it. Don't be misled by so-called priced trailers. Our prices start a little above the lowest. Anything of value taken in trade. Central bank, Universal C.I.T. or our own financing available. Terms to suit you. Call us for free appraisal on your trailer, auto, furniture, real estate Etc.

Statehood Talked in Puerto Rico

By GEORGE SOUTHWORTH
Herald Latin America Editor

WITH Alaska admitted to the Union and Hawaii scheduled to become the 50th state, advocates of statehood in Puerto Rico are sharpening their demands.

SOUTHWORTH

Luis A. Ferre, vice chairman of the island's Republican (statehood) Party, says Puerto Ricans have never had a clear-cut choice of political status.

This industrialist says that Puerto Ricans as American citizens "have never been given the opportunity to petition Congress for statehood . . . the question has not been submitted to a referendum."

There are two minority parties in Puerto Rico, Ferre's party that wants statehood and another party that wants complete independence from the U.S.

The party which has won all the tests at the polls is the Popular Democratic Party. It usually pulls down about two-thirds of the total vote and its top leader is governor of the islands, Luis Munoz Marin.

FERRE

Governor Cites Costs

GOV. MUNOZ MARIN has repeatedly described the Commonwealth tie — approved by Congress in 1950 — as a permanent solution "which will continue to develop."

"If Puerto Rico should become a state," the governor said, "the federal taxes required of the island would double the present tax burden without significantly increasing such essential services as health, education and highways.

"Statehood would destroy the industralization program which has been making spectacular progress.

"Commonwealth tax collections now exceed 130 million dollars a year and statehood would require approximately that amount in federal taxes."

MUNOZ

Two Parties May Fuse

FERRE says the governor is wrong concerning what it would cost to become a state. His statehood party estimates that it would cost about 25 million dollars "which is not a high price to pay for the stability and security we would get."

"Any initial expenditures," Ferre said, "would be more than offset by vastly increased investments from the mainland."

Dr. Gilberto Concepcion de Garcia is president of the Independence Party that recently appealed to Congress for Puerto Rico's complete freedom from the U.S.

In this appeal, the party labeled the Commonwealth government a "typical case of colonial semantics."

There have been reports that the two minority groups demanding statehood and independence might join forces to put pressure on Gov. Munoz Marin's party for a referendum on Puerto Rico's status.

Frondizi to Push Austerity Program

By Herald Wire Services

BUENOS AIRES — President Arturo Frondizi has declared that he will push ahead with his austerity program without regard to his personal popularity.

"I have adopted this plan of stabilization," Frondizi said, "because I believe it is the only way to prosperity in this great country. And I will do it without worrying about the popularity or unpopularity of the man who governs the country."

Costa Rica Raps Echandi

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica — Congress has censured President Mario Echandi for his frontier meeting last month with President Luis Somoza of neighboring Nicaragua. The vote was 25 to 20.

Passage of a motion expressing "disapproval" of the president's action followed a week of stormy debate. Critics of Echandi charged that his gesture of friendship with Somoza was not in keeping with Costa Rica's traditional dislike of "dictatorships."

Mexico Cuts Import Duties

MEXICO CITY — A reduction of 50 per cent in import duties on small European cars has gone into effect in Mexico.

Argentina to Get Dollar Credits

BUENOS AIRES — Argentina and the U.S. have concluded a technical cooperation agreement under which 20 million dollars in U.S. credits are to be allotted to the South American nation over a three-year period.

The agreement stipulates that the financial aid will be used to help Argentina's cattle industry, stimulate a U.S.-Argentine University cooperation on matters of economic development, enable more exchanges of students and teachers between the two countries and assist development of the Argentine Atomic Energy Commission.

'Show Me' State May Cover Up

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. — (AP) — Speaker Richard H. Ichord is trying to decide which Missouri House committee should hear a bill which would outlaw nudism.

Ichord says a flock of committees are frantically bidding for the bill, hoping for a few laughs and much publicity.

"The appropriations committee thinks it should get the bill because it deals in figures," Ichord said.

Ichord said he would send it to a mental health committee, but the House doesn't have one.

Economists Have Urged It

Chop Up Bolivia? It's an Old Idea

By WILLIAM G. GAUDET
Special To The Herald

Incredible part about the riots in La Paz, Bolivia, which apparently were touched off by a Times magazine suggestion that Bolivia should be divided among neighboring countries is that the disputed suggestion is by no means new.

GAUDET

Even before the Paz Estenssorro government overthrew the Conservatives and then in turn expropriated the big tin mines, economists have said that the one hope for real economic stability in Bolivia would have to come about by a division of the nation.

Understandably the suggestion that a nation be taken over by others is political dynamite, and because of this the economic feasibility of the idea has been completely and totally disregarded. Yet looked at economically, and only economically, Bolivia's future is far from rosy.

Long before the riots occurred in La Paz many criticized the aid program of the U.S., not because the aid was being extended, but because when looked at realistically few could conceive of any amount of financial assistance resulting in real success.

Those who investigated the Bolivia situation found little criticism of the Bolivian government other than that it had inaugurated a social security system so all-inclusive that it could not long maintain any semblance of economic stability.

Problem, however, is that the average Bolivian is not aware of the real economic condition of his own country. There can be little disputing the fact that years ago, when Bolivian tin was in great demand and comparatively high priced, the owners of the great mines did become multi-millionaires through exploitation of the workers. Workers still have before them the picture of the great wealth which was amassed by these owners and they now feel that some of this wealth should be given to them.

Weakness in that theory, however, is that those tin mines no longer represent the wealth that they once did — and government ownership and operation adds to the burden. Hopes for a great economic and financial future received another setback when the search for oil did not produce the quantities of petroleum which had been anticipated. Oil was found, and is being produced, but not in sufficient quantities to change the financial position of the nation.

In evaluating the suggestion that Bolivia be divided among neighbors it might be well to consider the history of the country.

Unlike Chile or Peru, southern and northern neighbors respectively, Bolivia was not a Spanish colonial area. Nor was the area of any great political importance during those times. It did, however, possess one great importance — its geographic location. The area often acted as a buffer for any great expansionist ambitions on the part of Chile, Brazil, Argentina, Peru, or Paraguay.

As a matter of fact, there are those today, including Alberto Ostria Gutierrez, once Bolivian minister of foreign affairs, who disregard economics and point out why it is in the interest of the U.S. to maintain Bolivia regardless of the cost. In a book entitled, "The Tragedy of Bolivia," this was his preamble: "The high plateau atop the Andes, cold and treeless, three miles high, 500 miles long, 80 miles wide, dominates the world's airways.

"Whoever controls this natural base for jet bombers is master of the air, the strategic line of attack against the U.S. and the Free World."

4 Cities Plan Quake Study

MESSINA, Sicily —(UPI)— A "fraternity pact of earthquake cities" is being planned here among Messina, Lisbon, Tokyo and San Francisco as a symbolic and practical gesture marking the 50th anniversary of the big Messina quake.

The plan is aimed at bringing together city engineers and other experts for study of reconstruction problems after earthquakes.

Richards Blasts Yankee Brass, Longs for That Arizona Air

'I Guess the Yankees Needed the Money'
. . . Richards irate over soggy Yankee exhibition

By JIMMY BURNS
Herald Sports Editor

ST. PETERSBURG — Verbally blasting the Yankees has become the favorite springtime diversion of some baseball people.

Manager Paul Richards got into the act here, but he is not likely to experience the fate of Cleveland General Manager Frank Lane. Lane has been such a carping critic that some of the people he has tried to incite against the Yankees have turned on Frank.

Heavy rains washed out all but two of last Thursday's exhibitions in this section of the Grapefruit League. One was the 11-inning contest in which the Yankees blew a lead, then rallied to beat the Orioles on a soggy field before only 985 spectators.

"I guess the Yankees needed the $900 they collected," Richards snorted. "The game shouldn't have been played. Our players are too valuable to risk being injured under such conditions . . . but I guess Del Webb (Yankee co-owner) made them play."

Richards more than once has been critical of Webb, who blasted Paul for his "Break Up the Yankees" theme in a recent magazine article.

Webb countered with the view Richards had been a bad general manager and field boss of the Orioles.

"Del is entitled to his opinion," Richards reiterated. "I can say he wasn't much of a baseball authority either until he got some government contracts during World War II and made enough money to buy into the Yankees."

Richards previously had refrained from criticizing training conditions in Miami, but it was revealed in the current Sporting News Richards prefers Arizona, where the Orioles headquartered last year.

"I prefer Arizona, three to one," Richards was quoted by Los Angeles Times Sports Editor Paul Zimmerman. "The only flaw in training in Arizona is the travel problem, and that's why we are in Miami.

LOPEZ

LANE

"The players didn't seem to mind the distance, but it wasn't convenient for our club directors at Scottsdale. They can fly down to Miami in three hours."

Richards contended the muggy Miami weather forced him to cut down on practice time.

"I didn't expect too many spectators for our exhibitions," Richards told this reporter. "I know that our team is not a gate attraction like the Yankees."

Manager Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox was one who became fed up with Lane exhorting the other American League clubs against the Yankees.

"Lane said the clubs should use their best pitchers against the Yankees," said Lopez. "What does Lane think I've been doing all these years?"

At Stadium

Loes Goes For O's

Billy Loes, Mr. Controversy himself, makes his spring "debut" this afternoon at Miami Stadium when the Baltimore Orioles again host the Kansas City Athletics at 2 p.m.

Manager Paul Richards is hopeful Loes will follow in the footsteps of teammate Milt Pappas, who tossed four strong innings Saturday as the Orioles topped Philadelphia's Phillies, 5-3, at Clearwater.

Pappas, the 19-year-old who won 10 games as a rookie last summer, surrendered one run in four innings Saturday . And the Orioles came off with the victory when they scored three runs in the eighth inning at the expense of Ken Lehman.

Ruben Gomez and Robin Roberts held Baltimore to a single unearned run over the first seven innings. The Phils cracked a 1-1 tie in their half of the seventh with Valmy Thomas' triple and Stan Lopata's pinch single accounting for two RBI's.

Then in the eighth, Baltimore fell on Lehman for a walk, a single, a triple and two more singles, all in succession to grab a 4-3 lead.

Loes, who virtually has a lease on Richards' doghouse, asked to be traded, for the umpteenth time, last Wednesday. His performance this afternoon could influence the Orioles' decision on his request.

The 29-year-old right-hander won only three of 12 decisions for the O's during his stormy 1958 season. But Loes' 12-7 record for the 1957 campaign has made Richards and Co. think several times before trading him off.

Rookie Jerry Walker, who hurled five sparkling shutout innings in his first start last Sunday, will follow Loes to the mound. Walker was an 18-game winner at Knoxville (Class A) a year ago.

Although Harry Craft hasn't indicated who he'll pitch, the Kansas City manager will definitely employ Bob Cerv, his long ball hitter, in the outfield.

Cerv, a latecomer to spring training, didn't play in last Sunday's 14-inning marathon at the Stadium.

Big Bob, hanging in the A's lineup despite a broken jaw, a cracked toe and other injuries, turned in his finest big league effort a year ago. Playing 141 games, Cerv whacked 38 homers, drove in 104 runs and batted .305 to pick up heavy backing in Most Valuable Player competition.

Southwest Wins, Miami High Bows

By RAY CRAWFORD
Herald Sports Writer

GAINESVILLE — Southwest's smooth-passing Eagles defeated Ponce de Leon, 68-51, for the Class B State High School Basketball Championship here Saturday, but Miami High fell before surprise team Tampa Hillsborough, 69-55, in the AA title game.

Thus, the Stingarees failed to make Miami the first city in tournament history to earn two class championships the same year.

Another South Florida quintet, Pompano Beach, lost to Daytona Beach Seabreeze, 75-73, in one of the wildest games in state tournament history in the Class A finals. The Sand Crabs came from 23 points behind at halftime to win on Duncan Dowling's jump shot with two seconds to go.

Campbellton successfully defended its Class C title, defeating Bronson, 37-31. It was Campbellton's 43rd straight victory over a two-year span.

Personal fouls hurt Miami High, and Coach Vince Schaefer declared Hillsborough was allowed to bring the ball in bounds illegally late in the game on a key play.

With Hillsborough holding a 51-49 lead with 2:55 left in the struggle, Jim Sumner took the ball on the side and whipped a pass to Albert Julian, breaking under the Miami High basket unguarded.

Schaefer argued Sumner was on the Miami High side of mid-court and should not have been given the ball by the referee. This keyed the fired-up Terriers to an amazing deluge of 18 points to Miami High's six in the last two minutes and 55 seconds.

Southwest's Mills Fights for Rebound
. . . Roger scrambles with Ponce de Leon player

Miami High's big Dave Austin picked up four fouls in the first half and sat out most of the second half.

Pete Somerindyke drew his fourth foul in the first minute of the second half, and Bill Garr fouled out with 1:24 left in the third quarter.

Operating without the Trio's rebounding strength, Buddy Coleman, Dennis Moses and George Nowicki fought Hillsborough on even terms until the winning outburst.

The Stings led by periods, 17-15, 32-29 and 44-41. Biggest margin of the game was a nine-point lead by the Stings at 44-35 late in the third quarter.

Leading scorers for Hillsborough (which came in with a 13-10 record) were John Pelligrino with 21 points and Taylor Stokes with 19. Miami High's top marksmen were Bob Paterson with 15 and Somerindyke with 12.

In the class B game Jay Tobin, a rebounding whiz, and Chris Lefferts were the big scorers for Southwest, but it was the Eagles' smooth teamwork that provided the victory. It was Southwest's highest score of the season.

Tobin poured in 19 points and Lefferts got 15. George Dorris, a defensive standout, was next with 12.

The Eagles dominated the game throughout, but a 10-point splurge by Forward Jerry Stafford kept Ponce de Leon in contention the first quarter. Stafford's five long field goals tossed in from 30 feet out enabled the eventual losers to trail by only one point, 14-13, after the first quarter.

But Stafford started missing in the second quarter and Ponce de Leon could not work the ball in close because of the three-two zone defense set up by Southwest. The Eagles took a halftime lead of 28-21 and increased it to 49-30 going into the final quarter.

Tobin and Lefferts scored all except one point—a free throw by George Dorris—is a 21-point third period. Tobin got 11 and Lefferts 9.

Jupin played his entire 12-man squad during the second half and had five reserves in for the final four minutes. Little Guard Bill Mullens pumped in three field goals during this stretch to stamp himself as a boy to watch next season.

George and Brainard Dorris and Richie Weber were key men in the Eagles' smooth passing attack. They consistently fired the ball in to Lefferts and Tobin beneath the basket.

Better Bee Buzzes as Amerigo Fizzles To Climax Gulfstream 'Longshot Day'

By RUSS HARRIS
Herald Turf Writer

Longshots ruled the roost Saturday at Gulfstream Park and Better Bee capped off the day of upsets by trimming the odds-on Amerigo in the $17,650 Appleton Handicap.

Better Bee broke on top and stayed there all the way, going the mile and one eighth in 1:47.2, only 3-5 of a second off the track standard set two years ago by Calumet's great Gen. Duke.

The winner's margin over Amerigo was two and a quarter lengths. The rest of the eight-horse field was never in the running. Bill's Sky Boy, the show horse, was five lengths behind Amerigo.

Better Bee paid $16.10, $5.60 and $4.50 and his share of the purse was $10,475.

Vertex, high weight at 126 pounds in the Appleton, was a late withdrawal.

Nine straight favorites bit the dust but Saturday's crowd of 21,095 pushed $2,081,889 through the windows. Comparable figures for 1958: an audience of 20,644 bet $1,808,087.

Business obviously is on the upgrade at the Broward County track. This was Gulfstream's fourth two-million-dollar day; the third was last Saturday. And the big events — the $100,000 added Gulfstream Park Handicap and the Florida Derby, also for $100,000, are still to come.

Wagering in the first 10 days totals $16,373,838, an increase of $124,108 over last year. The gain in mutuel handle is slightly under one per cent, but things never looked rosier for Jimmy Donn's horse palace.

Better Bee has a well-known fondness for the Gulfstream racing strip. He was scoring a repeat victory in the Appleton Handicap and also won the Southern Cross Handicap here last year. The crowd let him get away as a 7-1 chance in the betting because he had run a disappointing sixth last Saturday while Amerigo was annexing the Magic City Handicap.

Last week Trainer D. W. Carroll, fearing several "speed" horses in the race, told Jockey John Choquette to take Better Bee back off the early pace. Choquette followed orders but his mount failed to rally in the stretch.

Carroll changed tactics for the Appleton, ordering Choquette to get the lead if possible.

Better Bee made the front end without undue exertion, with Ajaccio and Amerigo in closest pursuit. They ran in that order down the backstretch with Bill's Sky Boy a close fourth. Behind him were Grey Monarch, Belleau Chief, Nasco and Noureddin.

The race was really settled at the far turn.

At that point, Bill Hartack sent Amerigo past Ajaccio and started after the leader.

"I saw him coming at me and set my horse down," said Choquette. "He gave me a real good eighth of a mile and that kinda took the heart out of the other horse."

After accepting the winner's trophy, Owner William S. Miller announced that Better Bee is a definite starter in the Gulfstream Handicap. The announcement was not unexpected.

Saturday's parade of longshots began with a $451.30 daily double composed of Quick Pass ($27.10 in the first) and Game Conqueror ($35.90).

Chris Rogers scored by a nose with Monko, $137.60 in the third, to post the longest price of the afternoon. Lowest mutuel on the card was paid by Audience, second-choice victor at $7.50 in the fifth race.

Mountaineers Win NCAA Struggle

CHARLOTTE, N.C.—(AP)—Heavily favored West Virginia had to pull out all stops in the closing minutes Saturday night to beat the Boston University Terriers, 86-82, in the finals of the NCAA Eastern Regional basketball championship.

West Virginia now moves to the national semifinals opening Friday at Louisville.

Navy breezed by St. Joseph's of Philadelphia 70-56 to clinch third place.

All-American junior Jerry West, scoring a total of 33 points, rallied the Mountaineers in the last 12 minutes to provide the clutch points.

Cincinnati Rips K-State, 85-75

LAWRENCE, Kan.—(AP)—Cincinnati, with All-America Oscar Robertson turning feeder and rebounder in the second half, upset Kansas State, 85-75, in the finals of the NCAA Mid-West Regional Basketball Tournament Saturday night.

The victory, coming after Texas Christian defeated DePaul, 71-65, for third place, sent Cincinnati into the NCAA Round of Four at Louisville next Friday.

Robertson scored 24 points, far off his usual pace, but his brilliant feeding and backboard control carried the Missouri Valley Conference champion to victory over the nation's No. 1 team.

Bob Boozer, Kansas State All-America, tallied 31 points for scoring honors.

Louisville Tops Spartans, 88-81

EVANSTON, Ill. — (AP) — Louisville continued as the giant killer of the NCAA basketball tournament Saturday night, spurting for 12 straight points at the outset of the second half to defeat Big Ten champion Michigan State 88-81 in the Mideast regional finals.

Kentucky defeated Marquette, 98-69, on the consolation game.

Tea Party

Two little girls heard there was going to be a T party at the University of Miami Saturday afternoon, so they wandered out. There were plenty of lumps, but no sugar, however, as the UM gridders got down to work for their "toughest ever" football schedule this fall. Youthful Moundsmen Must Blossom For Cardinals to Spin Into Orbit

Hemus

ST. PETERSBURG—Few men have prepared themselves more thoroughly for a managerial job than Solly Hemus, new boss of the Cardinals. He started years ago studying the technique of other managers and this past winter he had the advantage of sizing up his club during the exhibition tour in Japan.

Hemus confidently greets visitors with the declaration, "we'll have a good team," but he hastens to add, "how good depends upon our young pitchers."

This is one reason Hemus spends so much time watching his B squad. On this particular day he had rushed back from the rookie Cardinals exhibition at Tampa. They had won with Hemus playing part of the contest.

"At least I made the B team," Hemus smiled. "Yeah, I'm getting in shape to go on the active list. I will pinch hit, or play second base if someone is hurt. I'll be happy if someone develops so much that it is necessary to remove myself from the active list."

GRAMMAS

BOYER

CIMOLI

Hemus has picked a young pitcher, Right-handed Ernie Broglio, who won eight for Phoenix and nine for Toronto as his fourth starter. Hemus gained his favorable impression of Broglio from his pitching in Japan.

International Stars Highly Regarded

OTHER INTERNATIONAL League graduates are highly regarded by Hemus. He frankly declared he thinks Gary Blaylock (14-10) with Rochester can win 12 games for the Cardinals and he looks with favor upon Dick Ricketts, who won 15 for Rochester.

Aside from the pitching, the big question for the Cardinals is how Stan Musial, shifted from first to left field, will fare at 39 and in his 16th full season as a Cardinal.

Musial appeared in 137 games last season and Hemus will be happy if Stan sees service in 100 to 125 games this year. Chuck Essegian, former Marlin, will be Stan's understudy. Chuck, who has been hitting well in spring training, also figures for pinch hitting.

Musial More Effective in Outfield

HEMUS CONFIDED that while with the Phillies, and before he knew he was to manage the Cards, the idea was born that the Cardinals would be more effective with Musial and Joe Cunningham, his successor at first, in the lineup at the same time.

Cardinals at a Glance

MANAGER—Solly Hemus making his first start.
1958 Record—W—72, L—82, finished fifth.

Outlook—Unless young pitchers come through and Stan Musial has another good year, club will find it tough crashing first division.

Catchers—Gene Green (.281), Hal Smith (.227), Jim Schaefer, Winnipeg (.309).

Infield—Joe Cunningham (.312) IB; Don Blasingame (.274) 2B; Alex Grammas, Reds (.218) SS; Ken Boyer (.307) 3B.

Outfield—Musial (.337), LF; Gino Cimoli, Dodgers (.246) CF; Irv Noren (.264) RF.

Pitchers—Sam Jones (14-13), Larry Jackson (13-13), Wilmer Mizell (10-14), Ernie Broglio, Phoenix (8-1), Gary Blaylock, Rochester (14-10), Marv Grissom, Giants (7-5), Jim Brosnan, Cubs (3-4), Cards (8-4), Alex Kellner, Kansas City (0-2), Reds (7-3).

The new manager wasted no time putting his plan into effect. His first official act after joining the Cardinals was to suggest the move to General Manager Bing Devine. The latter said the proposed change should be discussed with Stan.

"Musial was agreeable and we got a chance to try out the switch on the Japanese trip," Solly explained."

Solly Satisfied with Infield

HEMUS IS satisfied with his infield and thinks Don Blasingame, second baseman, and Cunningham will work together like Musial and Red Schoendienst, when the latter was a Cardinal.

"I expect great things from Alex Grammas," said Stanky of the shortstop obtained from Cincinnati. "Alex is the most under-rated shortstop in the league."

Freddie Hutchinson was fired last year because the Cardinals finished fifth. Even if they do no better this season, the same fate is not likely to befall Hemus.

He was hired personally by Owner Gussie Busch, who recently told his club officials that if the club improves while finishing fifth again, it will be okay.

They say that Busch, determined to give St. Louis a pennant, is growing more patient. He now thinks the Cards need time to develop. So do a lot of observers.

Sports Show

A Real Traffic Tangle

The Miami-Miami Beach Sports and Vacation Show opened Saturday, with 12,720 persons swarming through the Beach Exhibition Hall displays.

Boats, fishing gear, animals, and pretty girls drew the crowd.

Every type boat from plush cabin cruisers to canoes and dinghys are included in the 180-plus exhibits.

New fishing tackle includes an automatic reel, which pulls in the fish after it's hooked.

Animal lovers can cohort with snakes, chipmunks and even a big black bear.

The pretty girls are everywhere.

A special show, four times daily (3, 5, 7 and 9 p.m.), includes a log-rolling dog act, a sharp-shooting man and wife team, and fly-casting experts.

The Sports and Vacation show, which opens daily at 1 p.m., continues through March 22.

Vancouver Signs UM's C. Diamond

A young man with a goatee and bleached wavy hair has signed a football contract with Vancouver of the Canadian Professional Football League.

He is, surprisingly enough, Charlie Diamond, a 220-pound tackle for the past three years with the University of Miami.

Diamond, who is likely to be the smallest man among Vancouver's giant line personnel, probably will be shifted to guard for his attempt to make the squad.

A beardless member of the Diamond family from Curley High — younger brother Bill — is a 210-pound sophomore candidate for the UM's varsity backfield.

Bradley Cagers, St. John's Gain NIT Semifinals

NEW YORK —(AP)— With Sophomore Tony Jackson playing in sensational fashion, St John's of New York upset third-seeded St. Bonavanture, 82-74, in the National Invitational Basketball Tournament Saturday night and joined top-seeded Bradley in next Thursday's semifinals.

Crowd of 16,307 thrilled to an equally exciting contest in the first game of the night doubleheader when Bradley piled up an 11-point lead early in the second half. The Braves then barely staved off a furious late rally by Butler to win, 83-77.

In an afternoon doubleheader winding up the first round, New York University wore down Denver, 90-81, and Providence nipped Manhattan, 68-66, on Johnny Egan's 35-foot jump shot with six seconds left.

Providence plays second-seeded St. Louis and NYU meets fourth-seeded Oklahoma City in quarter-final games Tuesday night.

Jackson almost single-handedly kept St. John's in the running in the first half when the Bonnies threatened to pull away. He flipped in 27 points on 12 field goals and three fouls, snared 16 rebounds and batted away many shots that appeared to be sure St. Bonaventure baskets.

Gables Swim Team Snares 86th in Row

Among the boys, Grant Leroux qualified for an All-America diving berth by scoring 255.55 points.

Barbara Chesneau and Joyce Argo were double winners for the girls.

Early to bed and early to rise makes Shirley Stobs Olympic-wise.

Every morning the junior swimming star at Miami Edison High rolls out at 5:30. She's working out at Miami Shores Country Club pool by six and in school by eight.

Shirley, unbeaten in 34 starts and holder of 20 unofficial state records, wants to swim for the United States in the Olympics.

"And," says the straight A student, "the only way you become a champ is by working, working, working."

Shirley's swimming drills don't end with morning dips. She also practices with the Raiders at Edison Center pool in the afternoon.

"I wish we had more swimmers like Shirley," says Edison Coach Irving Resnick. "She's an inspiration to the entire team. She can beat most of the kids — including the boys — but she goes out of her way to help them. She's always offering words of encouragement."

Briefly, here are the 16-year-old girl's accomplishments in five short years of swimming:

—Only Florida woman swimmer selected to All-America team two consecutive years (1957-'58);

—Ranked eighth in the world in 100 meter butterfly and ninth in 100 meter freestyle last year;

—Smashed two American Senior Women's records last summer;

—Currently holds 10 Junior Olympic and National Age Group championships;

—Has set six Senior Women's state standards;

—Set two official state records and four unofficial in prep competition.

Shirley, voted the outstanding sophomore girl at Edison last year, will compete in the Senior Women's Indoor Nationals at West Palm Beach April 9. She hopes to use this meet as a springboard to the Pan-Am Games and Olympics.

Anderson Goes to UF

GAINESVILLE — (AP) — Norris Anderson, Miami newsman, has been named director of sports publicity at the University of Florida, Athletic Director Bob Woodruff announced Saturday.

Anderson, sportswriter and columnist for the Miami Daily News the past five years, succeeds Jimmy Gay, who last month resigned to enter the insurance business in Gainesville.

Anderson, sports editor of the Lincoln, Neb., Star for eight years, attended the University of Nebraska from 1941-43 and Northwestern University in 1943-44. He served four years in a public relations capacity with the Marine Corps.

Lobo de Mar Nabs St. Pete to Havana Early Yacht Lead

ST. PETERSBURG—(AP)—The sleek cutter Lobo de Mar continued to pull away from the pack as nightfall came for 32 entries in the 284-mile St. Petersburg to Havana Yacht Race.

Lobo de Mar, Glemente Inclan's 67-foot vessel passed the buoy at the mouth of Tampa Bay at 3:25 p.m., and carried a 13-minute lead over the second place boat as she headed into the Gulf of Mexico.

Shortly before nightfall, a Coast Guard helicopter spotted the Havana Yacht Club entry more than a mile in front of the Hilaria and pulling away steadily.

The Lobo de Mar, world's largest sailing cutter, seemed to have little trouble keeping up speed in the face of a wind which came strong out of the southeast.

Hilaria, a 55-foot yawl under the guiding hand of Hugh Schaddelee of Macatawa Bay Yacht Club, Mich., was two miles in front of the Callooh, a 43-foot yawl owned by Jack Brown of New York City.

Then came the favored Rhubarb a quarter of a mile back, followed closely by Southern Star II and Celia II, a pair of 41-foot yawls, and Interlude, a 40-foot cutter.

Criollo, a 67-foot Navy yawl which chased close behind Lobo de Mar during the spurt down Tampa Bay, appeared to have run aground briefly before entering the gulf. She fell back among the pack.

All of the boats got into the Gulf before nightfall.

First arrivals in the 26th annual race are expected to reach Havana late tonight or early Monday.

Ca Va, 40-foot yawl owned and skippered by J. W. Hershey of Houston, Tex., won the 1958 classic. She was running in about the middle of the group.

The Rhubarb, a 40-foot yawl owned and skippered by Benjamin DuPont of Pine Orchard, Conn., appeared to be the boat to beat. The Rhubarb leads the Southern Ocean Racing Conference in points and just about everything else.

Southern Star II, another 40-foot, three-sail craft, and Calloon, 43-foot yawl, rated right behind the Rhurbarb.

James Mullen II of Richmond Va., pilots the Southern Star II, which he owns. Emil Mosbacher Jr. skippers the Callooh, owned by Jack Brown of New York City.

Steady 15-mile an hour breezes greeted the entries as they headed down Tampa Bay toward the Gulf of Mexico. The weather bureau said velocity probably would increase to 25 miles per hour in gulf waters by nightfall.

Martin's 'New Look' Marlins Zip into Spring Manhunt Today

By EDDIE STORIN
Herald Sports Writer

The Miami Marlins, packing more quality and less quantity at the start than ever before, open spring training at 1 o'clock this afternoon at Miami Beach's Flamingo Park.

With Pepper Martin at the helm and a new working agreement with the Baltimore Orioles, the Marlins have a new look altogether.

Gone are such standbys as Bob Micelotta, Frank Herrera, Don Landrum and Ben Tompkins. Returning are only five members of last year's fifth place ball club — Infielders Woody Smith and Jerry Snyder; Pitcher Windy McCall, Catcher Johnny Bucha and Outfielder Bert Hamric.

Woody Smith
. . . returning All-Star

Johnny Bucha
. . . No. 1 catcher

Windy McCall
. . . knows bullpen

Bert Hamric
. . . familiar face

Two other holdovers, listed on the Marlin roster, Bubba Church and Bob Usher, have already announced intentions of retiring. Nobody is sure what Satchel Paige's intentions are.

Definitely this is the best squad the International Leaguers have taken into spring training since they were "born" in 1956. Whether it will be as good as, or better than, past years coming out of the pre-season drills depends on what help Baltimore sends and consummation of deals by General Manager Joe Ryan.

Biggest needs are an established triple-A first baseman and catcher, plus additional pitching help.

Here's a positional rundown:

FIRST BASE — Only first baseman on the roster is an untried rookie, Bill Rozich, up from Class B, where he hit .368. Help is promised from Orioles — possibly Bob Hale.

SECOND BASE — Jerry Snyder, who hit .312 with the Marlins.

SHORTSTOP — Foster Castleman down from the Orioles is expected to fill the bill nicely.

THIRD BASE — Woody Smith. 'Nuff said.

OUTFIELD — Four proven triple A players in Hamric, Bill Lajoie (.276 at Vancouver), Chuck Oertel (.313, Louisville) and Jim Pyburn (.287, Louisville.). Outlook good for one other man from Baltimore.

CATCHING — Bucha (.279) returns along with two rookies Danny Bishop and Frank Zupo. Marlins hope to deal for another man.

PITCHING — Much help needed at moment. Harry Byrd (ex-major leaguer), Rolf Scheel, Lew Sleater and McCall loom as best bets on current roster.

Martin, who plans to accent fundamentals, makes it plain he is taking a positive outlook. "We have no problems as such," said Martin Saturday. "I only want to talk about our strengths . . . not our weaknesses."

The ex-Miami Sun Sox boss has lured his old St. Louis Gashouse Gang teammate, Dazzy Vance, into the Marlin camp as a pitching coach during the spring drills.

"Of course," said Martin, "we'll also have our regular coach, Bill Cates, and I hope to have a few more of my old buddies like Rube Walberg and Knobby Rosa on hand to help out."

Marathon Card Set Monday

By JOE BROWN
Herald Greyhound Writer

Hollywood Kennel Club will run its third all-marathon card in 25 years Monday night.

All 11 races will be contested over the 3-8-mile course.

Other big events at Hollywood this week include tuneups for the coming Hollywood Derby, third major greyhound stake of the year at the Broward oval. The Derby is scheduled April 1, with the best dogs slated to go.

BROWN

Paul Ryan has announced that his Bud Jack, which has lost only one race over the 3-8 course, will be an entry in the Derby. Mar Dilly, top puppy star, aslo will go in the Derby.

A WAGERED deuce at Biscayne Kennel Club takes a real beating — all in the interests of accuracy.

W. E. Swain, supervisor of operations at the northside track, figures a trip through the mutuel department means at least a dozen countings for every bill.

The patron counts out the money. So does the seller. The move to the money room calls for another enumeration. It's counted again into stacks with the packaged cash also counted. A messenger counts the stacks on receipt from the money room and counts them to a cashier. The cashier counts the stacks and recounts the bills into his till. He gives them another count to a winning customer, who in turn counts the cash. How many more recounts the greenbacks get in the course of a 10-race program is anybody's guess.

THE old adage that "they never come back" does not apply to Otto R. Wohlauf, veteran dog owner who now has the leading kennel at Miami Beach Kennel Club. Wohlauf's greyhounds won 50 races in 61 nights of the sport.

Several years ago, Otto and his late brother Rudolph raced with outstanding success. But the past few semesters Otto's dogs had been so-so at best.

Now, 31 years after he started racing dogs, Otto's back with some strong candidates. Pat Vinci and Extra Work are considered championship timber.

Moss Stands Alone

Death's Grim Swath Gives U.S. Drivers Sebring Edge

SEBRING — (AP) — Road racing, the world's deadliest sport, returns to the United States next Saturday, but not many of the European daredevils who made it famous will be coming back.

Death has shattered the ranks of the Italian and British drivers who rode to glory with blazing speed in the years following World War II. Only one of the really great ones, little Stirling Moss of England, will be left for Sebring's 12-hour endurace race.

Thus, for the first time, Americans who had been outclassed by the foreign opposition year after year will find themselves in position to take over the leadership.

The clever Moss, driving a Lister-Jaguar which was clocked at 203 miles an hour in tuneup runs in England, probably will earn the favorite's role in the Sebring race, one of seven in which the world sports car championship is decided.

But a mechanical breakdown, a common thing in this brutal test, could take Moss out of the running and give the Americans their long-awaited chance to sweep the board.

The series of road racing tragedies started in 1955 when German Mercedes-Benz driven by Pierre Levegh hurtled into a tightly-massed crowd and exploded at Le Mans, France, killing 90 persons.

For the next three years, Italian drivers and cars dominated the sport. Then death systematically began to cut the drivers down.

Juan Fangio, an Argentine of Italian descent, was the greatest driver of all time, but after five years of unchallenged mastery Fangio took a long, mature look at the odds. He decided last year to quit.

Now a quintet of young British aces took charge. For four of them, the glory was short-lived.

Archie Scott-Brown, a one-armed marvel, and Stuart Lewis-Evans burned to death in the wreckage of their cars. Peter Collins, fresh from victory in last year's Sebring race, died of head injuries in the German Grand Prix.

With Fangio out of the way, Mike Hawthorn won the world driving championship last year, but to Hawthorn's keen blue eyes the handwriting was large on the wall.

Hawthorn thought it over carefully and decided he had had it. He picked up his trophies and retired.

But Hawthorn didn't learn to keep a light foot on the accelerator. A month later, on a quiet English road, his Jaguar carried him to his death against a tree.

The many deaths have led to better cries for an end to road racing in Europe, but the Sebring race has been remarkable free of tragedy. Bob Goldich of Chicago, who was killed in 1957, has been the only victim in the eight-year history of the event.

Foremost among the American stars who could step into the gap left vacant by the Europeans are Phil Hill of Santa Monica, Calif., who shared wheel time with Peter Collins in Last year's winning car; Carroll Shelby of Dallas, Tex., Jim Rathmann of Miami and Masten Gregory of Kansas City, Mo.

Bengals 'Cannonball' Past FSU

BATON ROUGE —(AP)— Billy Cannon and Ralph Fabian each accounted for 13 points Saturday as Louisiana State scored an 86-50 track victory over Florida State.

Cannon, speedy All-America halfback who keeps active on the cinders in spring, had two first places, a second, and anchored the winning LSU mile relay team.

Cannon won the 100-yard dash in 9.5 to equal the LSU record set in 1940 by Billy Brown. He tossed the shot put 52 feet 2½ inches for another first. And he shadowed Fabian in the 220 for a second spot.

Fabian, in addition to the 220, was first in the low hurdles and was a close second in the Century.

Dickey Durham broke a 26-year-old LSU record when he did the high hurdles in 14 seconds flat. He bettered the 1933 mark of 14.2 set by the present LSU track coach, Al Moreau.

Jim Casteel won the 440-yard dash for FSU and placed third in the broad jump.

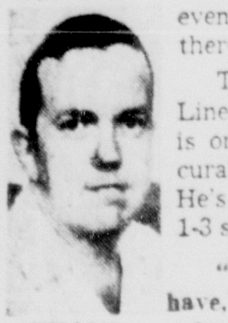
One-Armed Kegler Forgets It's Gone

By DICK EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

Bob Moody is a one-armed bowler. But he doesn't let his missing left arm bother him.

"Why should I?" asks Moody. "I was born without it. Sometimes I even forget it's not there."



EVANS

The Eastern Air Lines League member is one of the most accurate bowlers in town. He's always near the 1-3 strike pocket.

"The only trouble I have," adds Moody, "is when I hurry my backswing. I have to cut down on my backswing to keep good balance."

The 155-1 averager recently won the handicap title in an EAL tourney. He posted 1,314 for six games. He's also anchor man on his team.

CALIFORNIA BOWLING News Columnist Jesse Dudley takes a swing at TV's 77 Sunset Strip.

In a recent production, the script called for a bowling lanes scene.

Dudley didn't like the numerous "stupid mistakes." He was especially upset with TV showing a run-down bowling lane with a pinboy. He points out that pinboys are almost as extinct as rat-trap establishments.

Bassey in TV Go; Baseball on Deck

World Champion Hogan (Kid) Bassey of Nigeria risks his featherweght title for the second time Wednesday night in a 15-round Los Angeles fight with Davey Moore of Springfield, Ohio.

But the little Nigerian's televised title defense must fight for Dade County attention with an ever-growing spring sports schedule . . . like the start of local softball and kids' baseball, University of Miami tennis, horse racing and golf.

COMING UP

Bassey remains a close favorite to beat Moore, who at 24 is two years younger than the champion. In his last defense, Bassey kayoed Mexico's Ricardo (Pajarito) Moreno last April 1.

The fight will be on ABC-TV (Channel 10 locally).

THE NEARING of spring is echoed by completion of the city of Miami's baseball and softball program, which goes into operation April 1. For the kids, there'll be Little Major League (10-12 years), Pony League (13-14) and Pony Graduate League (15-16) baseball.

Men's softball managers will meet April 13 at the Orange Bowl, with practice week starting April 27 and the regular season May 4. Adult baseballers' practice week opens May 11.

UM'S TENNIS group carries its 35-match winning streak out of town, visiting Rollins College on Wednesday, Florida State University Friday, and Louisiana State University on Saturday.

Since 1949, the Hurricane netters have won 164 meets, lost just two and been tied once.

ELSEWHERE, UPCOMING, THERE'S:

. . . . First Landing heading the list of entries for the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes June 13 in New York. First Landing, Troilus, and England's Tudor Melody lead the 100 nominations. Silver Spoon, the West Coast's unbeaten filly, did not enter;

. . . The women's golf tour swinging to the North and South Tournament at Pinehurst, N.C. Mrs. Philip Cudone is defending champ; the meet starts Wednesday;

. . . Miami Beach-bound Jack Kramer's pro tennis tour, now at Louisville. Both Lew Hoad and Pancho Gonzales are 7-3 for the current tour. Mal Anderson is 3-6 and Ashley Cooper 2-7;

. . . First general meeting of the South Florida Lawn Tennis Association under its newly elected officers, scheduled Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Henderson Park;

. . . And, finally, the $5,000 Gold Coast Invitational Golf Tournament beginning Thursday at Gulfport, Miss.

Bucyk Lifts Bruins Past Detroit, 4-2

BOSTON — (AP) — The Boston Bruins came to life in the third period Saturday to defeat Detroit, 4-2, on two goals by Winger Johnny Bucyk in their televised National Hockey League game.

Bucyk, 23-year-old member of the Bruins' famed "Uke" line, made the difference as the home forces loosed a furious barrage over the final 20 minutes and broke a 2-2 deadlock. The goals were his 21st and 22nd of the season.

Detroit Goalie Terry Sawchuk made nine of his 21 saves and his defenses provided countless more when the Bruins decided to breathe some fire into what had been a dull contest.

Bucyk's deciding tally was a 20-foot wide-angle shot he lifted over the fallen Sawchuk. Uke-mate Bronco Horvath, who collected three assists for the afternoon, deflected the puck to him. The time was 8:42.

Bosox Trade Dean Stone

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — (AP) — The Boston Red Sox Saturday traded Southpaw Pitcher Dean Stone to the St. Louis Cardinals in exchange for Pitcher Nelson Chittum and an undisclosed sum of cash.

The 29-year-old Stone had a 13-12 record with Minneapolis last year.

The 26-year-old Chittum was 12-8 with Omaha. He appeared in 13 games for the Cards in '58.

Stone will join the Cardinals in St. Petersburg. Chittum has been assigned outright to Minneapolis.

The Perfect Rebuttal: His Wings Not Clipped

By Herald Wire Services

PEOPLE IN SPORTS

Less than a year ago, when a one-time college debater decided to become a boxing promoter, regulars along Cauliflower Canyon scoffed.

"The angel's gonna get his wings clipped," one said.

Bill Rosensohn didn't.

The former New England intercollegiate debating champion from Williams College now has money in the bank and the gate-great Floyd Patterson-Ingemar Johansson heavyweight title fight in June in his pocket.

Rosensohn, 36, has previously promoted only one fight — Patterson's 1958 defense against Roy Harris. He announced he made money there . . . he doesn't have to announce it for the Patterson-Johansson go. New York hotel magnate Bill Zeckendorf has already guaranteed him $600,000 for that one — more than enough to cover the payroll.

* * *

"SURE," says Sal Maglie, the oldest established barber still in business. "Every good pitcher throws a high tight one now and then to protect himself from the hitters."

Maglie included?

"I don't throw at every hitter," he said. "Maybe you only throw at one and it takes care of the whole time.

"But when I throw at a guy, I put it right here" — he made a swipe under his chin with his hand — "so he can't hit it."

RON FAIRLY, Los Angeles' $70,000 bonus kid, gets the usual ribbing that goes along with those big signing payoffs. He takes it more than fairly well.

"After awhile," he says, "it gets funny. Even to me.

"In Des Moines last year, the players kidded me when an armored truck drove up to the park.

" 'Here comes his pay,' one said.

"One day I was talking with Frank Howard (another bonus boy). One of the Dodgers said:

" 'Those guys look like they're getting ready to buy the club.' "

Fairly doesn't want to buy the club, just make it. Veteran Outfielder Carl Furillo is one of several Dodgers who figure he will.

Beattie, Mortell Face 'Punch Tests'

By MEL DERRICK
Herald Sports Writer

A couple of touted — and apparently talented — young fighters rumble into legitimate moments of truth at Bayfront and Miami Beach Auditoriums this week.

The question before two boxing houses:

Can they take a punch?

Both unbeaten Ed (Hole in the Heart) Beattie at Bayfront and Rocky Mortell (15-6-1) at the Beach have proved they can slam with authority. Their own chins have never been seriously tested.

DERRICK

Beattie, making his third appearance since an operation to close a hole in his heart a year and a half ago, moves into the eight-round class for the first time against rugged Billy Orais Monday night. Orias, a Homestead Air Force battler with a 12-2 record, totes a heftier punch than any of Beattie's seven previous pro foes.

Mortell, who chilled Harry Irwin in 1:19 of the first at the Beach two weeks ago, tackles Orlando's Josh Thomas in the Beach's eight-round semi-windup Tuesday. Welterweight Thomas has been giving and taking with a heavyweight in workouts, and figures several times tougher than Irwin — who staggered Mortell with a light jab before the lights went out.

Just out of service, Mortell has been stopped twice . . . but never on a KO. Once he was TKO'd on a cut, once when the referee halted the fight between rounds.

RUDY SAWYER, billed as the best welter to come out of the East since Vince Martinez' heyday, meets Kid Fichique in the Beach's 10-round main go.

Trained by former Featherweight Champion Sandy Saddler, Sawyer has lost only once in 18 bouts — when Saddler was hospitalized and couldn't work the corner. He has Saddler along this trip.

The Kid, a go-ahead, left hook specialist, "out-statistics" Sawyer in victories (38 against 10 losses, four draws) and name victims. He whipped Jimmy Beecham in 1957, Miguel Diaz twice last year, and lost a narrow verdict to TV darling Rudell Stitch.

Both have beaten their only common foe, Jimmy Peters, with The Kid's win coming at the Beach in his only previous U.S. fight.

MIAMI'S Doc Kearns, "advisor" to Light Heavy King Archie Moore, is not at all pleased with the current status of negotiations for a Moore-Ray Robinson fight. "Them millionaires we're dealing with," he says, "they sure do take their time" . . . And how serious was 46-year-old Tony Zale the other day, when he applied to the Illinois State Athletic Commission for permission to return to boxing with a view of whipping Robinson? . . . Visitors to town include Suey Welch, former manager of ex-Middleweight Champ Gorilla Jones, and Frank (Silver Fox) Tomasco, manager of Eddie Perkins and Johnny Gray. Perkins' next fight is a TV go with Larry Armstead April 8 in Chicago Stadium.

THE Beach TV fight coming up March 27 between second-ranked featherweight contender Sonny Jorgensen and Harold Gomes will be the first top feather hassle here since Willie Pep's June 19, 1956 victory over Russ Tague . . . Dave Rent, who KO'd Max Britano on the recent Joe Erskine-Willie Pastrano card in London, brought back a bruised hand (not serious) and a packet of praise-packed clippings. His manager, Al Weill, says he has "many" offers for more English matches, including "some mention of a fight with Erskine" . . . But look for Willie o' the Wisp to get a return crack at Erskine first.

BEN (EVIL EYE) FINKLE heads an association of boxing managers (which hopes to operate on a national scope) now being formed. Headquarters will be in Florida. Pat O'Malley, manager of Ike Vaughn, is secretary-treasurer . . . Jimmy Beecham is scheduled to meet Peter Muller in Germany April 4 . . . And Cus (I Hate the IBC) D'Amato has another ace besides Heavyweight King Floyd Patterson in his battle with the old Jim Norris-headed group. He's young Jose Torres, currently winner of 10 straight.

JUST ONE of a bevy of beauties on the same bowling team is Juanza Perkins. She and a group of models make up Leo Popell's Alfol tenpin entry at the New Palm Springs Lanes.

Liston, Williams Fight Here

Miami Beach, rapidly becoming the nation's winter television fight capital, picked up its third major heavyweight match in less than two months Saturday when it was announced that Charles (Sonny) Liston and Cleveland Williams would clash at Miami Beach Auditorium on Wednesday night, April 15.

WILLIAMS

LISTON

Liston became the world's fifth-ranking heavyweight contender Feb. 18 when he knocked out Mike DeJohn in six rounds at the Miami Beach Exhibition Hall. Last month, Charlie Powell scored a stunning upset here by halting No. 2 contender Nino Valdes in eight rounds.

Williams, a tall, rangy heavyweight who is ranked along with Liston as one of the most feared punchers among modern heavyweights, is now fighting out of Houston under the Lou Viscusi stable that also includes lightweight champion Joe Brown. He's won 41 of 43 with 33 kayos.

No stranger to the Beach arena, Williams has had seven fights here, winning six, five by knockout. His only reversal came at the hands of Bob Satterfield in a parting shot before his 1955-56 Army service. He simply wasn't ready for that type of competition and Satterfield halted him in three rounds.

Since then, Williams hasn't lost a fight, winning 10 straight, six by knockout. His victims include Bob Albright, Johnny Holman, Frankie Daniels and English heavyweight Dick Richardson.

Liston has had 24 fights, winning 14 by knockout and nine by decision. He has lost only once.

Open Golf Postponed

PENSACOLA — (UPI) — Tournament officials Saturday postponed the third round of the Pensacola Open golf tournament on account of rain and gusty wind which began at 12:50 p.m. EST.

Scores which were in before the postponement came will not count. The field will play 36 holes today instead of 18 as scheduled.

No Amateur

CLEVELAND — (UPI) — Lou Groza, star place-kicker and offensive tackle for the Cleveland Browns, never played varsity football in college but earned a degree at Ohio State while playing the sport as a professional.

'Son, In Football You Either Have Desire . . . Or You Lose'

. . . Coach Andy Gustafson delivers first-day lecture to job applicant

UM Wastes No Time, Scrimmages for Hour

By LUTHER EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

Seventy-two players were in uniform, strong and eager, Saturday afternoon when the University of Miami opened spring football practice.

And 72 were still on their feet, bruised an groggy, when Coach Andy Gustafson, three long hours and 20 minutes later, said, "I guess that's enough for today."

The fact that not one athlete showed any inclination to cry "uncle" shocked even Trainer Dave Wike.

It was the longest workout in Gustafson's 11-year regime at the UM.

In painful addition for the job applicants, the final hour was devoted to unprecedented all-team scrimmage, both offensive and defensive.

"I guess that's what the boss meant," chortled No. 1 assistant Walt Kichefski, "when he promised he was going to give them the full load right from the start."

Introduced during the surprise scrimmage was Miami's pro-styled multiple offense, combining what Gustafson feels are best phases of attacks used by the Cleveland Browns, New York Giants and Pittsburgh Steelers.

After watching Quarterbacks Fran Curci and Theron Mitchell direct the 1-2 teams (decided mainly for opening day on seniority) to quick touchdowns, Gustafson said:

"I'm surprised they know the plays as well as they do — most are so different from our former drive series."

"Lte's face it," suggested Gus, "The coaches don't know the plays themselves yet."

After the Hurricanes mustered a weary "whoop" while limping off the field, Line Assistant Tom O'Boyle, newly arrived from Duke, said:

"They had wonderful spirit. If they're willing to pay the price, we'll be all right next fall."

The tackles soon learned they'll have to pay the price under O'Boyle . . . or forget about ever becoming a football hero.

He had the 11 tackle candidates, including lettermen Jim Crawford and Charlie Linning, slamming at each other from the moment work began.

By this morning, his charges are likely to have labeled Henry (Hank) Stram, new backfield assistant from Notre Dame, as "Twenty-Yard Stram."

He refused to settle for the backs running less than 20 yards at full speed on every play.

"We may not be a good club, said Gustafson, "but we'll be in condition."

The passers' arms certainly will be in condition — or will have dropped off — by the time the 20 days of off-season labor ends.

More than an hour was devoted to throwing with Curci looking much improved as a distance pitcher and pleasing potential being displayed by sophomores Van Parsons, 6 feet, 185, and Bill McClain, 6-1, 185.

"We're going to do more and more throwing," Gustafson said. "I'm tired of seeing those nine-man lines."

MAGA Sets Up First Handicaps; No 'Scratchers'

The Metropolitan Amateur Golf Association, for the first time, has compiled and announced handicaps for its 416 active members. After trying several systems, MAGA found the USGA's system best and most practical.

The new handicaps will be used in all MAGA tourneys. A heavy summer schedule gets under way after the first of May.

Of the new handicaps, 50 per cent were raised, 40 per cent stayed at the same level and only 10 per cent were lowered.

Colt Scout Gets Kick Out of Curci's Work

Fran Curci, the University of Miami's 148-pound senior quarterback won a "fan" Saturday during the introductory spring workout.

CURCI

Currently touring southern collegiate football camps to get ideas on talent for future pro drafts, Molesworth watched Curci at work for 30 minutes, then said:

"This little boy throws awfully well. I'm amazed at him."

Molesworth also had his eye caught by Frank Bouffard, 190-pound junior fullback who led Miami in rushing last fall.

"Bouffard looks good—I like his actions," he said. "You may hear from him before he's through."

Molesworth spotted a "newcomer" who actually isn't a newcomer at all—Frank Reinhart, 210-pound, 25-year-old end.

"If he's as good as I've heard," said Molesworth, "only his age may be against him making the pros some day."

Reinhart played briefly at the UM five or six years ago when freshmen were still eligible for the varsity.

After military service, he returned to serve out a year's ineligibility last fall. Working with the frosh, he displayed pass-catching ability and rugged defensive prowess.

Walter White

Laura Kunnen
. . . minus flag

By DICK EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

It doesn't pay to display a flag or high school letter from the seat of tennis panties or swimming trunks.

Lakeland's Laura Lou Kunnen sewed a Confederate flag on her panties and almost was exiled to Yankeeland.

Walter White, captain of Miami Edison's swimming team, sewed his high school letter on the rear of his trunks and almost lost his water wings.

Principal Bill Duncan led a chorus of gasps at a newspaper picture of White with his Edison "E" proudly displayed from the seat of his trunks.

Before the furor died, White was the hottest conversation piece at Edison since the introduction of football. Rumor had it he might even lose his letter.

White and Coach Irving Resnick, however, explained to Duncan and the entire student body that no "irreverence" was meant.

"Why," said Walter's mother, "I never knew sewing the letter there would get him in trouble. If I had, I never would have picked up my thimble."

Principal Duncan assured one and all that the entire incident was just a misunderstanding, and that it won't be repeated—on land, on sea or in the air.

Russian Sells Footballs, Players on Black Market

By Herald Wire Services

ALL ABOUT SPORTS

The National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA), an organization which among other things slaps suspensions on American colleges for overstepping recruiting bounds, could have a real party in Russia.

A football trainer there is allegedly blackmarketing players.

Footballs, too.

The newspaper Trud reported Saturday that Trainer Alexander Petukhov of the Sverdlovsk Dynamo Sports Club always carried a suitcase filled with expensive footballs in his extensive travels as a referee. It did not specify how he carried the players.

Going price on Petukhov's footballs was 250 rubles.

Players, for clubs needing to restock due to injury or merely in the interest of winning, came twice as high.

NCAA, take it away!

Two possible "doping" cases at Bowie Race Course turned out to be duds Saturday, and the Maryland Racing Commission indicated it might be the culprit.

Commission Chairman D. Eldred Rinehart said the "trace" of caffeine discovered Friday on two winning horses—Jerry's Gem and John Hernon—actually was the result of soiled gauze used to obtain the saliva samples. Only persons to touch the gauze were a commission veterinarian and his assistant.

"If you want to put the blame on us," grimaced Rinehart, "I guess you can."

HERB Carper, former University of Pittsburgh sprinter, equalled his own world indoor record for the 60-yard dash by running the distance in 6 seconds flat in Paris. But another American, Morgan State's Paul Winder, cast some doubt on the accuracy of the meet timers.

Winder was clocked in 6.1 seconds in his 60-yard heat to equal the official world indoor record held jointly by more than 20 runners.

"I couldn't have done it in 6.1," he said. "I was slowing up. In the States it would have been about 6.3."

THE 50th state-to-be wasn't long in making a contribution to American baseball.

Jim Manalilli, a modest 18-year-old right-handed pitcher arrived in the San Francisco Giants' Sanford, Fla. minor league training camp Saturday, fresh from the statehood celebration in Hawaii.

"I don't know whether or not you would call me fast," said Manalilli, signed to a Hastings, Neb. (Rookie League) contract. "I haven't seen what is considered fast in this country."

He Wins Explosive Victory

Miami's Ernie Reeves, his modified racer in flames, won the 30-lap feature at the Hollywood Speedway Saturday night only seconds before the car exploded.

Reeves escaped injury by leaping from the burning 1934 Ford just across the finish line. The car was a total wreck.

"Evidently the fuel line came off, or the carburetor overflowed into the exhaust," said a shaken Reeves.

"I heard it flivvering just before I reached for the checkered flag (to carry on a victory lap). Then it started blazing.

"I didn't bother with a victory lap. I got out."

Reeves' blow-up was the most serious of three Saturday wrecks at the Speedway.

Grady Whitaker hit an oil slick and skidded into the fence early in the race. Bobby Allison hit Whitaker's car wheels, soared over Whitaker's car and lodged on the fence. Rod Perry plowed into the pileup.

Later, Billy Meyers went into the fense after a collision with Fred Griffin.

The 11-event program starts at 7:30.

Ron Delany, holder of the world's indoor mile record and victor in his last 33 indoor tests, heads the field for both the featured Irish Mile and the meet. But national attention will be focused on several events.

In the mile, Delany runs against Hungarian Laszle Tabori, who has a 3:59.5 clocking to his credit; Peter Close, Metropolitan New York intercollegiate champion with a 4:07 mile; and Tom O'Riordan, Idaho State star.

World record holders chase better performances in two other events.

Ira Murchison, 100-meter record-holder, keys a powerful lineup in the 100-yard dash. Bob Gutowski, who holds the world outdoor pole vault record, naturally heads that event.

Running against Murchison will be Charlie Pratt, 1956 Olympic 100-meter high hurdlers champion; Bill Shearer, former New England AAU and collegiate champion; U-Miami's Ernie Barnes, Jim Hahn and Bob Sher; and Don Griffiths of the Miami Boys Club.

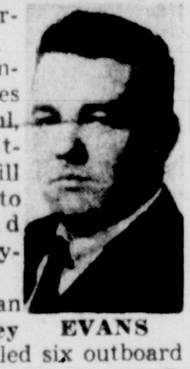
Double Bill Today

MOC Schedules Both Inboard, Outboard Runs

By LUTHER EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

Miami Outboard Club takes a progressive step today when it offers both outboard and inboard competition in the Festival of Spring Regatta between MacArthur and Venetian Causeways.

In addition to popular 48 inch hydroplanes, swift 135 hydros are on the schedule for the first time in the history of MOC - sponsored events.



EVANS

If these inboard classes prove successful, future regatta programs will be expanded to include 266 and 280 inboard hydros.

Chairman George Whitney also has scheduled six outboard divisions — A, B, C and D stock hydro, and AU and BU runabout.

All the above classes are sanctioned by the American Power Boat Association and will be decided by two heats.

Only non-sactioned race will be for non-racing rigs owned by MOC members and guests.

Ample spectator and parking space is available north of the MOC clubhouse in Watson Park. Drivers' meeting is scheduled at 11 a.m. with A stock hydros launching the 17-heat card at noon.

Leading the inboard contingent will be F. C. (Doc) Moor, Hall of Fame member and National Champ in 48 hydros, and Weldon Ropp, the nation's high point 135 driver in 1958.

Outboard fleet will include such "name" drivers as Bob Brown, Skipper Ritter, Chris Erneston, Harry Pinner, Don Baldaccini and the father-son Hutchins team.

A 35-MILE Predicted Log Contest will be run off in Biscayne Bay today by the University Yacht Club.

Others entered are George Hurst, Lester Harrington, Fred Borton, Ed Quinan, Austin Prouds, R. B. Myers and Dr. William Deichmann, commodore of the sponsoring club.

Top team of three boats from one boating organization will earn the "Deichmann Team Trophy," a sterling Wassel bowl of 17th Century origin brought over from England by Dr. Deichmannn.

WHEN Bob English was elected commodore of Miami Outboard Club for the second time, he promised "a major league program of expansion."

Evidence that he intends keeping his word came Saturday in announcement of the inauguration of an annual International Invitational Speedboat Regatta.

It will be staged May 31, will be co-sponsored by the MOC and City of Miami, and already has been sanctioned by the APBA.

"We have been assured," says Leo Johnson, "that several drivers from foreign countries will participate in the inboard and stock outboard classes."

Bob Pettit Tops NBA Star Team

ST. LOUIS —(AP)— The Sporting News Saturday named record scorer Bob Pettit of the St. Louis Hawks as player of the year, heading a National Basketball Association all-star team selected by a poll of NBA players.

Others on the first team were Elgin Baylor of Minneapolis, also voted rookie of the year, and three Boston Celtics — Bill Russell, Bob Cousy and Bill Sharman.

Outdoor
Tips

TO CLEAN a greasy camp frying pan, throw in a handful of gray ashes from the fire and then wipe with paper towels or a wad of dry grass. The ashes mix with the grease to make the equivalent of soap. A thorough rinsing completes the cleaning job.

ANGLERS subject to sunburn should be especially careful in cool weather. That Florida sun keeps blazing even when your teeth are chattering, and you might cook before you're aware of it.

* * *

MOST artificial lures will provide better action if fixed to braided or monofilament lines by means of a snap, instead of being knotted directly to the line. With a wire leader, though, no snap is necessary.

Fishing Club Opposes Salt Water License

Address letters on fishing or hunting subjects to Outdoor Editor Vic Dunaway.

DEAR VIC,

The Islamorada Fishing Guides Association is opposed to the proposed law requiring a salt water fishing license. We feel that there are other means to support fishing. Our opposition is also based on many other factors.

We have a committee which will attend the reading and discussion of the bills by our representatives and senators at Key West at a later date. By presenting our reasons for not favoring the bill, we might help a little to prevent it.

George Hommell Jr.

Sad Tale's End: Don't Play Loose With the Caboose

By DICK EVANS
Herald Sports Writer

It doesn't pay to display a flag or high school letter from the seat of tennis panties or swimming trunks.

Lakeland's Laura Lou Kunnen sewed a Confederate flag on her panties and almost was exiled to Yankeeland.

Walter White, captain of Miami Edison's swimming team, sewed his high school letter on the rear of his trunks and almost lost his water wings.

Principal Bill Duncan led a chorus of gasps at a newspaper picture of White with his Edison "E" proudly displayed from the seat of his trunks.

Before the furor died, White was the hottest conversation piece at Edison since the introduction of football. Rumor had it he might even lose his letter.

White and Coach Irving Resnick, however, explained to Duncan and the entire student body that no "irreverence" was meant.

"Why," said Walter's mother, "I never knew sewing the letter there would get him in trouble. If I had, I never would have picked up my thimble."

Principal Duncan assured one and all that the entire incident was just a misunderstanding, and that it won't be repeated—on land, on sea or in the air.

Russian Sells Footballs, Players on Black Market

By Herald Wire Services

ALL ABOUT SPORTS

The National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA), an organization which among other things slaps suspensions on American colleges for overstepping recruiting bounds, could have a real party in Russia.

A football trainer there is allegedly blackmarketing players.

Footballs, too.

The newspaper Trud reported Saturday that Trainer Alexander Petukhov of the Sverdlovsk Dynamo Sports Club always carried a suitcase filled with expensive footballs in his extensive travels as a referee. It did not specify how he carried the players.

Going price on Petukhov's footballs was 250 rubles.

Players, for clubs needing to restock due to injury or merely in the interest of winning, came twice as high.

NCAA, take it away!

Two possible "doping" cases at Bowie Race Course turned out to be duds Saturday, and the Maryland Racing Commission indicated it might be the culprit.

Commission Chairman D. Eldred Rinehart said the "trace" of caffeine discovered Friday on two winning horses—Jerry's Gem and John Hernon—actually was the result of soiled gauze used to obtain the saliva samples. Only persons to touch the gauze were a commission veterinarian and his assistant.

"If you want to put the blame on us," grimaced Rinehart, "I guess you can."

HERB Carper, former University of Pittsburgh sprinter, equalled his own world indoor record for the 60-yard dash by running the distance in 6 seconds flat in Paris. But another American, Morgan State's Paul Winder, cast some doubt on the accuracy of the meet timers.

Winder was clocked in 6.1 seconds in his 60-yard heat to equal the official world indoor record held jointly by more than 20 runners.

"I couldn't have done it in 6.1," he said. "I was slowing up. In the States it would have been about 6.3."

THE 50th state-to-be wasn't long in making a contribution to American baseball.

Jim Manalilli, a modest 18-year-old right-handed pitcher arrived in the San Francisco Giants' Sanford, Fla. minor league training camp Saturday, fresh from the statehood celebration in Hawaii.

"I don't know whether or not you would call me fast," said Manalilli, signed to a Hastings, Neb. (Rookie League) contract. "I haven't seen what is considered fast in this country."

NEW YORK CITY'S proposal to raise money by legalizing and taxing off-track betting on horse races is dead, Mayor Robert F. Wagner concedes.

The plan would need approval of the State's Republican-controlled legislature, whose leaders oppose it bitterly.

He Wins Explosive Victory

Miami's Ernie Reeves, his modified racer in flames, won the 30-lap feature at the Hollywood Speedway Saturday night only seconds before the car exploded.

Reeves escaped injury by leaping from the burning 1934 Ford just across the finish line. The car was a total wreck.

"Evidently the fuel line came off, or the carburetor overflowed into the exhaust," said a shaken Reeves.

"I heard it flivvering just before I reached for the checkered flag (to carry on a victory lap). Then it started blazing.

"I didn't bother with a victory lap. I got out."

Reeves' blow-up was the most serious of three Saturday wrecks at the Speedway.

Grady Whitaker hit an oil slick and skidded into the fence early in the race. Bobby Allison hit Whitaker's car wheels, soared over Whitaker's car and lodged on the fence. Rod Perry plowed into the pileup.

Later, Billy Meyers went into the fense after a collision with Fred Griffin.

Delany Heads 'Finest Field' In Irish Relays

The finest group of track and field talent in Florida history will compete Tuesday night in the Hollywood Optimist Irish Relays at the South Broward High School track.

The 11-event program starts at 7:30.

Ron Delany, holder of the world's indoor mile record and victor in his last 33 indoor tests, heads the field for both the featured Irish Mile and the meet. But national attention will be focused on several events.

In the mile, Delany runs against Hungarian Laszle Tabori, who has a 3:59.5 clocking to his credit; Peter Close, Metropolitan New York intercollegiate champion with a 4:07 mile; and Tom O'Riordan, Idaho State star.

World record holders chase better performances in two other events.

Ira Murchison, 100-meter record-holder, keys a powerful lineup in the 100-yard dash. Bob Gutowski, who holds the world outdoor pole vault record, naturally heads that event.

Running against Murchison will be Charlie Pratt, 1956 Olympic 100-meter high hurdlers champion; Bill Shearer, former New England AAU and collegiate champion; U-Miami's Ernie Barnes, Jim Hahn and Bob Sher; and Don Griffiths of the Miami Boys Club.

Earl Poucher, former Florida star and Southeastern Conference champion, tops Gutowski's opposition.

In the 400-yard dash, Charlie Jenkins, 1956 Olympic 400-meter champion is favored over Josh Gulbreath, national AAU 600-yard indoor champ, and Tom Murphy, a member of the '56 Olympics team.

ARE YOU THE PRO?

"I'd like to shake the hand," said a golfer practicing on the range, "of a golf champion of the U.S. OPEN." He continued, "I never have shaken the hand of any U.S. OPEN TOURNAMENT WINNER and I would like to meet WILLIE MACFARLANE."

You can shake the hand of PRO WILLIE MACFARLANE or have a lesson ($5 & up) any day by appointment. Phone PL 9-3209.

Canadians Trump U.S.

The New York Times Service

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — Canada's Belleville McFarlands overpowered the United States here Saturday night, virtually clinching the world hockey championship. They skated faster, checked harder, drew more penalties and rammed the puck into the net more often. The score was 4 to 1.

The Canadians, who play Czechoslovakia in the final match of the tournament today, lead Russia by a full game. Even if they lose to the Czechs, they probably will win the championship since their goal-per-game average is vastly superior to the second place Russians.
